

Moro Personals Food Drops In Percentage Expenses

Lt. and Mrs. Kenneth Hart and daughter left Tuesday morning for Fort Ord, California where he will be stationed until January working with new weapons. Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd McRae of Pendleton spent last week end here visiting their daughter, Mrs. Tommy Thompson and family. They took the girls home with them for a change of scene. Occasion of their visit was Cathy's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Woodcock are home again after ten days spent visiting their children.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruggles stopped in Moro Saturday evening while on their way to Bear Springs for the Sunday reunion of the Searcy family.

The county court in solemn conclave last Wednesday approved the budget as published earlier and bought a pick-up for the road department and another for the weed control county agent and also paid the bills as accumulated up to June 30.

Sherrie K. Fraser of Moro is listed on the straight A honor roll for spring term at Oregon State University. She will be a junior this fall in the school of humanities and social sciences.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Johnson and family are now in Kaneohe, Hawaii.

Mr. and Mrs. John DeMoss returned from Kah-Nee-Ta Hot Springs Wednesday and reports that the Warm Springs Indians have bought the springs and will do extensive remodeling this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Del Friedline are home again. Their vacation was interrupted by his illness from being attacked by a bug which he finally succeeded in getting rid of, although it reduced his weight 20 pounds to do so.

Mr. and Mrs. Collis Moore returned from Portland Wednesday after a day or two in the city where Collis reports the sidewalks curled up and the walls melted down.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Searcy and daughter of Salem came home with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pinkerton Sunday from the Searcy family reunion held that day at Bear Springs, to spend the night before going on to Wallowa lake the next day for a vacation trip.

Alex McCleod was here again Wednesday morning. Alex has been having bad luck with auto accidents, one that wrecked a car June 24 and another that scratched another Wednesday. But he still gets around.

E. R. Jackman stopped in Moro for a time Wednesday evening while on trips between two range tours, one at Warm Springs and one at Pendleton.

Wily Knighten jr. came up to Moro Wednesday. He is on vacation from Anchorage, Alaska where he is stationed with the FAA, inspecting equipment for safe plane handling.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Everett of western Washington visited with Mrs. Bullard and daughter, Florence over the Fourth and also stopped to see Mrs. Charles Adlard, (who is Mrs. Everett's sister) in The Dalles hospital. Mrs. Adlard has since gone to Milwaukie where Charles has learned to walk with a cane after long illness with a stroke.

Hot weather is a good excuse for inertia and there generally seems a willingness to excuse inertia for that excuse. The same applies to cold weather although there are more furnaces than air coolers. We do not know the custom in such things in Russia.

Families are spending a smaller share of their incomes on food today than they were shortly after World War II and getting more for their money, an Oregon State University specialist reports.

For many families, the grocery bill now takes only about a fifth of the take-home pay compared with a fourth shortly after the war, says Zelma Reigle, extension food marketing specialist.

And customers are getting more marketing services with their food money, she continues. These include processing, distribution, and transportation services that enable the shopper to select fresh produce from distant areas year around.

Today's food bill also includes more convenience, more built-in-maid service, ready mix, and heat and serve meals.

Although food prices have gone up in the last 10 years, the farmer receives a smaller share of the food dollar. Price rise is due to higher costs for wages, freight rates, fuel, equipment, taxes, advertising and all other items used in getting the food from farm to market. Processing, transportation and distributing costs added together take 61 cents of the food dollar. The farmer gets less than 40 cents—or a dime less than he got a decade ago.

Compared with other rising costs of living, food ranks as a good value, says the specialist. In the last 15 years, the nation's food bill rose 15 percent; housing costs rose 32 percent; transportation costs, 46 percent; medical care, 57 percent; and average take-home pay jumped 59 percent.

Miss Reigle says that the real cost of food can best be measured by what we get for our labor. Ten years ago an average hour's work bought 2.3 pounds of chuck roast; 1.8 dozen eggs, 6.5 quarts of milk, 9.6 loaves of bread or 24 pounds of potatoes. Today, one hour of work is worth 3.3 pounds of chuck roast, 3.6 dozen eggs, 8.1 quarts of milk, 10.1 loaves of bread, or 29 pounds of potatoes.

Accidents Not Bad Until June

Street and highway travel in Oregon so far this year is showing a steady increase with more than 3 billion miles traveled during the first five months of the year, the Department of Motor Vehicles has reported.

This exceeds travel last year for the same period by better than 191 million miles and the comparable 1959 period by more than 257 million miles.

At the same time, the department said the state's mileage death rate, based on the number of persons killed in each 100 million miles traveled, is up from last year's 4.6 to 5.4 for the January through May period.

For five months at least, the death rate is lower than for 1959 when a record traffic toll was set, but all that may be changed, the department said, when the 6 month death rate is computed. June this year saw an all-time high death toll of 55 recorded for that month. Unless mileage saw a correspondingly sharp increase it will in all likelihood shove the death rate above 1959, too.

The department computes mileage based on reports of gasoline gallonage sold each month.

Trace Fields To Celebrate Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Field hope to celebrate their belated 50th wedding anniversary next Sunday, July 16. It should have been in 50 years. The "before" and "after" pictures give some clew.

She will wear her wedding dress broken arm and all, and look as much like the wedding picture taken back in 1911. The celebration will be held at the Rufus Grange hall from two until five in and see what changes have been made in Trace and Nellie in 50 years. The "before" and "after" pictures give some clew.
