A Look At The Deep South

By Giles L. French

Columbia, South Carolina

The Carolinas are cotton and tobacco country. Also there is peanuts in many places, soybeans, corn, a few beef cattle and a lot of other crops suitable to the warm and usually wet southeast along the coastal plain sloping from the Appalachians to the Atlantic.

The soil is yellow, growing gradually lighter in color and texture the farther south one goes. It may be the same as the Pennsylvania red soil only getting lighter. It contains small rocks, making it a sort of light gravel.

All the way across North Carolina there was no person encountered who knew either the population or the area of the state. The Oregon Bluebook is a fine traveling companion.

The United States is too large a country to visit in. There are too many people to talk to, and they are too busy. Besides it embarrasses them to have to say they don't know. No one knew the population of the town in which they lived, either, although they wanted to know so they could oblige. The idea of visiting as one goes through doesn't work for another reason: a casual acquaintance doesn't care about your opinions, and, you find, you do not care about his. You don't know whether he is rich man, poor man, beggar man, thief, or whether the local people consider his opinions worth while or not. And he doesn't know whether your reputation for veracity is good or bad. So conversation is on a catch as catch can basis and not of much use.

Those favor the present farm program of high price guaranty who would be expected to favor it. Among these are Democrats who inherited the politics and think nothing good can come from Republicans, small farmers who have trouble making a living if there is competition, small business men.

Those with a knowledge of economics, either practical or theoretical, find that the parity system is unworkable except as a stimulation to production as in war, or a means of saving farmers from bankruptcy. The Columbia newspaper, today, said there could be no solution of the farm program by political methods.

People are interested in making a living and putting away some money. They like any law that appears to give that. The laws of economics are as distant as heaven itself and wouldn't be believed if close, that is, if they threatened a possible good price for a crop.

Even so, that bunch of cattlemen who came to Washington to protest and ask for a guaranteed price on beef, didn't fare so well in public opinion. Beef prices are high enough, seems to be the usual sentiment, even from those who didn't know that the protestants were the "Johnny come latelies" of the beef business who jumped in at high prices and are now asking Uncle to pull their chestnuts out of a hot fire.

Farmers in the part of the Carolinas seem have a tolerance for weeds not noted elsewhere. Every field is covered with them and there are few exceptions. They are in cotton, corn and peanuts and, of course, tobacco, which has long been harvested. A different tobacco is grown here and it is picked differently, a few leaves at a time, from the bottom up. And it is flue cured, with heat, and not pulled and hung to dry in open houses as in Kentucky.

Sign at a village entrance: "Welcome to McBee; Traffic Laws Enforced."

It is warm today and sunny, around 80, which isn't hot to anyone but us. The drought reached here and streams are low and everyone complaining although no one could say how much rain they usually got nor how much they got this year. A statistical department is not a necessity to the Carolina mind.

The Bluebirds had their regular meeting Nov. 5 in Mrs. Lyons room. The girls made two kinds of bookmarks, one a bluebird, the other a clown. The Bluebird girls are Donna Mae Hansen, Sandra Carlisle, Barbara Bishop, Mary Tate, Kay Macnab, Monya Neal, Karen Macnab, Wyla Jean Barney, Kathleen O'Brien and Joyce Brock.

The Campfire girls had their meeting Nov. 5 in the lunch room of the school. The girls decided to use the ceremonial vest on which to put their honors. The plain vests will be bought and then each girl will decorate her

Work Starts on $50,000 Phone Line Extension to Serve Kent Area

The Pacific Telephone company started work this week on the second phase of a $50,000 line extension project in the rural areas surrounding Kent.

Earlier this year, connections with the Grass Valley telephone office were provided for 20 of the 47 families in the 75-mile section, which has been without telephone service since the Kent Telephone company was discontinued in 1947.

The Kent area is connected with the Grass Valley central office over circuits in the old Biggs-Bolers toll lead, formerly used for long distance calls but now being utilized as an exchange feeder route.

Next step in the expansion program, according to Pacific Telephone Manager C. P. Horn, is to build new lines to reach families living on farms widely scattered throughout the rural districts.

