The sultan is another who does not care to bother about the consent of any other nation on earth.

Almost any convention of any kind of people could go to Chicago, New York or most any other eastern city nowadays and be assurred of a warm welcome.

If Corbett ever shifts to the job of umpire in one of those baseball games in which he now participates, it is reasonable to believe that it will be a quiet and placid game, from a kicking point of view.

American butter, under recent efforts to find a new market abroad is finding ready sale in London. A single firm in that city has just placed an order with the Iowa state agricultural college for all its butter which amounts to about 800 pounds daily.

The managers of one of the race tracks near Chicago announce that, during the hot spell, there is always a breeze at its grounds. It has been noticed that persons who go out frequently to see about it often have trouble in raising the wind for some weeks after.

The battleship Oregon has received orders to go to Hawaii and relieve the Philadelphia and Marion now stationed there. Uncle Sam thought a stronger force should be there as a new kind of California soothing syrup for Japan.

While the presence of several months' supply of bonded goods in the warehouses of the country will largely reduce the earnings of the new tariff law for the first few months of its existence, Chairman Dingley expresses the belief that the new law will supply ample revenue after this stock of "anticipatory imports" is disposed of.

There is a limit beyond which wages cannot be reduced and the country survive. That limit is the wage that will enable an economical and industrious man to feed, clothe and school his children, and that limit was passed long ago in the case of the coal miner. There is a common ground on which the two things indispensible to each other, capital and labor, should meet but which the former sometimes fails to either understand or believe.

If the statement recently made by Editor Klett of the Argentine Republic in his speech in the Cincinnati chamber of commerce is a sample of the arguments upon which foreign countries base their protests against the tariff bill now in conference, these protests will be of little avail. Mr. Klett's statements have been analyzed and are found to be grossly inaccurate. His statement indicating that Argentine wools were being for the first time placed on the dutiable list is found to be untrue, while the figures which he quotes with reference to the balance of trade between the United States and the Argentine are entirely dissimilar from those of our treasury department. An examination of the Argentine tariff shows also that his statements with reference to the admission of our products into his country free of duty are inaccurate and misleading.

The tariff discussion in the senate is all over. Right royally did the republican members stand by the people and settle the vexed question by a majority of 10. An analysis of the vote shows that the affirmative was cast by 35 republicans, two silver republicans Jones of Nevada and Mantle, and one democrat McEnery. The negative vote was cast by 25 democrats, two populists Harris of Kansas and Turner, and one silver repuulican, Cannon. Eight republicans were paired for the bill and eight democrats against it. The first named would have voted for the bill and the last named against it: Aldrich and Murphy, Frye and Gorman Chandler and McLaurin, Gear and Smith, Thurston and Allen, Hoar and Harris of Tennessee, Wolcott and George, Hansbrough and Daniel. The senators present and not voting were: Allen, Butler, Heitfeld, Kyle and Stewart, populists, and Teller and Pettigrew, silver republicans. The vote in detail was as follows:

AYES, 38.

Allison	Hanna	Platt, Connecticut
Baker	Hawley	Platt, New York
Burrows	Jones, Nevada	Pritchard
Carter	Lodge	Proctor
Clark	McBride	Quay
Cullom	McEnery	Sewall
Davis	McMillan	Shoup
Deboe	Mantle	Spooner
Elkins	Mason	Warren
Fairbanks	Morrill	Wellington
Foraker	Nelson	Wetmore
Gallinger	Penrose	Wilson
Hale	Perkins

NOES, 28.

Bacon	Harris, Kansas	Pettus
Bate	Jones, Arkans	Rawlins
Berry	Kenney	Roach
Caffery	Lindsay	Turner
Cannon	Mallory	Turpie
Chilton	Martin	Vest
Clay	Mills	Walthall
Cockrell	Mitchell	White
Faulkner	Morgan
Gray	Pasco

Following the passage of the bill a resolution was agreed to, asking the house for a conference and Senators Allison, Aldrich, Platt of Connecticut, Burrows, Jones of Nevada, Vest, Jones of Arkansas and White were named as conferees on the part of the senate.

If the latest reports from Cuba are founded on accurate information the insurgents have been quietly advancing toward Havanna, their movements being so far successful that two insurgent columns are already in the province of Matanzas, while Gen. Gomez himself with the main body remains in Santa Clara province ready to join the advance whenever the time shall seem propitious. The best reason for placing some confidence in the report is the fact that Gen. Weyler himself has issued orders massing troops in Matanzas and thereby protecting Havana from any sudden attack which the insurgents might attempt. His latest order calls almost all of the Spanish forces out of Pinar del Rio, leaving that province practically open to the insurgents. This means that the seat of conflict has been drawn considerably closer to Havana the insurgents' objective point.

