New Telephone Exchange Starting

Pacific Telephone-Northwest will put a new dial telephone exchange in Sherman County into service at 12 noon, Saturday, July 16.

It is the Rufus exchange, according to Manager Cal Horn, and will serve some 50 customers at Rufus, Biggs, Dinty's Station, Flecks Orchard Camp, Maryhill Junction, Wigwam and the John Day dam site on the Oregon side of the Columbia River.

Telephone users in these communities have been served by 10 farmer line phones out of the company's Wasco exchange and 25 toll stations connected to telephone company switchboards at The Dalles.

Horn said present growth in the area, plus expected growth due to construction of the John Day dam, has made it necessary for the company to set up the new exchange.

To provide one, two and eight-party service for customers within the exchange boundaries, the company has spent an estimated $39,400, Horn stated.

Included in the project were construction and erection of a prefabricated metal building, installation of dial equipment in the building and placing new telephone cable, poles, anchors and terminals at Rufus. The building is located near the junction of Girkung canyon and Scott canyon roads.

With the change to the new service, customers in the communities involved will have new three-digit telephone numbers. The numbers are listed on a special two-page directory insert mailed to them this week.
