HOW TO USE AMINO TRIAZOLE WEEDKILLER

...for Chemical Winter Fallow

UNTREATED AREA. Shows vigorous growth of cheatgrass and volunteer wheat.

Is cheatgrass making your fallow-cropping program harder work and more costly? Chemical winter fallow will help you stop cheatgrass growth and winter weed seed production.

American Cyanamid Company's Amino Triazole Weedkiller has just been accepted by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture for chemical winter fallow in grain stubble:

2 pounds of 50% Amino Triazole Weedkiller plus 2 pounds (acid equivalent) 2,4-D ester in 5 gals. water per acre by air or 10 gals. of water per acre with ground sprayer; to control cheatgrass, volunteer grains, and annual broadleaf weeds (tarweed, mustard, fanweed) sprouting in grain stubble. Spray from October to February. Spray only after rainfall has germinated most weed seeds, but before weeds reach 5-6 inches high. Single application only. Follow with spring and summer tillage to control weeds germinating in spring. Do not plant any crops until September following treatment.

See your supplier of Amino Triazole Weedkiller for further details. American Cyanamid Company, Agricultural Division, Los Angeles 54.

WHAT'S DOING

Maintaining phone lines

is a never ending job! To keep phone lines ready for your calls, men in Telephone Patrol planes fly along hundreds of miles of phone cable nearly every day. They're on the lookout for construction work or other hazards that might damage underground or overhead lines. They warn anyone on the ground working near cables by dropping notes or calling to them over the plane's loudspeaker system.

Other cable patrols on foot, in trucks and snow vehicles travel along phone lines to spot hazards before they cause trouble. It seems like a lot of work, but this is the surest way to keep your telephone service ready for you, whenever you need it.

Cultivating a "telephone farm" is the unusual project of some Bell Telephone Laboratories engineers. It's an experiment with new materials for underground telephone equipment — the "plants" they've buried are pieces of wire, cable, and metals. These will be dug up periodically to see which ones are in the best condition. The "telephone farm" will help our engineers find the best materials for a faster and less expensive way to put telephone equipment underground. And it will mean another new saving to help your telephone dollar go further.

Any housewife who has once enjoyed the convenience of a telephone on her bedside table is seldom willing to give it up. Besides saving steps, a bedroom phone lets you make calls with more privacy. Sleep's a little safer, too.

Today you can order for your bedside the beautiful new "Princess" phone. It's small, has a built-in night light, and the dial lights up for easy dialing.

Drop by or call your telephone business office in The Dalles to order a "Princess" extension phone for your bedroom. Pacific Telephone — Northwest
