"MALIGNANT" LIE

We are indebted to Mr. Carmine De Sapió, boss of the Tammany political gang, for a new expression. He referred to the criticism of the Tammany here, Averill Harriman, by Oregon's Howard Morgan as a "malignant" lie.

According to the dictionary Mr. DeSapió used the word correctly if he meant that Mr. Morgan was maligning him with an untruth. But of late the word "malignant" has been so often associated with tumors by the medical profession that it has come to mean something dangerous if allowed to grow, and something that has the ability to grow.

The Democratic nomination for the presidency has but recently become valuable through the illness of Mr. Eisenhower, and Mr. Harriman, who is Mr. DeSapió's entrant, is giving out signs that his professed support of Mr. Stevenson, who is Mr. Morgan's entrant, is to be taken as seriously as a politician's promise—and no more.

Oregonians in this little political sideshow will observe that Mr. Morgan's reactions are better than his reasoning. He is a cheerleader for his team. He will not stand idly by and let his chosen leader be done out of his due desserts although as chairman of his party he may be called upon to support another.

But back to "malignant". Mr. DeSapió must infer that Mr. Morgan lied when he said that Harriman was trying to upset Stevenson and that the untruth would expand over a larger area than Oregon. From that viewpoint we think Mr. DeSapió used the word most expressively.

What we would be most interested in learning is who Mr. Walter Ruether favors in the race. That will be the determining factor, not the roarings of the outraged Mr. Morgan or the smooth manipulations of the astute Mr. DeSapió.

REAPPORTIONMENT

The Oregonian quotes from a Florida paper about legislative apportionment and editorializes therefrom. The Oregonian is wise enough to refrain from appealing to the theory of "democracy" although the Florida paper does make such an appeal.

from his land. If he has no grass land his chances are not so good. What a man grows on his farm is his own business, except for the inroads government has made on his free choice. And growing cattle is about as good a substitute as can be made in that the cost is not too great for new buildings, new fences, new equipment.

Consider, then, the men who have made Midco a successful sale after a rather small and hesitant start. They have done well, not only making some money from their cattle but increasing the quality every year as well. Sherman county cattle sell well at the local sale and also bring good prices when taken to other sales.

There are a lot of farms with 500 acres out of wheat production although barley is permitted on it so far. Good management could produce a good deal of beef on such a parcel of land.

BEAUTIFUL WEATHER We have heard the comment often and made it frequently, that fall weather in eastern Oregon is beautiful to behold and wonderful to enjoy. These fall days after the first of what we hope will be bountiful autumn rains are sunny and bright and the frost is being withheld by the kind hand of Mother Nature.

Here in the last half of October men stand in the sun in unbuttoned conversation and women chat on the streets without coats. Football players sweat profusely at their trying chores and there is no chill to the air at morning or evening.

We do not know how it could be better and we have to comment on it to show our appreciation although being usually fearful of praising the weather, which does not always respond to praise or blame as humans might wish it to. To those of the rain-washed sections we extend an invitation to come up into the sun.

OF MARGARET We suppose that the dictates of the newspaper profession are such that we should be interested in the personal affairs of Princess Margaret and worry daily about whether she will marry Peter Townsend or send him back to his flying machines and his horses with nothing but a snobish memory.

Margaret is around 25 which should be an age of discretion and Mr. Townsend is 40 and apparently divorced honorably, which is important. Many consider the prejudices of the church against marriage of divorced persons unfair, but there are some excellent reasons for them.

Full membership in the ruling house of England is a distinction that comes to very few and romance or no romance it seems extremely silly to cast aside the prerogatives of the position to marry a man of 40 when there are surely others as handsome and more suitable.

Reason, we realize, will not be the ruling factor, but whenever reason is discarded it often comes back to torment the mind after the inflammation of desire has subsided. At 25 Margaret should understand that she should accept the handicaps of her position as well as enjoy the advantages of it.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh
Tie This One For Consideration-
Closed the office early last Saturday to go after pheasants with Iops Foster. I used fewer shells than the old gentleman and took home more birds—but not because I did better shooting.
I'd borrowed a dog for the occasion. Iops took along Blue, his ancient pointer. Several times I noticed Iops walk up to a clump of brush. Blue had pointed at and fire into the air—though he hadn't flushed a single bird.
Naturally, I wanted to know why. "Well," he said sheepishly, "I've been hunting with that dog for 11 seasons. His nose isn't much help any more—but I'd rather waste a shell than let him know."
From where I sit, Iops always shows consideration for people, too. For instance, this is a small thing, but he puts a bottle of beer on ice for me when I visit him—though he never takes anything but coffee himself. Even if he doesn't agree with me on a matter of personal choice (which is his right) he'd rather not make a "point" of letting me know.
Joe Marsh
