A. M. CRAWFORD Attorney-General of the state of Oregon, has announced himself as a candidate for re-nomination by the republicans of this state. Having served one term with entire satisfaction to the people of the state, the usual custom will probably be observed and he will be re-nominated without opposition. Mr. Crawford has been a member of the Oregon bar for twenty-five years, which time he has spent practicing his profession at Roseburg and Marshfield. He was elected attorney-general in 1902. During his term he has been the legal adviser of all the state officers and boards and commissions, and it may be said to his credit that the state has become involved in very little litigation. Mr. Crawford's advice to the state land board that interest should not be

Jonathan Bourne, Jr., candidate before the republican primaries for the nomination of United States Senator in congress, for the long term commencing March 4, 1907, was born in New Bedford Mass., February 23d, 1855; was a member of the class of 1877 at Harvard University; came to Portland May 18, 1878; was a republican member of the Oregon legislature in the session of 1885 and the extra session of 1886; was one of Oregon's delegates to the Republican National convention of 1888, and Oregon's member of the Republican National committee from 1888 to 1902, and a delegate to the Republican National convention of 1902; and was elected as a Mitchell republican to the Oregon legislature in 1906. Mr. Bourne has been more prominently identified with the development of the mineral resources of Oregon than any other man in the state, having expended in the last 25 years over $1,000,000 of his own money in the acquisition and development of Oregon mines. While Mr. Bourne has had his residence and main office at Portland since 1878, he has had another office at New Bedford, Mass., and has carried on the business of his father's estate since 1880, which makes him familiar with many of the large interests and leading men in the East. These qualifications, in connection with his energy, originality, executive ability, and experience in business, and political affairs, pre-eminently qualify him for making an able and influential senator for the state of Oregon. Mr. Bourne has always favored extending the direct power of the people over their government as far as possible. He was one of the leading spirits in the initiative and referendum movement, from 1896, until it was approved by the voters at the June election in 1902. In 1904 he was a member of the executive committee of the Direct Primary Nominating League, and holds the same position.

DR. JAMES WITHYCOMBE The best known man in western Oregon and the most popular man in the republican party in this part of the state says the Salem Journal. He is James Withycombe of Corvallis. He is the people's candidate for governor in the republican party, having shown no disposition to cater or bow down to the bosses, or any faction. He is a man of the people and strong with the people. For the past week he has been holding farmers' institutes in Jackson county and early in March there is to be a farmer's institute held at Salem. This is not new work for him, but just what he has been doing for the past ten years, and his work has done more to build up the cause of agriculture and stock raising and dairying and fruit growing than any other one agency connected with the agricultural college. He has made it practical and useful and valuable to the farmers of the state, and if they want a man who represents the interests of agriculture and nominates for governor it is up to them at the primaries. Too much can not be said for Dr. Withycombe's private life. He has been a model farmer's institute in Jackson county and early in March there is to be a farmer's institute held at Salem.
