TV DEBATES

We think this nation is in a pitiful situation when it permits its most important election to be prostituted to the interests of an entertainment medium like television.

The sight of two men, featured pasty under brilliant light, glaring stolidly straight ahead at the little red light on a camera while answering major questions in a matter of two minutes is an experience that would send any believer of good government into insanity.

No one should be expected to determine his position on any major problem in two minutes, nor to explain it in that time. It is absurd; it is fantastically foolish; it is modern idiocy.

We do not see how any voter could be expected to judge any candidate by his reactions in such a situation and we are certain that we are making our most important period of decision into a mockery. Thankfully most lookers say that they are already tired of such an exhibition.

lem and states with more than average incomes will be paying for the schools in states which lack finances or ambition. It will cost Oregon money because Oregon is a comparatively high income state. It may help the south or it may cause the south to lay back and let the north help it out.

Very definitely it will not help education. Education has enough inefficiencies itself, enough serious problems. If these were to be combined and intermingled with the gross inefficiencies of the federal government there would be no improvement until the bane was removed.

There is, we think, no record of federal aid that brought improvement. Additional cost, additional bureaucracy, impossibility of change, yes, but improvement, No.

It could have a beneficial result in a backward way—by the encouragement of private schools which would be able to diversify, to experiment and to teach the more gifted child. Education already is too much guided from the top, even state-wide supervision has brought stultification. Heaven help us if we get federal supervision.

The extreme "liberal" looks at our good roads, our fancy automobiles, our wealth of gadgetry and even our fine fall weather and says, "Isn't government wonderful to give us all this?" The conservative looks over the same display and thinks how much more might have been done if it wasn't for the rake-off government takes.

He needs our support now. We can send him to congress as our representative if we work for his election. It is time that all of us, whether Democrats or Republicans, face up to the issues. It is time that we elected a man who will represent us. Study the issues, friends, and while studying them remember that it is agriculture and not labor unions that puts the food on our tables and the money in our pockets.

Sincerely yours,
Dr. Frank D. Reid

APPLING FOR SECRETARY

Howell Appling was appointed as secretary of state for Oregon when Mark Hatfield became governor. He was politically unknown. But he was manager and part owner of a farm machinery business that he had made a success and he displayed the same habits of efficiency in public office. Voters always long for a young man, honest and capable, who will dedicate himself to public jobs and conduct them in the same manner as private business is conducted which is almost invariably more efficient than public business. This Appling proved himself to be. It would be a serious mistake to let him go.

Perhaps the best reason for electing Appling is unsatisfactory record of his opponent, Monroe Sweetland. His first registration was as a socialist and all during the thirties he became more so by the year until his list of memberships in organizations with dubious connections grew until it was longer than that of any Oregonian. He is consistently on the spending side of any bill, always for bigger government, always for labor and recently has been expressing doubt about the American system itself.

FEDERAL AID TO EDUCATION

We have no idea how much this issue is going to affect the political race this fall, but it has been generally misunderstood and some solid thinking and sober talking needs to be done on the subject.

There is no doubt that there are places in the United States where there are inadequate schools, both buildings and instruction. Some of this inadequacy is the fault of the people who live there who do not care enough to provide the funds; some districts just do not have the resources to provide a school.

The problem is first one for the states and if every state made an effort the districts that are too poor could be provided for. But the states are trying to pass on the burden to the federal government. Now any aid program will tend to equalize facilities, teacher pay and what is referred to as opportunity for want of a more expressive word. That means that states that have solved their prob-

Helpful Hints

HOW TO MAKE YOUR HOUSEHOLD
GO FARTHER!

1. Heating a house without weather stripping or insulation is like trying to carry water in a leaky bucket. Weather stripping and insulation keep heat inside where it does you some good.

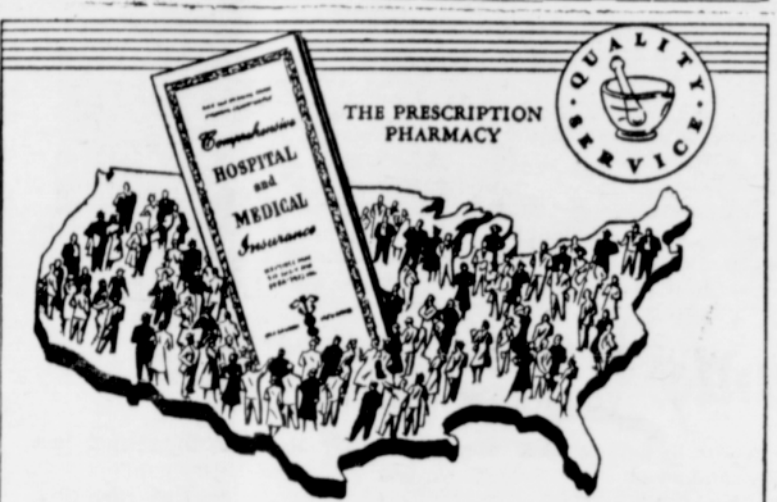

2. Save heat by pulling down window shades, or drawing drapes, at night because heat passes easily through window glass.

3. Plan your clothes drying so that you can do a full load each time in your electric dryer.

4. Clean the lint from your dryer often. Lint holds water and makes clothes harder to dry.

These are just a few of the ways you get your biggest value from dependable PP&L electric service. Use it often, use it efficiently. Live better electrically!

THE GREATEST MODERN MOVEMENT
Toward Improved Health

More than one-third of our nation's people voluntarily and freely pay for medical or hospital care in advance through cooperative insurance plans. This is probably the greatest voluntary movement toward improved health and welfare in the history of the world.

Every phase of this activity is laudable. The cooperation of industry and its employees, and the foresight of breadwinners to invest money in their families' health in advance of actual need, are evidence of progress. Active participation of the medical profession is evidence of its stature.

The desire for improved health, and the newly found personal pride and dignity of the individual are universal; and you may depend upon us, as upon your physician, in the achievement of these objectives for your family.
