NEW BEEF GRADE

The annual fall flow of grass-fat cattle from the Oregon range brings with it a new meat grade—USDA Standard—that offers food shoppers a key to good quality lean beef.

W. Y. Fowler, Oregon State college livestock marketing specialist, says the new grade has less fat than found on more highly finished animals but has a mild flavor and may be quite tender. Prior to establishment of the new grade, much of the young grass-fat beef was graded USDA Commercial, and was lumped into the same class as beef from older animals that failed to make "good" grade.

A FEW POINTS

about the claim that
"nobody in this generation has done more to develop wildlife resources than Doug McKay"

A RECENT MCKAY AD ERECTED A BLIND OF MISSTATEMENTS TO COVER UP MCKAY'S DISSERVICE TO SPORTSMEN AND ALL LOVERS OF NATURE WHEN HE OPENED UP FEDERAL FISH AND WILDLIFE SANCTUARIES TO EXTENSIVE OIL LEASING.

READ HOW A UNANIMOUS REPORT OF THE FISHERIES COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS (12 Republicans, 17 Democrats) REFUTES THESE MCKAY CLAIMS

THE MCKAY MISSTATEMENTS

BIPARTISAN REPORT OF FACTS

"So on August 31, 1953, he (McKay) issued an order suspending leasing by the Bureau of Land Management—the order to remain in effect until new adequate regulations could be drawn. It wasn't until two years . . . that selected areas were reopened for leasing under new regulations."

"One of the noteworthy provisions of the new regulations for the first time gives the Fish and Wildlife Service veto authority over proposed leases.

"Wildlife reserves were . . . protected under Secretary McKay".

"Notwithstanding the fact that a stop order was issued . . . directing the suspension of action on all oil and gas leases then pending, 60 leases were granted between the issuance of the suspension order and the issuance of new regulations . . ." (Unanimous Report, pp. 10, 11)

"Superficially, these regulations appear to give a veto power to the Fish and Wildlife Service. However, under applicable laws, oil and gas leasing in wildlife lands is a matter solely within the discretion of the Secretary of Interior." (Unanimous Report, p. 11)

"Such increased activity in the issuance of leases by the Secretary of Interior . . . can only result in serious damage to the wildlife refuge systems in this country." (Unanimous report, p. 11)

The document quoted above is Report No. 1941, House of Representatives, 84th Congress, 2d Session, March, 1956.

The McKay ad topped off this parade of misstatements with these words:
"Sportsmen like a man they can trust — a man who tells them the truth."
