

The Oregon assembly, to meet in Salem next Monday, if it will, may be known as a big improvement on its immediate predecessor—unless it is so there will be some years intervening in Oregon between the present and the next "republican success."

If Uncle Sam keeps up his gait he will soon have his reputation established as The Great International Free Doctor and may fall into a fight with some other nation whose corrus may have been powdered beneath Brother Jonathans' great toe in the most unsuspecting manner.

The city of Ellensburg has been ordered by the court to make a special tax levy of four mills a year for four years to pay the amount of the judgment in the Lorence case, wherein a verdict for damages against the city was rendered because of an accident resulting from a defective sidewalk. The judgment now amounts to about $10,000.

There is going to be a war on department stores all over the United States. Even in Portland there is a big kick against them by both the owners of other buildings and retail dealers. Meyer & Frank are going to put up a building for a department store in which will be sold everything from a tooth pick to a threshing machine. Meals will be served, wines, liquors and cigars sold and everything that is sold anywhere regardless of size or value. It will have the effect of lowering rents on other streets and knocking out small dealers.

The Dalles land office officials are instructed by the general land office not to accept filings on odd sections within the limits of the forfeited railroad grants as the same have been withdrawn from settlement pending action by congress. The OBSERVER never indulges in sensational speculation about things it knows nothing of, but this appears to indicate that some measure will be adopted whereby the rights of settlers who have made application to purchase these lands may be protected. Possibly they will be allowed preferred rights in the matter of entry.

Ed. H. Pierce, an old time seiner on the lower Columbia, while on a visit to his boyhood home in Massachusetts last fall, the first in 24 years, visited the Merrimac fisheries where Commissioner Brice is hatching 37 million salmon eggs from the Pacific coast. Ed. says the men who has once enjoyed the keen delight of sitting on a cracker box and watching the beauties of the Columbia river twilight closing in, after having just made a good haul of the seine, has no business in the "effete" east. He must be either a returned missionary or an invalid going home to die to stand the change.

The women's rescue league, of New York has turned against Dr. Parkhurst. At a recent meeting they gave him something more than a roast. It was the most frightful invective on record. The ladies composing the league denounced "one Charles H. Parkhurst" as having done more harm to society than he can ever atone for during the period of his natural life. They speak of him as a "so-called reformer," and they state that his attitude toward the disreputable women of the city is heartless, cruel, a disgrace to the pulpit and to christianity as well. They declare that in their opinion the state of the city is worse than ever before. It will be interesting to watch Parkhurst and see whether he has nerve enough to meet this kind of an adversary. It would not be surprising if he flew the arena.

The part played by the Bank of Spain in floating the late loan has placed that institution in a very awkward position. For, in addition to the immense sums it has furnished to the government itself, it has advanced one way and another nearly $50,000,000 to people who subscribed for the loan. The bank may therefore be said to have found the larger portion of the money subscribed. Besides this, the bank is a creditor to the government, under various heads to the extent of more than $250,000,000. Inasmuch as the capital fully paid up of the bank, together with its reserve fund, only amounts to $30,000,000, it will readily be seen that the strain to which this, the leading financial institution in Spain, is being subjected is tremendous and should be continued much longer before disaster ensues. There is, therefore, little doubt that the Spanish ministry would welcome any settlement of the Cuban question which would not result in Spain's debt being

DRIFT OF THE NEWS

It is a matter of very grave importance to know what will be done with 300,000 head of sheep in this and adjoining counties next spring if a few cranks are permitted to continue their annoyances and drive this industry to the death for want of wild grasses going to waste, simply accumulating food for flames to destroy the timber of the entire region from the Columbia river to the California line a strip 30 miles wide, in a conflagration mightier than that of years ago which swept the mountains of Oregon from the Cowitz to the Coquille before there were sheep to eat the grass or herders to tend the flocks. It had enough to have these "forestry" devils to fight, without cattle devils and sheep devils, and THE OBSERVER would advise that the latter drop their insane quarreling and mutually thrash their common enemy.

An agent of the Cascades forest reservation cranks was up at Antelope Christmas week adding insults to injury by offering some Home Comfort Range promises as a compromise to the stockmen for a summer range in the mountains already acquired by right of the public domain. To the deuce with those "forestry" timber sneaks. Kick them out and call for the question before the Union. Yield now and your cause is gone forever.

It is not likely that Mr. Bryan will ever become as obscure as the present vicepresident of the United States. By reference to a political handbook it is found that he was a vicepresident who signs himself Adlai E. Stevenson. He comes from the same state—not from Skamania, Wash. Ex Queen Lil is in Boston where she will probably remain until Mr. Cleveland's term expires when she will be in a position to condescend with him as a ruler out of a job.

Prosperity can never be legislated into a country but it may be legislated out of in very short order.

