MR. KHRUSHCHEV'S VISIT

During the service of Mr. Dulles this nation followed the policy of holding the Russians at arms length, of having nothing but the most official intercourse with them. We were morally superior and said so and our recourse was to have nothing to do with the offenders. It worked so well that Mr. Khrushchev believes it himself and is always talking about catching up with us.

It may well be that the time for such a course on our part is over and that some more friendly dealing will be advantageous for us, or for both of us. We do not know that and we think no one knows that. What the leaders are doing is what seems best in the light of present information. In a hundred years the historians will discuss it in the light of 100 years of additional history. In any event it is apparent that the Russians are not going to go away from this earth and leave it all to us because we ignore them. If we have to live on the same earth with them a little conversation will be more social even if we do get insulted.

We doubt if Mr. Khrushchev will be able to make propaganda as well in America as he can in Russia. It will be American reporters who tell the world what happened, not the hirelings of Pravda.

We are certain that the visitor will be impressed with our superior way of life because what he will see first will be our gadgetry which is very handy. We are remarkable at inventions of things to make live easy and at the creation and use of power from various sources.

He may guess that we spend a large part of our time and energy doing things easy and use our minds for material advancement to the minimization of cultural activities. But we do have a plentitude of books and such things when we want to turn to them which he will admit is an advantage denied to his own people.

Perhaps a changed attitude will be for the best and we hope it will be although not entirely convinced.

CANNED EDITORIALS

There are firms even in this day who write and sell editorials to the newspapers that have no editor, or opinions, or ability to express to them. A few years back such material came already to print and that is what it was called "ready-print". It really solved a problem in small shops when the machinery was inadequate.

Americans, being ingenious, have overcome the mechanical, the physical, difficulties and now every printing shop has a linotype to set type galore.

But Americans are not adept at overcoming the mental problem involved in writing editorials. So far no one has invented a machine to do it. The solution, therefore, is to have it done and these firms do it for a fee, of course. Furthermore, they are pretty good. The trick of writing an editorial destined for use over a whole nation is to say nothing. It must be an editorial that has no opinion between north and south, Catholic or Protestant, Republican or Democrat, male or female, foreign born or native, young or old.

One might think that such a screed would lack the local touch, the personal opinion that makes an editorial valuable. They do. But nevertheless they are a work of art and some of them should be preserved in the proper museums. Anyone who can write 500 words in the accepted language and say nothing has attained a proficiency in vacuity that should be commemorated.

This newspaper is a believer in "do it yourself" in editorial writing considering it to be the heart and soul of a newspaper. We do not buy editorials and, in fact, we write editorials on the obligingly blank backs of the samples and this is one.

END OF HARVEST

We see men about town dressed in light shirts and with clean shaven faces and we know they have finished harvest. It is a very pleasant feeling to get all washed and clean and be permitted to stay that way although harvest is not nearly so dirty a job as it was fifty years ago.

We recall one young man who had sewed sacks on a stationary machine who remarked that it was almost worth working thru threshing just to feel the satisfaction of getting clean again. In these days of plentiful showers that wouldn't be the case.

On old threshing machines it was not always considered the part of wisdom to go to town at week's end. It was often a rough and expensive trip. Men who tried to save their money used to stay with the machine which meant begging a few gallons of water from the water buck for a sort of sponge bath which was barely enough to keep the skin from cracking.

Neither do we think a few days leisure is quite so enjoyable after the rather mild labors of modern harvest as in the days when a harvest day was longer and fraught with much more lifting and packing. Neither are harvests as long. They used to thresh forty to sixty days and that after a month of heading. No matter how stout and durable the harvest hand he could relish a rest after a seige like that.

It is better now, that is, if ease and comfort be the criteria of judging. But still these men in light shirts and a relaxed attitude in their muscles look extremely contented.

Oregon In History

August 17, 1887—The cornerstone of the new building of the State Agricultural College was laid, on the college farm near the city of Corvallis today, by the grand lodge of A. F. & A. M. of Oregon. Governor Pennoyer and Superintendent McElroy, of the state officers, and Judge Strahan of the Supreme Court, and a large number of distinguished citizens from other parts of the state were present. Hon. R. P. Earhart, as proxy for the Grand Master, conducted the ceremonies.

