NITROGEN-In-SOLUTION APPLICATION GROWS IN LOCAL GRAIN AREAS

Warren Wilkin on Says

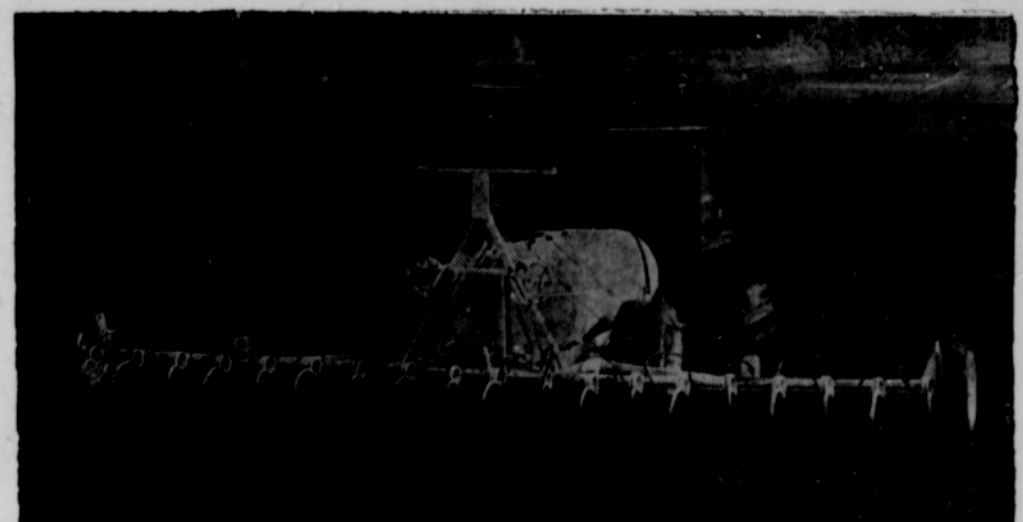

SHALLOW-DRILLING PAYS — Your shortcut to higher profits from increased grain yields is shallow-drill application of Brea Aqua Ammonia, and here's why:

Because Brea Aqua is a nitrogen fertilizer in solution form, it does not have to be "over-injected" to stay in the ground. As a solution, the fertilizer soaks into the root zone and stays there, providing the plant with the proper nitrogen requirements. Shallow-drill application without soil and seed-bed disturbance. This means that a rig can cover a field faster with less ground resistance on the equipment. Add the features of "soak-in" nitrogen together with "ease of application" and they'll total "profit" every time!

OUR DRILL APPLICATION RIGS are doing a nice job for customers these days, and naturally, we are well equipped and ready to handle more customer acreage. Things are happening so fast in the fertilizer business that I know we can save you money and do a better job if you will let us bid on your nitrogen needs.

GROWER-OWNED EQUIPMENT — We have noticed that many local growers are considering the advantages of owning their own application equipment. Again, Brea Aqua's ease of handling soon pays for the cost of the changeover. With high speed transfer pumps to refill applicator tanks in a few minutes and one man to handle the application, the rig pays for itself over a short period of time. Many Brea growers handle equipment modification in their own shops.

SHALLOW DRILLING APPLICATION of Brea Aqua Ammonia minimizes soil and seed disturbances, conserves soil moisture, cuts time and equipment costs.

Since early fertilizer schedules with Brea Aqua Ammonia on local grain began last month, orders for the application of the low-cost, high performance nitrogen-in-solution have grown to a record peak. More and more local grain producers are finding that Brea Aqua—the easy-to-handle, easy-to-apply nitrogen fertilizer solution—boosts both their yields and their profits.

Brea Aqua's "soak-in" feature makes shallow-drill application possible. Shallow-drill application minimizes soil and seed-bed disturbance, conserves soil moisture, and cuts application time and equipment costs—and the nitrogen soaks in and stays in.

Brea's Agricultural Technical Service offers the following recommendations for dry-land grain, varying the application rate with average rainfall expectancy: 8 - 15 inches rainfall, use 30 - 50 lbs. N per acre; 16 - 23 inches rainfall, use 50 - 70 lbs. N per acre; above 24 inches rainfall, use 70 - 90 lbs. N per acre.

For further information and assistance in planning your nitrogen schedules, call us today. We'll be happy to show you how Brea Aqua pays for itself over and over again. Call us and find out how we can offer you Brea's high-performance nitrogen solution at low cost per pound of net nitrogen as well as expert service to assure you highest profits for every fertilizer dollar invested.