Secretary Gage appears to be a very level headed business man with a wide range of information and well educated in the school of experience. In his suggestion to Senator Allison that a tax of one cent a pound be placed on all refined sugar made from stock imported prior to the passage of the pending tariff bill Secretary Gage has placed himself in direct antagonism to the sugar trust. He objects to this organization reaping an unearned profit of from $12,000,000 to $16,000,000 on enormous quantities of raw sugar imported in anticipation of the new tariff bill.

The farmers are, after all, the foundation on which the business of the country rests. When the prices of his products fall the whole country feels it. With small prices he has nothing with which to buy the products of eastern factories. And here is where the fatal short-sightedness of the great manufacturing and mining companies shows itself. When their laborers are so illy paid they cannot buy the products of the farms, farm produce falls and the companies' customers, the American farmers, being deprived of money cannot buy.

The stock exchange of New York Chicago, and other great cities are in quite a flurry over the fact that a clause was inserted in the new tariff bill proposing to levy a tax of two cents per share on all purchases of stock of a par value of $100 or less and also a stamp tax upon all stocks issued, except by building associations and organizations of a similar character. This proposition, it is believed, will add an average of a million dollars a month to the income of the government.

A remarkable law aimed at foreign immigration went into effect in Pennsylvania July 1st. It imposes a tax of three cents a day on all employed unnaturalized foreigners. The tax is to be collected from the wages of this class, beginning July 1st. The bill will put about $100,000 a year into the treasuries of the various counties of the state. One-half goes to the school fund on the basis of the number of schools and the balance to the general expenses of the counties.

CHINESE MAFIAS.

An Organization of Assassins That the Law Is Powerless to Suppress.

There is quite a striking analogy between the Italian Mafia, as it is commonly understood, and the Chinese Tong, or organization of cutthroats, murderers and highbinders in this city, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The chief point of difference is that the subdivisions of the Mafia are not at constant war with each other, while the Tongs have deadly feuds continually on foot, and generally select their victims from among their rivals.

The question of these organizations of assassins in the heart of a civilized community like ours has grown to be a serious one. We know, in a general way that each Tong is bound together by oaths which its members dare not break; that its purpose is crime of the deepest dye; that it shelters its members by every artifice which Chinese cunning can devise, and that it sets at defiance the laws of the land; but here our knowledge on the subject ends. We do not know the motives which underlie the frequent murders, nor do we seem to know how to break up these Tongs or put an end to their career of crime.

The suggestion has been made, and it is worth considering, that an indictment for criminal conspiracy would lie against an entire Tong or society whose members were known or believed to be guilty of murder. So far as we can know anything about the secret workings of these organizations there is ample reason to believe that the murders are committed after full discussion and the murderer selected by his society and instructed as to how and when he shall do his deadly work. If this be true there is certainly a criminal conspiracy preceding every one of these highbinder murders, and the whole society is liable to indictment.

Such a wholesale attack upon these secret societies would do much to break them up. As it is now they care very little if one of their number happens to fall into the clutches of the law. They have plenty of assassins left, and one more or less makes no difference to the Tong. If, however, the whole Tong were indicted the Chinese would believe that the officers of the law were in earnest and it would work a change in their system of getting rid of those who were inimical to them.

An Inquisitive Cat.

An American woman who has been living for some months in a German family in Berlin saw the practical working of one of the young emperor's reforms. It dates back two or three years and smacks strongly of Bellamyism. Every servant keeps a little book, to which every week the mistress employing her must contribute a five-cent stamp provided by the government for that sole purpose. The book becomes a reference from one place to another, its record showing the periods of time spent in a place and time of being in service. In case of sickness or when age incapacitates a servant from duty the government redeems the stamps contained in the book, whose contents are really a tax upon one class to assist in the maintenance of another less fortunate. The scheme is said to be regarded with favor on both sides, the employer as well as the employed.

A Russian Doctor.

A Russian journal reports an interesting case of a philanthropic physician. Visiting the patients of his district, the doctor found that in many instances their sickness was caused by hunger. To the most needy he prescribed "six pounds of pure rye flour in doses of two pounds a day." He ordered his patient to get the medicine at the drug store of the nearest village, where it would be issued free of charge every day. The good doctor made arrangements with the druggist to supply the flour at his expense. In this way his patients will be kept from starvation the whole winter.

AFTER A BARGAIN.

She Sold One Cape, Bought Another and Had Ten Dollars Left.

