People's Column

To The Editor:

I read your editorial OF SCHOOLS in last week's Journal with considerable interest, including your conjecture as to what went on at the annual convention of the Oregon State Teacher's Association, the professional teacher's organization to which most of the teachers of the county belong.

Inasmuch as I had a small part in the arrangement of the program and attended the two and one-half days' sessions, I should like to give a brief account of what did happen at the convention.

Both Thursday and Friday mornings were given over to general sessions. On Thursday morning we heard an address by the former president of Sarah Lawrence College, Dr. Harold Taylor, now of New York on the Subject, "Education and the Cold War." He gave some challenging statements of the vital role teachers should play in this "cold war" period.

He was followed by Dr. Eunice Hilton of Denver, Colorado, on the subject "The Fine Art of Discipline." Dr. Hilton presented some 'down to earth' techniques that teachers might use in handling discipline problems in the classroom.

On Friday the main address was given by Norman Cousins of New York on the title: "Education and our Future Foreign Policy." He gave a resume of the "cold war", including the Berlin situation, and indicated the place that United Nations has taken and should take. He indicated, also that it was not a question as to whether or not either Russia or the United States had sufficient bombs and nuclear weapons to destroy each other, but rather it was a matter of whether or not one or the other nation had seven times enough or twenty times enough to destroy the other.

On Friday, there was also an address by Ewald Turner of Pendleton, President of the National Education Association, stressing the need for vital teaching in the schools of the United States, and of attracting our top young folk into the teaching profession.

The afternoons were given over to the some twenty-five departments of the Association, such as the Geography Council, the Business Education Association, the Department of Classroom Teachers, the County School Superintendent's Association, the Journalism Department, the Library Department, The Geography Departments, etc.

On Thursday I attended the Geography Council session. The program was given by Dr. Craig Duncan, Senior Lecturer in Geography from the University of Queensland on the subject:" A Geographer Looks at Australia Today." His presentation included both slides and discussion.

On Friday, I attended the County School Superintendents' Association dinner, which included a short discussion as to what further services the county school office should be giving. Following this, I attended a Legislative Work shop, and listened to presentations from the following:

Nancy Kirkpatrick, Chairman, Interim Committee on Education.

State Representative George Layman of the Constitional Revision Committee.

State Senator Alfred Corbett, Chairman, Legislative Fiscal Committee.

Representative George Annala on Reapportionment.

George Baldwin, Comptroller of the Portland Public Schools, and Chairman of the sub-Committee on the Local Budget Law.

Dr. Roy Lieuallen, chancellor of the Oregon System of Higher Education.

Dr. Leon Minear, State Superintendent of Public Intruction.

Dr. Howard Cherry, president, Oregon School Boards Association

Mrs. James King, president, Oregon Congress of Parents and Teachers

It is obvious, of course, that I could not attend the sessions of all of the twenty-five departments. In looking over the program, I notice such topics as:

"What Industry Expects From High School Graduates" by a panel from Portland business and industry. "Demonstration of Effective Methods of Teaching Speech"; "Library Services in the Public Schools"; "What Research has to Say about Spelling."

The convention was entertained by the Emery Clay Novelty Dancers, and by the All State Orchestra. The Vancouver "Columbian-Aires entertained at the Banquet, followed by an address from Dr. Flemming, president of the University of Oregon.

Although as a general policy, I do not write "letters to the editor" I should like to make this exception to let the public know that the Oregon State Teachers' Association considers not only the welfare of the teacher, but first and foremost a better education for the boys and girls of the State, with the greater part of convention time being devoted to the teaching process.

GIRLS VISIT MARYLHURST

Kay Macnab and Manya Neal of Moro were among 141 senior girls from 49 high schools who were guests at Marylhurst college for the March Maryl-whirl weekend. Members of the Associated Students of Marylhurst college gave their visitors a preview of campus life, with emphasis on the academic opportunities available. A lively program of entertainment was also provided, including mixers and a talent show.
