sale or put it through the auction. There were three in Dover that day and one is held in the area every day in the week. A husky negro bought himself a pretty red dog, but the trading was generally slow in the morning but it lasts all day so probably it was all sold including the cider and apples and novelties.

Negroes seldom sell, the articles of trade not being natural to them apparently. They usually sell to a white man who markets their stuff. Few of them are merchants or traders.

Down to the beach to have a look at the Atlantic, which laps its shores and carries its ships much like any ocean and an Oregonian might have imagined he was looking west instead of east and seeing the Pacific instead of the Atlantic.

The day was bright and sunny (it was the sun's turn) and Delaware farmers were belatedly harvesting their corn and other crops which have been standing so long they are dark and look past their prime.

One huge farm was devoted to nursery stock, acres and acres of it, neatly cared for. Stock are dairy stock which look good. What beef there are are poor.

Delaware has a different architecture than that of Pennsylvania. The houses are thin from the front to the back and are sometimes turned end to the road, still narrow and high. Some look like mariners' houses, shutters and all.

WITH A.M.A. YOU'LL DIAL FARTHER, FASTER

How A.M.A.—Automatic Message Accounting—streamlines telephone service with electronic magic

All over the West, people are making routine calls over much greater distances than they used to. We're always working to tailor service to the changing needs of those who use it . . . for example, making it possible for people to dial more of their calls over longer distances. To do this, we needed automatic equipment to record the information necessary for billing the out-of-town calls you dial. Bell Telephone Laboratories solved this complex problem with A.M.A., an amazing achievement in electronics.

Faster telephone service is one advantage of A.M.A., which makes possible direct dialing by customers of out-of-town calls. Already installed in some parts of the Pacific West, the equipment automatically keeps track of your out-of-town calls with uncanny accuracy, sorting them out and compiling them for your monthly bills. Other installations in the West will be made as the intricate equipment becomes available. For our eventual goal is customer dialing of long distance calls to all parts of the nation.

A.M.A. cuts costs, helps keep rates low

A.M.A. is fast, accurate, and greatly extends the scope of dial telephone service. It saves time . . . and money. And it's typical of what we're doing to build better, more efficient telephone service—keep costs down and make your telephone ever more useful.
