FARM BILLS

Whatever happens to the farm bills in congress will not be known for some time although the feed bill is supposed to set the pattern. The proposal to let farm groups write their own ticket will not work but it is a political ploy worthy of a grandson of Honey Fitz who was a master at the art but who finally was caught at some tricks. It is designed to take the heat off the administration and put it on congress. That it is an abandonment of executive responsibility has not yet been publically noted, but will be.

The president has set a goal of raising the income of farmers while reducing the cost to government both of which are very desirable. So far the feed bill will cost the government more and perhaps give farmers more if they learn to play odds by taking government loans and buying feed grains on the market. Farmers have generally been too smart for government.

So far the administration has not given it out as a policy that government should get out of the farm business, perhaps, because it does not have sufficient background on the subject to realize that that is the only solution for both. However, the young man who visited both Freeman and Kennedy found a sort of agreement from both men when he told them to get out for the benefit of agriculture.

We cannot have any faith in government "aid" to agriculture on any but the most temporary kind. Branches of agriculture still free from government have a much better history of profit than the ones that are directed from Washington.

WHY BOTHER?

The Oregon state board of higher education has a problem that gets into the papers now and then. It has to do with fraternities. It seems that some one has told the board that the conduct of fraternities is some of its business and that it should not permit discrimination in membership thereof.

The usual complaint is that the majority is white, Protestant, Gentile, may not accept colored, Catholic, Jew, to join the living units. That is considered bad in some quarters. Now the minorities are setting up their own fraternities and can do their own kind of excluding—and probably will.

Inasmuch as the fraternities are largely social it seems that the members should be permitted to choose their own companions and we do not see that it should be any of the affair of the board of higher education inasmuch as that board has enough to do other wise. We doubt if any force applied to the board will cause any better relations between the groups which must be the start of any liberalization of the present policy.

Neither can we imagine anyone wanting to obtain membership in a social club by force. Such a one would surely be unacceptable. And we would like to know what chances the present majority will have to join the fraternities that may be established by the minorities.

STATE OF THE NATION

The other day we were soliloquizing about the days when we worked for a dollar a day and thought about the bill to make the minimum wage $1.25 an hour which would have been around $15 a day. Most workman now get from $3 to $5 an hour, all of which is to say that the cost of labor has gone up greatly. The price of the Sherman County Journal is twice what it was then, the cost of a loaf of bread about three times. The inflation is largely in the cost of labor and, naturally, the things that have a good deal of labor in manufacture.

The president would have us do something about housing saying that everyone should have a nice house with all the gadgets. That is a nice thought and friendly like. We will agree but would amend it by saying that everyone should be able to earn a nice house. The main reason is that labor costs are too high. Neither are we convinced that high wages is the main reason. The main reason is the restrictions put on labor by labor unions. A carpenter can't touch a piece of pipe, an electrician can't drive a nail, the unions set the pace and the inspectors, usually government employees who back up the unions bosses, enforce slowness.

The government takes so much money away from citizens they can hardly be expected to do much building or buying and what the government does is wasted in bureaucracy and meddlesome rules that handicap those who would do something. We need a campaign "U. S. go home" as in foreign lands.

REVOLUTIONS

We'd like to read a good history of the big revolutions of the world. We mean the social revolutions, not the political revolutions like the one in which the American colonies broke away from England. What we are talking about is the upheavals in which the have-nots challenged the haves with some success.

In modern times the French revolution and the Russian revolution qualify and it is likely that what we are going through now will be called a revolution by historians and perhaps called the black or colored revolution against the white race.

The pattern of revolutions is that the mass of people arise and throw the rascals out and then put their own leaders in power and submit to the same treatment they arose against. The French traded Louis XVI for Napoleon after some bloody months and the Russians traded Czar Nicholas for Stalin. Neither was a bargain. The blacks seem in the process of trading some English and Belgian administrators for some black ones who have been far worse.

Revolution seems to be a sort of virus that affects the human spirit about every so often and runs for years until it runs out leaving the patients lethargic and easily handled again. We doubt if it can be shown that revolutions have helped the cause of freedom, of human welfare or social status of any but the leaders who were shoved to the top.

Green Decorates Bridge Tables

Mrs. Haven's home was decorated with spring blossoms of jasmine and forsythia, and the napkins, tully cards, and other table decorations carried out a St. Patrick's day motif. Refreshments of white German cake, coffee and tea were served at the close of the afternoon. At the bridge table Mrs. Idah Everett, recently returned from a winter's sojourn in California, took the prize for high score while Mrs. Emma Dutton won the guest prize. Mrs. Harry Van Gilder was low scorer for the club. Other members present were Mrs. Walter Bruckert, Mrs. L. E. Kaseberg, Mrs. Ernest Shull and Mrs. Keith McDonald. Mrs. Art Smith was a guest.

Coloring Easter Eggs
Directions Given

With Easter just around the corner, here's a timely tip on coloring eggs from Janet D. Olsen county extension agent. Always use high quality, fresh eggs for cooking. The yolk will be well centered and the flavor mild. The modern method of cooking eggs is to place them in cool water, bring to a boil, and then reduce to a simmer. Simmer the eggs 15 minutes. Don't allow to boil, for this toughens the whites. Remove from heat at the end of the cooking time and immediately cool under cold running water. This prevents a green ring from forming. If you wish to color the eggs, add vinegar to the cooking water or wash carefully in a mild dishwashing detergent before cooking. This removes any film of grease and the shells take the dye more evenly.

Most people are able to talk freely to their physician about every aspect of their treatment—except one. The question, "How much is it going to cost?" and how payment is to be made, often leaves the frankest patient tongue-tied.

Many refrain from bringing up the subject out of a sincere respect for their doctor, supposing it somewhat unbecoming to talk to him about money. Many professional societies are now trying to clear up this misconception. For example, you may have noticed a significant plaque which hangs in thousands of physician's waiting rooms. It says: "To all my patients—I invite you to discuss frankly with me any questions regarding my services or fees. The best medical service is based on a friendly mutual understanding between doctor and patient."

Sometimes, of course, your doctor cannot tell you, in advance, precisely what a course of treatment or an operation is going to cost. But you will always find him willing to discuss the subject, and to tell you if he can. Today more than ever before in medical history, the bill your doctor sends you can represent one of the really big bargains of your life—in terms of health, happiness and peace of mind.—Reprinted from a copyrighted advertisement published by Parke, Davis & Company, Detroit 32, Michigan.
