We first endure, then pity, then embrace."
refused to become a squaw man when once in the hands of Paiutes and Aunt Hester gave nothing but the sternest countenance toward any kind of sin, not even touching her lips to the sacramental wine.
They were terribly intolerant. There was nothing "liberal" about either, nor did they ever "endure, then pity, then embrace" any Indians or any sin. It is just as well they passed on to their undoubted reward when they did. Had they lived to see the day when nothing was good or bad it would have hastened their end.
Intolerant people were strong people with strong convictions, not ones to be pushed around or enticed by weak little compromises. If they didn't drink that was the end of it; if they thought Negroes were an inferior race they acted on that theory; if they thought it was wrong for the nation's rulers to clip the currency they said so. They didn't look for excuses if such beliefs were unpopular. They were not cowards.
Before the age of quibbling and compromising such people made a great country out of this one.

Mrs. Lee Kaseberg, who was bride last Saturday, Karen Holmgren, before her marriage.

FOREIGN AID BILL

Before congress passes the foreign aid bill it should take a good long look at it and see if some way to quit advertising our inefficiency could not be found.
Not that we are objecting to foreign aid. The richest nation in the world cannot be unmindful of the poverty of the others.
We apparently did help Europe, probably too much. Some nations there still lick their chops when they see the dollar sign which is a sign that charity has gone on long enough.

We must remember that subsidies help no one. Subsidies make people lazy and subservient if of long enough duration. Most foreigners we are worried about get food to eat or something they are used to. It may not be enough by our standards but a skinny little, old Indian about five feet two doesn't need the full 3000 calories a golf playing American gets. What foreign aid should be is teaching them how to produce so they could have better crops, ample transportation, suitable factories so they could develop their own way of life. Sending our surplus food may keep some foreigners alive but unless they learn to earn a living that isn't much help.

If we are going into South America to spread our money around to keep them from going communistic we will fail again as we have in Asia.

The best luck this nation ever had was to keep the government out of it entirely and let private business go in to buy and sell products, hire the natives and produce some goods both could use. Now that this country has gotten so scared it cannot or will not support its business men who go abroad with their money that may take extra nerve on the part of the company, but it worked better than anything else.

PRICE VOTE
We hope to always remember to refer to the annual vote set by the department as a price vote. It is that to wheat farmers who by this means vote to take the two dollars instead of the $1.20. On that basis it is not a hard decision to make although it is entirely different from what city folks think the farmer is voting on.

How farmers are ever going to get out from under the iron hand of government we have no idea. The case looks hopeless and more and more farmers are expressing dislike for the entire program which becomes more impossible with each congressional session.
The big wheat farm has been—and is—the victim of the law. The wheat market, where he was once important, has been pretty well taken over by small wheat growers who have fewer restrictions not being primarily in the wheat business at all. They grow wheat for the nation.
But big wheat growers are restricted in their acreage and handicapped by rules and regulations made to suit the little farmer, the mid-west or the bureaucracy. Now they can use 60 percent of their land for wheat, some more for barley, but less than last year, and still some must be diverted to other crops and in this country there are almost no other crops. We gather that many will turn to cattle which they can handle as they please, the cattlemen being wise enough to remain free.
It would certainly be a good piece of government if congress would make plans for a farmer election that was not rigged. One that gave farmers a chance to say whether they wanted this wheat program or none. Think of the bureaucrats they could take off the farmer's neck.

IN FRAISE OF INTOLERANCE
Great Uncle Jed didn't like Indians, couldn't find any good in 'em and spent his best years trying to rid the earth of them. His wife, the good Aunt Hester, (Hester the Good, she was called) was against sin and spent a good part of her time trying to eradicate it. She was not so fortunate as Uncle Jed for although she had as much help in her project as he in his, sin was tougher than Indians. When she died people were still sinning while most of the Indians had been neutralized.
The particular likes and dislikes of these two worthy ancestors are not important. The fact that they did not compromise with their beliefs is important. Uncle Jed, mindful of Alexander Pope's admonition about vice: "Vice is a monster of so frightful mien, As to be hated needs but to be seen; Yet seen too oft, familiar with her face,

Wasco News

by Pauline Broughton

An event of Saturday, Aug. 19, was the wedding of Karen Barbara Holmgren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Holmgren of Portland, to Lee Charles Kaseberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paulen Kaseberg, Wasco. The ceremony took place at St. Rita's Catholic church in Portland at 2 p. m. The Rev. Nicholas Norusis officiated at the double ring ceremony. The altar was banked with bouquets of white gladioli and stock, and alternate pews were tied with bows of white satin ribbon. Mrs. Kenneth Kirkpatrick of Portland was the soloist. She was accompanied by Mrs. Bridges, also of Portland.
The bride wore a floor length gown of white silk Swiss organza, with chapel train held by two white silk French roses. The gown was styled with a bouffant skirt and fitted bodice. The Sabrina neckline, of lace, was embroidered with seed pearls and sequins. Her shoulder length veil of white tulle was held by a band also embroidered in seed pearls and sequins. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Miss Martha Moore of Portland and Hermiston, a Sigma Kappa sorority sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her frock was in Azalea pink, with a bouffant skirt and fitted bodice. She wore a matching hat of dotted veiling, and carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink and white. Bridesmaids were the Misses Elizabeth Shaw of Redding, Calif., Judith Krogh of Eugene, and Alice Kaseberg of Wasco. Miss Shaw and Miss Krogh are sorority sisters of the bride, and Miss Kaseberg is a sister of the groom. They were gowned the same as the honor attendant, Terry Kaseberg, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Louis Miller, Sterling Gochnauer and Larry Thompson, all of Moro, and Pete Macnab of Wasco. The latter is an uncle of the groom.
Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church social hall for 150 guests. The room was decorated with white garlands and bells. Pink and white flowers centered the serving table. Mrs. Donald Hollaway of Eugene and Mrs. George Hauser of Portland served the wedding cake. Mrs. Larry Thompson of Moro presided at the punch bowl.

For her going away costume the bride chose a beige knit sheath with matching purse and shoes. With it she wore an orchid corsage. The young couple will spend a ten day honeymoon in Canada. After September 1, they will be at home at 763 1/2 East 17th, Eugene.
The bride is a graduate of the University of Oregon, where she was a member of Sigma Kappa, Phi Theta and Mortar Board. She taught last year in the Los Gatos, California, school, and will teach this year at Springfield. The groom will complete his senior year at the University of Oregon, beginning this fall.

Among the numerous out of town guests who attended the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Kaseberg of The Dalles, grandparents of the groom.
The members of the wedding party were guests at a rehearsal dinner preceding the wedding day. The dinner, at Aladdin restaurant in Lloyd's Center, was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Paulen Kaseberg, parents of the groom.