Initially, one four-man construction crew has been assigned to the project, but Horn said another crew will be added later to finish the job by next March, if possible. Meeting the scheduled completion date will depend a lot on the weather, Horn stated. Although some 350 poles of the Wasco Electric Cooperative association will be shared, under a joint use agreement, Horn said his company will place about 150 new poles and string roughly 150 miles of wire to reach all families in the territory.

Telephones for the 27 families on the waiting list will be hooked up as rapidly as the lines can be extended. This work will be done by teams of installers from The Dalles.

Plans call for the construction of seven suburban lines, each equipped to serve a maximum of ten parties. Horn pointed out, however, that subscribers actually will get the benefit of a better grade of service, since none of the lines will be filled to capacity.

In addition to the suburban lines for residential service, Horn said one coin telephone already has been installed in an outside booth at Kent for public use at all hours of the day or night.

vest as she desires. The girls started to learn the Campfire promotion chant. Campfire girls are Jeanne Macnab, Gloria Christopherson, Valerie Liacas, Arlene Macnab, Eleanor Smith, Carolyn Tom, Patty Blackburne, Nadine Grant, Patricia O'Brien and Joan Brackett.

The Rufus school play has been selected and the date has been set for Nov. 24. The play is "Toby Helps Out" by Anne Coulter Martens. This is a three-act play and requires five boys and four girls.

The story is actually a play within a play. The group is trying to win a play contest. Everyone is in dead earnest except Toby. During the performance his comical attitude, which is better than the play really is, makes everyone roar with laughter. This story absolutely guarantees an enjoyable evening.

Rufus high school has set Nov. 14 as the date for the fall dance. They were fortunate in securing Pattons Comba Band. The orchestra consists of piano, drums, saxophone and trumpet. The members are students of Linfield college.

Sadie Hawkins Swing is the theme of the evening. The '53 Quilters have at last arrived at Rufus school. They are very attractive books with a color photograph of the school on the cover. Anyone wishing to purchase the annual should see Mr. DeFigh.

The high school is working on the '54 annual now so that they will have it before school is out this year.

Buzz Brand, '52, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Brand was home on leave from the air force. He will report to Florida after his leave expires.

Gayle Eaton, '53 graduate of Rufus is in San Francisco working as an airplane mechanic for United Airlines. Gayle is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Eaton.

Rufus high school has a new pupil. Nettie Smith, is a senior and formerly from The Dalles. Ida Mae Smith is an eighth grader.

Nov. 13, the Rufus football field will be the scene of a Sadie Hawkins race. All the grades including Sophomores and Juniors will race during the noon hour. The seniors will be the judges of the race. The boys, when caught must forfeit their time and services for the rest of the day.

Rufus grange met in regular session Thursday night with Roland Johnson, master, in the chair. Mrs. Johnson announced H.E. club meeting at the home of Mrs. Art Smith on Nov. 12. Mrs. Harland McDonald was appointed on the dues committee. The committee is collecting dues for next year so they will have everyone in by the end of the year and thus secure the grange pennant

Problems of Weed Control to Claim Farmers' Attention

Weeds, a common saboteur, will be tried for trespassing at the second annual Oregon Weed Conference at Pendleton November 17, 18. An expert jury has been selected, including Virgil Freed, Oregon State college experiment station; Bert Miller, Milton-Freewater; Dr. Lowell Rasmussen, Washington State college; Don Hyder, Squaw Butte experiment station; Dave Bayer, in charge of Columbia basin weed research work; Garnet Barratt, Morrow county judge, and Les Orton, Oregon highway department. The judge will be farmers of which all are invited to attend and participate.

The jury will explain to "Judge Farmer" methods of control for annual weeds such as Russian thistle, cheatgrass, tarweed and various perennial weeds. Besides planned speakers, farmers are asked to assist with the committee meetings. Four committees have been set up: Field crops and pastures, chairman, Clayton Fox, Union county; horticultural, chairman, James Kuhn, Umatilla county; equipment committee, chairman, Jim Rear, Lane county, and legislative committee, chairman, Allen Tom, Sherman county. Jack Sather, a former Sherman countyman, is president of the state weed committee.