August 22, 1908—A central Oregon railroad seems assured, according to Governor George Chamberlain, who today returned from a conference with railroad magnate E. H. Harriman. "The only preliminary step to be taken is to fix definitely the route," said Governor Chamberlain, "and that will be done within the next few days." At present there is no indication whether the new railroad will run in an east-west direction, or from north to south, although it is thought that Harriman himself favors the latter. If the road is built in that direction it will run from the Columbia River to the California line and connect with the Southern Pacific at Weed.

August 23, 1893—Reports that certain Portland dairymen had purchased separators and were removing the cream from their milk before selling it were denounced as baseless today by Finlay McNeill, City Inspector of Food and Milk. "The dairymen of Portland are doing their very best to please their customers in supplying good milk," said Mr. McNeill, "And are not fools to give separated milk knowing well it would instantly be detected on every breakfast table." Mr. McNeill stated further that buttermakers used separators and gave the separated milk away for nothing, or used it to feed stock.

BONNIE F. MAY, Plaintiff
vs.
CLAUDE L. MAY, Defendant

By virtue of an execution, judgment order, decree and order of sale issued out of the above entitled Court in the above entitled cause, to me directed and dated the 16th day of July, 1959, upon a judgment rendered and entered in said Court on the 23rd day of July, 1956, the 7th day of November, 1957, the 17th day of November, 1958, and the 13th day of February, 1959, in favor of Bonnie F. May, Plaintiff and against Claude L. May for the sum of $150.00 per month, as and for the support of the minor children of said parties until further order of this Court; said payments to be made through the clerk of this Court semi-monthly on the 1st and 15th day of each month; the first such payment to be made on or before July 15, 1956, or the date of this Decree, whichever is later; and the further sum of $50.00 per month as support money for Plaintiff for a period of two (2) years from the date of this decree, said payments to commence on the 1st day of August, 1956, and continue to and including the 1st day of July, 1958, and said payments to be made through the Clerk of this Court; and the further sum of $250.00 attorney's fees, and the further sum of $50.00, attorney's fees, and the further sum of $50.00 attorney's fees, and the further sum of $68.68 costs, and the further sum of $4.75 costs and for the further sum of $4.75 costs and disbursements and the costs of and upon this writ commanding me to make sale of the following described real property situated in the County of Sherman, State of Oregon, to-wit:

Lot 1 and 10, Block 16, ORIGINAL TOWN, now City of Moro, Sherman County, Oregon.

Order determining amount Due on Decree and Judgment Filed July 16th, 1959, reads as follows: That there is now due, owing and unpaid on said decree and judgment the principal sum of $2,770.00 together with the further sum of $152.75 interest accrued to July 1, 1959, with interest on said principal balance at the rate of six percent per annum from July 1, 1959, until paid and the further sum of $150.00 Attorney's fees and $9.00 Court Costs.

Now Therefore, by virtue of said execution, judgment order, decree and order of sale and in compliance with the commands of said writ, I will, on Wednesday, the 16th day of September, at 2 o'clock P. M., at the front door of the County Court House in Moro, Sherman County, Oregon, sell at public auction (subject to redemption), to the highest bidder for cash in hand, all the right, title and interest which the within named defendant and each and all of them in the above entitled suit had on the 17th day of July, 1957, the date of the filing of the transcript of judgment herein, or since that date had in and to the above described property or any part thereof, to satisfy said execution, judgment order and decree, interest costs and accruing costs.

Dated August 11th, 1959.

Baking "cookies" for better roads

"Cookies" of asphalt paving are baked and frozen in our laboratories, so we can measure how highways wear in all types of weather.

The man is William H. Ellis, one of Standard's scientists who conduct many such tests to improve highway materials and construction methods. We actually build roads, subject them to crushing pressure, try out many paving mixes, work closely with highway engineers.

Our work benefits you both as a motorist and a taxpayer. Asphalt costs less than any other ... three miles of highway for the cost ... You also get roads that resist skids, cut down ... make lane markers easier to see ... roads which are smooth, quiet and comfortable.

Asphalt roads are ready for use within hours after ... cost less to maintain and can be even stronger and better after years of service.

By ... continuing research that brings you better ... at lower cost, the people at Standard ... serve you better.

... asphalt products are made and sold by ... American Bitumuls & Asphalt Company, a wholly-owned subsidi...
