KEEP FORGETTING TO PHONE THE FOLKS?

HERE'S HELP: Below you'll see a gen-u-ine, artist-drawn, jim-dandy, authentic Clear Conscience Calendar for 1962, with inappropriate notes in the margins. Cut it out and paste it in your phone book. It'll keep you from forgetting to remember. (As your folks will tell you, a long distance call is still the best way to keep in touch. It's easier than a letter, more personal than a present.) Call them long distance—soon.

New Year's greetings are in order. (But don't call too early or while the Bowl games are on.)

Alexander Graham Bell's birthday. (You don't care but we do.) Use his little invention to brighten Dad's life.

The Seattle World's Fair starts April 21, one month from today. Invite your folks to the Northwest to take in the Fair, heigh-ho.

Mother's Day. Call early (like the day before) and avoid the rush. She'll remember that you didn't forget.

Only a "punk" would fizzle out on his folks today. (Your Pop will get a bang out of a call.)

St. Swithin's Day. Or maybe it's their wedding anniversary. Have you ever thanked them properly?

Labor Day. Dad's probably got the day off, too. Cement the family ties with a cheerful, newsy phone call.

Thanksgiving. A long distance call is still the next best thing to being there. (You don't have to eat as much either.)

Ground Hog Day. Shadow or not, call Mom. It may be a long winter.

Valentine's Day. Candy is dandy, but long distance is quicker.

April Fool's. No joke, happiness is catching. Surprise her with a guess-who call.

Easter. Have a family reunion by phone—you don't have to cook or clean-up afterwards.

King Kamahameha Day. Or maybe it's Mom's birthday. Call anyway—she'll love you for it. Aloha!

Father's Day. Betcha' he'd much rather talk to his grandchildren than unwrap another polka-dot necktie.

Bennington Battle Day. Very big in Vermont and about the only thing that happens in August anyway. Vacation by phone.

Halloween. Don't be the skeleton in your family closet. Call your Mother—you'll both get a thrill out of it.

Pre-Christmas. Call two or three days ahead—they'll appreciate your thoughtfulness. (Send a present though—they're human.)

P.S. TO MOM
AND/OR DAD

Sure they love you. But children are busy nowadays. If they haven't been in touch lately, send 'em this Clear Conscience Calendar. Circle your birthday and a few other pertinent dates. They'll get the message. (If you have 10 children, call us and we'll send you 9 more calendars.)