Discussions during the two day event will include spray injury and how to prevent it, Virgil Freed; operating a special spray area, Bert Miller; Russian thistle control on county highways, Garnet Barratt; sagebrush control and getting grass stands, Don Hyder; cheatgrass control, Dave Bayer; a panel on perennial weed control; what the chemical industry offers, Max Goebel, DuPont Chemical company; weed problems of the Columbia basin and Palouse area, Lowell Rasmussen, WSC, and weeds on Oregon state highways, Les Orton, Salem.

The conference will be held in the Vert Little Theater in Pendleton. The program starts at 10 a. m. November 17 and will be concluded at 4 o'clock the 18th.

Historical Society Potluck Banquet Billed for Monday

The Sherman County Historical Society's potluck banquet to be held at 6:30 o'clock p. m. Monday, Nov. 16 in Grass Valley IOOF hall gives promise of an enjoyable evening, reports James Tate, president.

On the program will be Tom Fraser, the instrumental group from Grass Valley, all of whom were appreciated at last year's banquet, and Jean Fridley with his accordion.

Those who heard him should be pleased to know that Lancaster Pollard, whose speech delighted and intrigued his hearers last year will be back again. Mr. Pollard is executive secretary of the Oregon Historical Society and therefore thoroughly qualified to address such a meeting, Tate believes.

Everyone interested in Sherman county's past and present history is cordially invited. Roast turkey with all the trimmings, potatoes and gravy, coffee and table dishes will be furnished by the society. Bring desserts, salad or other side dishes to fit the menu—and your appetites, the society president suggests.

HAM, TURKEY FARE FOR WOMAN'S CLUB
The members of the Wasco Woman's Study club honored their families and friends with a potluck dinner November 6 at the Methodist church.

Under the direction of Mrs. L. E. Kaseberg as chairman, the decorations of the tables were beautiful with fall flowers.

Mrs. L. P. Haven was chairman of the refreshment committee. A bountiful dinner of ham and turkey with all the trimmings was served. About 95 persons enjoyed the dinner.

The Girl Scouts assisted with serving the coffee and dessert.

In the auditorium after dinner the meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Robert Bish. After the flag salute and singing of America, Mrs. J. K. McKean favored the group with two vocal selections. The guest speaker, Capt. A. Leppaluoto of The Dalles spoke forcefully of his interest and work with youth activities. He then showed pictures of the tug Winquott working on the Columbia river. The meeting was concluded with informal discussions.

Elephant Seals Suffer From Ulcers
The harried America business man doesn't have all the ulcers. Elephant seals of Guadalupe island suffer from ulcers too!

This fact, discovered recently by natural scientists, is revealed in the new Moody Institute of Science film, "Prior Claim," just released.

These curious creatures, who like the businessman appear to be a bit overweight, shouldn't have a care in the world. They loiter around Guadalupe Island, off the coast of California, all day or splash in the sea. No one comes along to bother them except curious sight-seers and MIS camera men. Yet scientists have found they suffer from stomach ulcers!

The Pacific Ocean Midway Islands are the home of many peculiar birds, among them the booby bird, which can fly backward and can take off straight up, like a helicopter. Then there are the gooney birds, which go into a hilarious folk dance. These birds were nature's contribution to the morale of the men stationed on this lonely island during the war. One cannot look at a gooney performance without being convinced that God has a wonderful sense of humor.

This film also makes a close study of carnivorous plants, which have no nerves or digestive system, yet through a series of electronic devices can capture, devour and digest insects. The minute electronic equipment of these plants makes an electrical engineer wonder and admire.

"Prior Claim" points up these and other fascinating facts of nature which operate on the same principle as many of the great electronic advances of our time. See this fascinating film at the Grass Valley Baptist church at 8 p.m. November 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Wily W. Knighten were Portland visitors the first of the week where Mr. Knighten kept an appointment with an eye specialist.

