CHANDLER'S OUR CHOICE SAYS THE OREGONIAN

Perhaps you read The Oregonian editorial of October 18, which analyzed the two candidates for U.S. Representative here. About Bob Chandler the editors observed, "He is thoroughly acquainted with reclamation, farm, business and other problems of his district, as well as having a sound knowledge of national and world affairs." The incumbent was characterized as "... revealing little independence of thought, and without noticeable distinction in Congress." Small wonder The Oregonian concluded "... we believe Oregon would be better served by the election of Bob Chandler ..."
