Feminine Snapshots

A Man and His Breakfast Rolls.

One of my friends kept a boarding house. She suddenly began to have a suffering time with her cooks. One would stay a few days; then away she would flit. The gap could not be filled at once, and my friend herself on an occasion of this kind descended to her kitchen each morning and made the breakfast rolls. Her rolls were tiptop, the best ever. Among the people in my friend's house was an aged bachelor whom I shall call Smith because that was his name. With him was his sister, an elderly single woman who gave her life to waiting on Smith and humoring his whims. One of his whims was a fondness for my friend's own special breakfast rolls. At length the third cook in a month was taking her departure from the kitchen. This time my friend cornered her and insisted on knowing why she went. Cook said Miss Smith had told her the boarding house mistress never paid the servants if she could help it and the best thing cook could do was to get out quick. In wrath my friend demanded to know of Miss Smith what she meant by such conduct. Miss Smith confessed herself guilty, saying she did it on her brother's account because he liked my friend's make of rolls so well he did not wish to eat any others. Then Miss Smith said her brother wanted to marry my friend because he liked her cooking so well. The sister urged her to do so, saying she would be left at his death a very rich widow and that the sister's own fortune would be added to that of Smith when she, too, passed from the realm of outward manifestation. Shortly after that the old man himself nabbed my friend and proposed to her on the spot. He declared he could not let those breakfast rolls get away from him, but wished to cage them for a permanency. My friend felt obliged to decline the honor.

I observe some of the newspapers are making an ado over the fact that a member of the New York and Boston nonworking class has married a "shopgirl," and those kindly persons who are always anxious concerning other people's business are speculating whether society will receive this ex-shopgirl. Why not? Thousands of saleswomen in this land are handsomer than any member of the so called society set, and many of them are more refined and better educated, when it comes to that.

This world is a hard enough place to live in even when we try to help one another all we can.

* *

In order to have a harmonious, healthy development of both body and mind it is necessary for us all to do physical labor, at least a part of the time. Working with the hands is an essential part of working out one's salvation.

Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder, pastor of the First Congregational church in Jersey City, in connection with various other enterprises for his flock is establishing a shooting gallery, to which he invites women to come and learn the use of firearms. "Every woman should know how to handle firearms," says Dr. Scudder. "It is her business to know how to shoot so she can protect her home."

Mrs. Bertha L. Grimm of Mansfield, O., has shown her sex the way in a very important movement. She has solved the problem of serving hot, daintily cooked meals to families in their own homes for less than it would cost to cook them at home. Mrs. Grimm invented a heat retaining device which maintains the warmth of the foods perfectly so long as it is needed. Mrs. Grimm is able both to make a profit for herself and save money for her customers under her system. She says that twelve families in a town might easily have a co-operative kitchen where, with one cook, two helpers and a boy, they could not only have their meals cooked in the best manner, but could have all their fruit canned in summer and autumn. She believes any competent woman who understands marketing and cooking can make a good thing by starting such a kitchen.

* *

Lady Warwick, called the democratic countess of England, was busy campaigning for the Labor party during the exciting political contest in England. She made a great impression with her eloquence, addressing dock laborers as "comrades and friends." She spoke at outdoor meetings anywhere and everywhere, standing up in tradesmen's wagons to talk to workingmen. The dock laborers of London gave her a great reception and went without their dinner to hear her. When shall we have in America a society woman doing what Lady Warwick does?

The British government is making its young army officers learn to cook. Good! Men are the born cooks of the race, anyhow.

* *

It has been suggested that a hall of fame for women be established in this country. It is a good idea. Men have so many great ones among themselves that where they alone are hall of fame jurors they would never have any room on their list for a woman—never.

A Hair Dressing
Nearly every one likes a fine hair dressing. Something to make the hair more manageable; to keep it from being too rough, or from splitting at the ends. Something, too, that will feed the hair at the same time, a regular hair-food. Well-fed hair will be strong, and will remain where it belongs—on the head, not on the comb!

M. M. S. POULTRY FENCING.
HAS POINTS OF MERIT WORTHY OF ATTENTION.
The best features of merit in this fencing are found in its multitude of horizontal wires, the cabled selvage and cable every foot in the height of fence, to say nothing of the connecting mesh wires; this, coupled with its peculiar construction, bars any possibility of its contracting, sagging or narrowing together between posts; doing away with the top and bottom board rail and fully one-half the number of posts ordinarily required, which reduces the actual cost of the completed fence. These items alone insure a saving of fully 50 per cent. to the user, without taking into account the fact that a fence with a top rail must be much higher than one without, to be of equal service, for a top rail, being visible, marks the height of the fence and gives chickens something to light on. It is made of the best galvanized steel wire, smoothly and evenly woven, and retains its full height before as well as after stretching.

Pasteur is one of the very best draft horses that ever left France. His physical proportions are perfect and he possesses in an extraordinary degree the high finish and great activity which has made the breed of Percheron horses so famous. His pedigree like his individual merit is the best that can be found in France, his ancestors on both sire's and dam's sides being the most noted prize winners and breeders in that country. His sire, Scipion, was a prize winner at the Universal Exposition at Paris in 1900. He also won First Prize at the two greatest shows in France in 1901. Pasteur on account of his great individual merit won First Prize in Collection at the greatest horse show in the history of the world, that of the World' Fair at St. Louis in 1904.