Mrs. Ralph Busse is in Portland this week visiting her father, Alex Zevely, who is undergoing treatment for polio. Mr. Zevely, now a resident of Lakeview, taught school in Sherman county years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hoskinson were in Portland Sunday to attend the observance of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffmeister. Mrs. Hoffmeister was the former Mildred Boardman, member of a well known Sherman county family.

Maupin added the extra point on each touchdown making the final score Moro 24, Maupin 14.

Statistics of the game show that Harold Duncan led the Huskies in the ground gaining department with 112 yards, while Kelly Wilson came in second with 63 yards. Moro attempted five passes, completing two. (Coach Disch uncovered quite a passer in Harold Brown). Moro gained a total of 239 yards, collecting 15 first downs. Danny Duncan's kicks averaged 32 yards. (Due to Maupin's fast charging line he was unable to kick any extra points). Larry Sayers ran back two kickoffs for a total of 17 yards and Larry Smith ran one back for 10 yards. Kelly Wilson, with 17 tackles, was the outstanding tackler of the game, being followed by Don Miller with 11 tackles.

Tripp South Explained
Some school patrons may have been wondering why Moro has to go to Klamath county for the quarter-finals playoff for the Oregon State Activity association at the beginning of the year covering quarter-finals and other activities.

Last year Maupin, winner in district 6, entertained Merrill, district 5 champion, so this year Moro is the traveling team and Malin is the host team. The host team must pay expenses, which, in the case of Moro, includes $304 bus fare and two meals. It has been found that playing on a neutral field has usually resulted in failure to make expenses, hence the decision to have the playoffs in one or the other towns claiming the district championship.

CATTLE VOLUME GROWS AT HERMISTON AUCTION
Volume of cattle consigned at the Hermiston livestock auction Friday continued to increase. Delbert Anson, manager of the sale, reports, with 553 head consigned compared with 401 the previous Friday. Demand also continued high, especially for yearling steers which are needed at the next sale.

Prices were steady to strong for all cattle although quality was down in some types of cattle. Feeder steers maintaining a top of 16.80 cwt., despite lower quality. Heavy calves were strong in price and were the only animals grading good to choice, steer calves and veal bringing an 18.80 cwt. top, up over $1. Bulls were up 90c to a $12.90 top, with a few registered bulls also consigned.

Also consigned Friday were 113 hogs compared with 109 the previous Friday, and 92 sheep at the semi-weekly sheep sale, compared with 85, far below the demand, especially for breeding ewes and fat lambs although prices remained steady. Fat hogs were down in line with other markets, but weaner pigs and feeder pigs were up as much as $2 to $3 per head. The market for hogs at the lower prices was especially active.

Consignments were mostly small. Many local farmer buyers were present and active, as were Yakima valley and Sacramento valley feeder and order buyers, packers from a wide area, and Willamette and coastal buyers.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Hoskinson were in Portland Sunday to attend the observance of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Hoffmeister. Mrs. Hoffmeister was the former Mildred Boardman, member of a well known Sherman county family.

Huskies Capture Dist. 6B Title in Defeat of Maupin

Moro's fighting Huskies clinched the district 6B football championship when they met and defeated the Maupin Redskins on the local field Friday afternoon. Coach Disch and his hopefuls must now go to Klamath county to meet the Malin team, winner of the district 5B schedule.

A wildly cheering crowd watched Kelly Wilson score two touchdowns in the first quarter, only to see him called back in each event. This did not dampen the fighting spirit of the Huskies and they scored twice in the first half. Kelly Wilson plunged through the line to lay the pigskin over in pay territory. Later, Harold Duncan bucked through the line to add the second teedee. Larry Sayers scored a touchdown in the second quarter but this was disqualified due to a backfield in motion penalty.

Maupin opened the second half with a sustained drive which resulted in a touchdown. Moro came back with Larry Sayers again crossing the goal line. Danny Duncan was unable to make the extra point, but in the fourth quarter ran the ball over for the fourth and final score of the Huskies.

Maupin added the extra point on each touchdown making the final score Moro 24, Maupin 14.

Statistics of the game show that Harold Duncan led the Huskies in the ground gaining department with 112 yards, while Kelly Wilson came in second with 63 yards.
