

Moro Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Quay Snodgrass of Wilsonville spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. Darwin VanGilder. He is a brother of Mrs. Theodore Johnston whom they also visited.

Mrs. Elsie Arstill is here for a couple weeks to curl the ladies' hair while Mrs. Bud Powell is at Hardman for the spring work.

Mrs. Alvin Rasmussen is in a hospital in Hood River with a heart attack she suffered Saturday. Mr. Rasmussen reports that she is making some improvement.

Members of the Husky staff of Moro High school will be soliciting the business men of Sherman county for advertisements for their 1955-56 annual Wednesday, April 25.

BASEBALL SCHEDULE 1956

 Don Lewis and Jack Howe, two life insurance salesmen who usually travel different paths watching each other with wary eye, were in town together Wednesday where they talked to high school students about insurance.

Paul McCulloch, former school teacher, turned insurance executive was in the county Tuesday with Lewis.

Time for outgoing mail from Moro has been advanced another ten minutes, making it 2:30 p. m. Change on a new railroad schedule is given as the reason.

Some one stole the new recording thermometer from the front of the state highway garage last week.

John DeMoss is on his way home, but slowly, having visiting in California and Oregon to do before he arrives late next month.

Cres Maddock, insurance man of Portland, former Morrow county contribution to the University of Oregon football team and frequent visitor here was in town Wednesday.

Giles French and Collis Moore went to Fossil Monday to talk about the Federal Plan before a joint meeting of men and women of Wheeler county.

Plumbing is being put in for the new service station at the corner of First and Main streets in Moro and work of construction will start soon.

Lloyd Johnson has been able to do some work around the post office this week although somewhat thinner than before his hospital stay.

Bob Mautz, former University of Oregon end, and at present a Portland lawyer and a candidate for Republican national committeeman, together with his campaign manager, Omar (Slug) Palmer were in town briefly Wednesday meeting friends of college days and talking to voters about his candidacy.

Tom Monroe, looking fit again, was in town Wednesday from Portland where he has been working on his house before seeking employment.

Mary Rehr, now Mrs. Ralph Thomas, is now living at Camp 5 of the Kinzua Lumber company where her husband is loading logs.

The Moro 4-H livestock meeting has been postponed one week and will be held April 28 at the Earl Gentry place.

Mrs. L. H. Nahouse of McCoy was here last week to visit her daughter, Mr. Ronald Powell and family and see other relatives at Grass Valley. Her brother, Dean Olds, is at McCoy with the Nahouses.

Blitz-Weinhard Start Second Century

The Blitz-Weinhard company of Portland began a month-long celebration of its centennial year this week and has opened the doors of its plant to the public.

Some 200 clubs and organizations in Portland and throughout Oregon, Eastern and Southern Washington and Western Idaho have scheduled similar days between now and May 16, the period of the centennial celebration.

The company dates its origin from the arrival at Vancouver, by sailing vessel of a young man from Germany, Henry Weinhard, in 1856. He was the first professional brewer to go into business in the Pacific Northwest, operating a small plant near Fort Vancouver.

Moving across the Columbia to the then small city of Portland two years later, he started what is now the only brewing establishment in Oregon. Through five wars, two major depressions and the prohibition it has continued as a major manufacturing enterprise in the City of Roses.

Through four generations, the family of the founder has continued its ownership and management interest. Henry Weinhard's grandson, H. W. Wessinger, is now chairman of the board.

Farm Bureau Asks Property Tax Cut

"There is a limit to the amount of taxes that farmers can pay, and we are rapidly approaching that limit," Gerald Detering, president of the Oregon Farm Bureau Federation, said following the Oregon Tax Clinic. The state-wide meeting was co-sponsored by executives of Oregon Chambers of Commerce and the Oregon Tax Research.

"We have taken a step in the right direction toward the rebuilding of our unworkable tax structure," Detering stated in complimenting those taking part in the meetings for spearheading the initial meeting to study the tax situation. "This should be only the first of a series of meetings to continue a study of the problem."

Detering stated that everyone wants tax relief, but most people want it in the form of lower income taxes.

"Too much time was spent during the clinic meetings discussing reduction of income taxes, and not enough on the question of lowering taxes on real property," he said. "Farmers are more concerned with the problems of property taxes, since lower farm and rising production costs have forced them to operate on a reduced margin or, in some cases, no margin at all."

ONE IN SEVEN HAD WRECK LAST YEAR

If you own a passenger car, the chances are about one in seven that it was smashed up in an Oregon traffic accident last year, the Secretary of State's traffic safety division said Thursday.

The figures reflect only those passenger cars were involved in accidents, which is about 14 per cent of the total passenger cars registered in Oregon during 1955. Total registered vehicles of all types, including trucks, numbered 823,184 last year and the total number of vehicles damaged in accidents reached 126,022, or approximately 15.3 per cent.

An accident on a public roadway, however, must be reported if property damage of any kind results and even though only one vehicle is involved, the division pointed out.