Dr. J. W. Vogel oculist, leaves a very favorable impression of his abilities wherever he goes. He will visit Sherman county again next spring, and it will be well for any person in need of his services to wait for his return or address him in Portland. Nothing in the world can take the place one's eye sight, or restore it after it has been permanently impaired. The wise thing, then, is to take care of the precious gift; by wearing proper glasses, preserve that which all the wealth of the Indies cannot buy. Correctly fitted glasses cost no more than ill-fitting ones, provided you get them at the right place.

THE ELGIN MARBLES.

The Question of their Restoration One of Artistic Expediency. Every year or so it is rumored in Athens that we are going to send these stolen treasures back. England is the only nation in the world which has ever been known to surrender valuable territory untraded and simply on sentimental grounds, says Rickford Smith in "Greece Under King George." If England gave up the Ionian Islands, they argue, would several millions sterling, why should they not give back the marbles which, if put up to auction in lots, would hardly fetch a million?

Capt. Grant, writing in 1850, said that it was reported that the king of Bavaria, who was a great Philhellene, had expressed his intention of making his Glyptothek at Munich disgorge the Aiginian marbles, and restoring them to Greece. He rightly thought it problematical, and they are, of course, still at Munich. Oddly enough, the people who abuse us most for having robbed the Parthenon were several nations, the French, who were done more of that kind of thing than any nation since the Romans.

This occurred to Chateaubriand, who confessed to a certain amount of work at spoliation himself, and he attempted to contrast our thefts with those of his compatriots; his first distinction that they did not pull down to take away is plausible, but it is not a work at spoliation, he here places they left behind them in Italy were quite as great eyesores, and the precious prey did not stand in so great need of protection; his second distinction is that the case of the glory of France required it, smells too much of vanity for us to have anything to do with it.

A STORY OF TENNYSON. How He Shocked the Jingoes of London in Reading "The Revenge." A capital story, which is quite authentic, is told about the late laureate and his youthful poem "The Revenge." It was first published in the Nineteenth Century in 1878 or 1879. On the eve of its publication Tennyson invited between thirty and forty of his most intimate friends to his study in Easton square, in order that he might recite this patriotic piece to them. It is well known that Lord Tennyson was an excellent man of business. Had he written "Paradise Lost" he would have been both very hungry and very cold before accepting ten pounds sterling for the copyright. A letter of his in existence which, after offering the right to Tennyson, was for a certain price, ends with a declaration that, whether the publisher accepts his offer or not (Lord Tennyson would not accept "a blessed penny" less), he would not be bound to accept any other offer.

We do nothing for nothing for nobody here. In "The Revenge" there is an "Amie" of Lord Loughton there is an amusing letter from the late laureate, which compares the writing of poetry for nothing to the milking of the goats. When the poet of "The Revenge" in Easton square took place, there was much jingo feeling about in fashionable society in London, and not a few infected persons were among the select auditors. As the poet proceeded in his rich and vigorous diction rendered all the more attractive by his Lincolnshire accent, the favored few hung upon his words. When he reached the last line:

And the whole was plumed and fell on the shattered navy of Spain. And the life hereafter went down to the lost evermore in the main. The feelings of all present were strung up into excitement and enthusiasm, when, to the amazement of all, the laureate added, without the slightest pause, and without the least change of tone in his voice, "and the beggars only gave me three hundred pounds sterling for it, when it was worth at least five hundred pounds sterling or more."

"A touching incident happened in my town the other day," said a resident of Piqua, O., to a reporter of the St. Louis Star-Kingdom, "and it was very strange. The instant and fidelity of a dog. A neighbor of mine was the owner of a handsome Newfoundland, which he had reared from a puppy, and to which he was much attached. The dog returned his owner's affection, and was extremely fond of following him to his day's work. The master did not encourage this, but sometimes the Newfoundland would creep along stealthily in the rear until he was too far from home to be sent back, and then would come to the front with every sign of delight in his own cleverness. One morning about three weeks ago he had followed his way to a house where his master was at work upon the roof. To keep the dog from straying away the man put down his coat and dinner pail and said: 'There, old fellow, you follow me without leave, and now you may stay and watch my things.' The dog lay down as he was directed and the master went to his work. In the course of the forenoon the dog fell from a scaffold and was killed. His body was carried to his home, where his wife was lying ill, but no one could induce the dog to leave his post beside the cot and dinner pail. For two days he remained at that spot, and when he gnashed his teeth whenever an attempt was made to remove the things which he had been left in charge. At the end of that time the wife of the dead man was retained at a resort near the harbor, and the dog would obey her little son, a boy of two and one-half years, just old enough to talk plainly. The boy was taken to the place, and, moved by the loss of his mother, he went to the front of the moment, ran to the dog, put his arms around his shaggy neck, and burst into tears. The dog seemed to understand that this was no ordinary bit of weeping. He licked the child's hair soothingly, and when he had looked up at his father's coat and pail the faithful creature followed subsimulacra of his dead mother. He recognized the little one now as his mother."
