A Week of Amusements.

The Nobles Dramatic Company are quite at home this week in their handsome family car on the Y at the foot of Second street. We have never met with more sociable, general home-like traveling troupe. They are in all 19 members, ladies and gentlemen, each proficient in more than one art. The open air band concerts at noon and evening daily bring crowds to the streets. In the hall crowded audiences greet them. They will remain in Moro until Sunday, closing the engagement tomorrow evening. Tonight the great play of East Lynne will be reproduced. At 2:30 p.m. tomorrow a matinee, at which will be performed "Patricia's Eve," "Lucky Ranch" will close the engagement and immediately after the first act the handsome suite of parlor furniture will be given away to some member of the audience. All who have numbers bring them out. No one knows who will be the lucky person.

Price for first twelve rows 50 cts, general admission 35 cts, children 25 cts. Seats are on sale at Bolton's drug store.

Soldiers' Letter.

Writing to his mother under date of the 16th, C.E. Constock says: Yesterday being the anniversary of the Maine disaster, ten passes were granted to visit Havana, and I was one of the lucky ones. I visited the cruiser Brooklyn, the wreck of the Maine, a small piece of which I chipped from a plank and inclose to you. It does not amount to much, but still it came from the cause of all this trouble. Also visited the Colon cemetery and the graves of the victims; the tomb of Columbus, and other points of interest. I put in a full day and was tired out when I reached camp. My health is now good. I am picking up my Spanish. By devoting time to it one may learn the language quickly. We are all looking forward to the time when we will be mustered out. Most all are sick enough of it. This life of inactivity is wearing. It's hard to do nothing. If it is possible I will see you within a year. I've promised myself that I will come west when I get out of this.

Tell Your Sister

LONG HAIR A DISGRACE.

In Corea it is indicative of Social Ostracism or Mental Humility.

The wearing of long hair in Corea is indicative of social disgrace or mental humility, and marks either the penitent or the outcast. The custom of wearing the hair long by these classes has aroused the commercial spirit in certain speculative natives, and they have set about the labor of supplying the world with hair shaved from the heads of their fellow-countrymen.

When the Mongolian faker desires to punish himself for a sin—real or fancied, it makes no difference—he allows his hair and nails to grow. In the same countries the criminal is obliged to let his hair grow, because the true oriental despises long hair, and the wearing of it is a certain sign of penitence or a punishment.

Now, of recent years the Coreans have learned to put these extraordinary growths of hair—that is, after they are cut off—to some commercial use. They have established factories for the manufacture of mats, horse blankets, saddle blankets, halters and even whole sets of harness, all from human hair.

A carpet factory, in which carpet is made from human hair, is also located at Seoul. In this connection it may be apropos to mention the famous "prayer rug" of the shah of Persia. It was made in Corea more than a century ago. It is three feet square and bordered with diamonds and pearls, and is considered of almost fabulous value.

A Social Event.

The Young Peoples' dramatic society had a social time on the 3d, among the members and their escorts. After rendering the Confederate Spy here and at Grass Valley, the society paid all expenses, which were quite heavy for amateurs to shoulder, donated $20 to the Moro Fire Department, and had sufficient funds left to have what they termed "a blow out."

A committee was appointed to make arrangements, consisting of the lady members of the society. A meeting was held in the hall and after indulging in social chat for an hour or two visited G. W. Brock's popular Main Street Restaurant, where, by previous arrangement, a bountiful oyster supper had been prepared. Being seated in the capacious dining room with the usual ceremony the guests began discussion of the "goodies" placed before them in a manner to make nine host George sigh in monosyllables.

After doing justice to the occasion the society returned to the hall for the aftermath where fruits, oranges and nuts were served, and dancing and conversation indulged till the "wee sma' hours," music being furnished by Messrs. Dillinger & Bressler. All were pleased with the results of the committee's labors. Hurrah! Hurrah! Hurrah! We represent the Confederate Spy.

Among those present were: Messdames Holder, Bostwick, McCaleb, Misses Anderson, Darby, Belcher, Lewis, Kellogg, Huff, Olds, Spear, Belcher and Zeak. Messrs. Barnum, Dolph and Louis H. Wood, Doran, Holder, Kellogg, McCaleb, Burnett, and a few others. Long live the Y.P.S.

The DeMoss Concert company took in the sights of the county seat on Tuesday, attending the Opera in the evening.

Quite a contingent from the capitol city attended the social, including John H. Foss, the lumber dealer and their wives.

J. P. Strahl, accompanied by his family and Mrs. Ina Dakin DeMoss made our sanctum an agreeable visit Wednesday evening.

Monday was a red letter day in this district. It was the regular school meeting for the election of district clerk and was a close shave. The lucky candidates were John McDermid director and W. E. Allison clerk.

There was a mock trial of George Howard recently before Police Judge Miller on a charge of petty larceny. P. W. Davis represented the state and J.P. Strahl the defense. As usual the justice in law was not vindicated and a reprehensible jury acquitted him.

The school is advancing, as one might expect under the direction of Mrs. Ina Dakin DeMoss, and we may expect a continuation of the work now in operation after the expiration of the present term. The matter hinged on the late election, the results of which are favorable.

The Box-Social proved to be one of the most popular events in society circles of the entire season. A most striking feature was the male quartet, and in our opinion they need only to be heard (?) to be appreciated. The "laughing" song, as personated, was a rib twisting, mirth-provoking specialty. It is needless to add that the ravenous crowd did ample justice to all delicately prepared rations within reach. The proceeds amounted to $10.60, and were turned over to the Mickie family, expecting a judicious appropriation of the same. Ex-Flip Flap.

Remember the Name.

Nothing succeeds like Success, they say. Very likely this might be true. Sometimes things will be coming your way. And sometimes you'll go broke too. Proverbs are things of the past; they say, I doubt if that is true— For they manage to twist them around some way. To make them fit things new.

Nothing succeeds like success; this way it wouldn't be so bad; But a hundred times better if we'd say Nothing succeeds like AN OMSBEYAN AD.
