Young Lad Writes About 4-H Work

The following was written by a small boy about his 4-H project and what he learned about citizenship. This is 4-H Club Week.

Although our report cards have one side full of big words for scoring "Citizenship", I went to school four years without trying to pronounce them, because I wouldn't know what they meant, anyhow. I like to

They Do "Give A Hoot" For Easy

Easy Roberts finally got rid of the noisy pigeons that used to whoop it up under his eaves.

He must have tried a dozen ways to scare them off. But no matter what he did, they would be right back cooing by his window the next morning.

Then Easy thought of an old stuffed owl he had in his attic. He propped it on the roof so's all the pigeons could see it. They left... and three hoot owls have taken their place. Easy swears the hooting is even worse than the cooing of the pigeons.

From where I sit, quite often a "bright idea" will turn out to be "not so bright" after all. That's why we should never be too cocksure of our ideas and opinions—but always try to keep an open mind. I believe a refreshing glass of beer is the best thirst-quencher—you may believe differently. But who's to say one's right and the other is wrong? Let's just practice tolerance. It'll save a lot of hootin' and hollerin'.

learn the meaning of "Citizenship" by adventures.

My adventure is with a Holstein calf, which my father gave me for a 4-H project. In spite of what I do sometimes, she runs away. But I am trying to do a good job of raising her, so I can make money without being a nuisance in my home or neighborhood.

I can learn many things about citizenship by caring for her. I have been told "how important it is to keep her from getting loose on the neighbor's fields or public road, lest she destroy crops or cause an accident that would cost my father much money. My parents call that "civic responsibility."

I try to learn new ways of tending her for grazing. That is "initiative." Giving her plenty of bedding and exercising and feeding her well develops "industry" and "dependability." Caring for my sister's calves when they are ill is "cooperation" or "helpfulness." There is a chance for "courtesy," too, when we all want to use the equipment. Sometimes I need "self-control" when my sister's big calf pushes mine away from the watering tank. Grooming the calf regularly and training her to pose for the Show Day is what my 4-H leader calls "noticing details." Finishing my calf chores in time to be ready for school when the bus comes by is promptness.

With the adventure I have caring for my calf, "citizenship" doesn't look like such a forbidding word.

Doesn't that tell how wonderful a job 4-H is doing in building character and good citizenship?