The following incident, related by the Minneapolis Times, would tend to show the susceptibility of the feminine mind in catching on to the "genuine bargains" of special sale days.

The other day a pretty, well-dressed little woman, wearing a soft brown marten cape, rushed into one of the leading fur stores on Nicollet avenue and hurriedly inquired for the proprietor. Having found him, she gracefully removed the cape from her shoulders and blandly asked him what he would give for it.

"Why," said the old gentleman, somewhat taken aback by this unusual onslaught, "such dealings as this are not quite in line with our way of doing business."

"I paid sixty-five dollars for it only last month," she continued in a flutter. "Will you give me thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents for it?" in a way that left the gentleman rather ill at ease. With best grace possible, as he saw there was no other way out of it, he called his cashier and instructed him to pay the money and offered to send for the garment.

"No," she said, her eyes brightening as she received the thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents. "I want you to bring me in a hurry that brown marten cape in your window marked down to twenty-seven dollars and fifty cents. I have passed and repassed that window, and the fact of so wonderful a bargain has haunted me until I felt that I must have it at any cost. This leaves me ten dollars, which I intend to spend at the special sale of trimmed hats this afternoon."

This remarkable specimen of womanly frankness left the store in ecstasy, also leaving the hearts of the clerks in a flutter.

MODERN WHALING.

Improved Implements Used in That Pursuit.

The shoulder gun which fires a bomb from a bunderbuss of large bore has been almost entirely superseded by the Pierce darting bomb lance, invented by Capt. Eben Pierce, of New Bedford, who has made many voyages in command of a whaler. This darting gun, says the Providence Journal, which is used almost exclusively by the Arctic fleet, is a device used close by the side of the whale, which can be hurled successfully for only nine or ten feet. It carries a lance harpoon having a double toggle, which spreads at right angles with the shaft a distance of six inches, and which once firmly embedded through the blubber cannot be pulled out. A bomb lance is also set in a brass barrel attached to the same shaft as the harpoon. The iron strikes first, and after penetrating a distance of about seventeen inches, or through the blubber, a projecting wire cut to the proper length explodes a Winchester cartridge, which shoots a bomb loaded with tonite into the vitals of the whale. With a the bomb is a fuse cut to burn five or six seconds. The tonite is a form of dynamite which can safely be burned in the palm of the hand, but when confined has an explosive force ten times as great as that of ordinary gunpowder. The bombs are very deadly, sometimes killing a whale outright. Fragments of the shells have been taken from all parts of the whale, from the point just behind the head, where it is usually fired, to the tail.

THE LAST CAR.

It Has Come to Be Regarded as Unlucky In New York.

The last car on trains going out of the Grand Central station on the Hudson River and New York & Harlem railroads is not as popular as it was before the accidents of last week, says the New York Times. For some reason—why, no one attempts to explain—the last car had always been filled up first with passengers starting for their homes in the early evening. Passengers would crowd into it and insist on seats in it while the forward cars were quite empty. The only explanation that has been at all evident is that, as the last car in the train was generally the first reached in going from the waiting-room, the weary passengers would climb into it and drop into the first seat they could find, not having animation enough left after their business or shopping was over to walk forward to another car. Now, since it was the rear car that was smashed into by the Chicago express at Tarrytown, on the Hudson River railroad, and the trucks of the last car which were thrown from the rails in the accident at Mott Haven junction, when the car was overturned and the passengers more or less injured, the rush has been for seats in the middle of the train, and the unlucky last car is given the go-by. The middle seats in the middle car of a train are regarded as the safest.

That Brought a Big Profit.

The captain of one rather old and slow steamer, finding that he would have to be a long time in China before he received a full cargo of tea, and would have probably to return in ballast, began, to every one's astonishment, to say that, owing to the repairs that had been done to his engines, he hoped to make a racing passage.

Then, still more to the astonishment of the captains of the fast steamers and the world at large, he commenced to back himself to make the fastest passage home.

In such very considerable sums of money did he wager that people began to think there was something in it, and the merchants sent their tea almost entirely by his ship, arguing that as the captain stood to lose five hundred pounds sterling the repairs to his steamer's engines had probably put him in a position to bet almost on a certainty.

Of course the steamer, whose greatest speed was eight knots an hour, arrived in England weeks after the others, and the captain lost his five hundred pounds sterling; but instead of having to lie in China waiting his chance of cargo coming in from the interior—a probable delay of weeks—he had cleared in a few days, after his bets become known to the public, with a full ship, thus recouping to his owners, who of course paid his betting losses, a considerable number of thousands of pounds profit.
