

Moro Personals

Wily Knighten and his daughter Mrs. Jack Miller and her daughter Laurie, were here Wednesday for a visit to Moro while Mrs. Miller is visiting her parents at Heppner near her home in Seattle.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Edwards November 4, in The Dalles, a daughter.

William Niskanen of Bend, manager of Trailway stages, stopped in Moro Tuesday while on a business trip to Yakima.

The wire strapping crew is working every day to get the wire on the poles between DeMoss and a point in the northeast corner of the Turp Hill place south of Rutledge where a sub-station will be built.

Report is that Mrs. Leta Eslinger has improved greatly since she was first hospitalized with diabetes in Seattle and she expects to be back home by the first of the month.

Phil Gilman is home for a furlough from his camp in Montana about which he reports that it was down to zero before he left. Judge E. H. Howell was here Wednesday to observe the taking of some depositions by attorneys in some case that is due for an airing next month.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Fraser were attendants at the Oregon State-Washington State game at Corvallis Saturday but found it rather uninspiring. They also visited their daughter, Ronda at Eugene.

An east wind blew Monday and Tuesday and while the sun shone they were not nice days but since then the wind has changed and the sun continues to make some very pleasant November weather—although dry.

Lloyd Johnson came home from a week in a hospital last Friday and is again at work in the post-office.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bernards and children drove to Yamhill County last Friday and returned Monday, going on some business and to visit relatives.

The condition of Virgil Cushman has much improved and he will be out of the hospital soon.

Oregon Land Values Moving Higher Against Trend

Oregon farm land values continue to move higher, and at a faster pace than the average for the rest of the country, according to Mrs. Elvera Horrell, extension agricultural economist at OSU.

After showing signs of weakness last fall, farm land values shot up sharply this spring and continued the trend into summer. By mid-year, land values in Oregon were 5 per cent higher than a year earlier and at the highest point on record, Mrs. Horrell noted, basing her comments on U. S. Department of Agriculture reports and other information.

Only 19 states showed an increase of 5 per cent or more from July 1, 1960 to July 1, 1961. These included Oregon, California, Utah, Arizona, Louisiana, Alabama, and Missouri, each with a 5 per cent rise; Maryland and Texas, each up 6 per cent and Florida up 10 per cent. The average for the nation during that period, excluding Alaska and Hawaii, was a 2 per cent increase in farm land values.

Types of sellers and buyers remained the same as previous years, with active farmers making two-thirds of all purchases. Farmers were also at the top of the list as sellers, with nearly two fifths of all sellers 60 years of age or older.

Much of the land is being purchased to add to existing farms. Mrs. Horrell said, with about half of the purchases last year for this purpose. Ten years ago, only a fourth was for farm enlargement. The change has been brought about largely because of increased technology—more land needed for efficient use of modern machinery.

Acres bought tend to be smaller than complete farm units and are often crop or pasture land to complement the class of land the farmer already has, she noted. Prices paid for such land appears to set the general level of prices for all land within a community.

As in other years, two thirds of all sales during the year involved some credit, with a third of the purchase price the average down payment. Sellers continue to be the chief source of credit, with the installment land contract the major credit instrument.

Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Thomas Joe and Dan, drove to Madras Saturday afternoon to watch the district 7-A2 football playoff between Madras and Vale. Madras defeated Vale 36-6.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Skiles and children Susan and Shawn left Friday night for Seattle to attend the wedding Saturday of a cousin of Mr. Skiles. They stopped in Portland and spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Skiles, who then accompanied the younger couple on to Seattle. Before returning home, the group drove out to the site of the Seattle World's Fair, which is scheduled to open in that city in April.

Mrs. Pauline Kaseberg, state president of the U of O Mother's Club, attended a meeting held in Portland last Thursday. Mrs. Kaseberg was accompanied by Mrs. Wayne Harn, president of The Dalles Mother's Club, and Mrs. Barrye Donald, vice-president of this district in the state organization.

The D. A. Kaseberg home was the scene of a birthday party on Saturday when Lois Ann Kaseberg and Stephanie Barnett were hostesses for the affair which honored Philip Jones. The rooms were decorated to carry out a Thanksgiving motif, and games and music were enjoyed by the young guests. After the guest of honor had opened his gifts, the hostesses served birthday cake as refreshments. Among those present were the Misses Nina Rhinehart, Christine Hicks, Jane Macnab and Lee Kaseberg; and, in addition to the honoree, Albert Dorfmaier, Maurice Root, Sandy Spencer and Dick Macnab. Mrs. W. R. Jones were also present.

Sunday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Broughton received a telephone call from their son, telling of the death of his wife's father in a traffic accident near Rogers, Arkansas on Friday evening.
