Sheriff Fields, taking a man to the bedside of his father, who had a heart attack at Biggs, sped through town like a streak of puffed smoke Wednesday afternoon with the siren wide open. Natives thought he was after a jet plane.

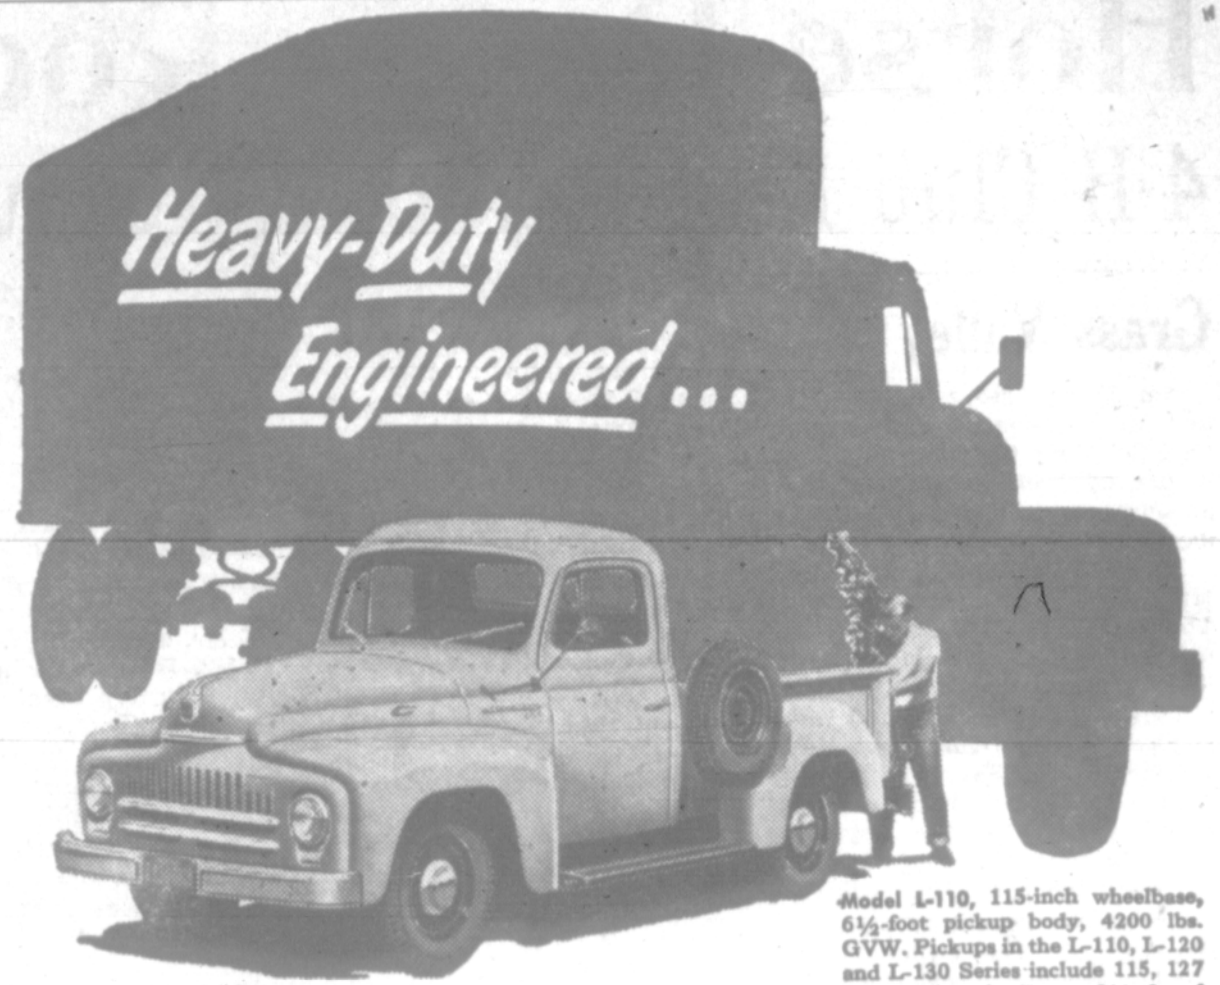

The weather was hot last week end and up until Wednesday afternoon with Monday the hottest day with a temperature of 98 degrees. The west wind has cooled off the air somewhat since then. The 98 degrees is seasonable temperature for this time of year and it probably did no major damage except in particularly susceptible fields.
