Before coming to the city to trade readers are requested to examine The Observer advertising columns. Its active, wide-awake business man who advertises, consequently he is the most accommodating, sells the cheapest, and deals the most liberally in every way.

We will not be responsible for the neglect of subscribers to notify us of changes in their address. Nor will the notification of a Postmaster that the subscriber has "Removed" settle the bill of a delinquent.

The colored troops must always admit that Senator Forsaker fought nobly at Brownsville.

The Philadelphia machine claims another sweeping victory for Peirce at the primaries. So the Quaker city is still corrupt and contented, is it?

Chicago gets a check for $861,000 as the city's share of the local traction monopoly's net earnings last year. An "object lesson" for the Rose city?

Congress at this session is likely to appropriate several millions to fortify Hawaii. The value of those islands as a strategic point in the Pacific will be increasingly appreciated as the years go by.

The honest and conscientious citizen from Indiana who told President Roosevelt that "the only second choice sentiment out there is for Roosevelt," if he will take the nomination, offers a new point of view—Roosevelt as second choice to Fairbanks!

The square rigged Prussian, 5081 tons, is a good deal of a ship. More impressive even than her 30 miles of cordage and rigging, though, is the fact that she is manned almost entirely by young men, and all are Germans. A good omen for German merchant shipping of the future, and a splendid lesson for American young men.

The United States want no war with Venezuela; not even to help along President Roosevelt's campaign plans. The obvious effect of the resolution drawn by Senator Lodge, at the request of the administration, authorizing an armed demonstration against Castro, would be to create a condition verging on war, if not actual hostilities. To send military forces to Venezuela bearing a direct threat of force, is to invite armed resistance. The most hopeful sign in the immediate situation is that President Roosevelt admits that he has no power to use the army and navy for this purpose without the assent of congress. Evidently he has learned that the President of the United States cannot declare war of his own motion, even against a nation as weak as Venezuela, though he may contrive to make a war inevitable, by the direction he may give to our foreign federal relations.

Oregonian: Another cut has been made in trans Pacific wheat and flour rates, and now the wheat producers of the great Northwest, who suffer so keenly through lack of an American merchant marine, can ship their products clear across the Pacific at $2 per ton, which is less than it costs them to send wheat to San Francisco in American steamers. Of course it is not a subsidized American fleet that is increasing the profits of these farmers to the extent of several dollars per ton, for the vessels engaged in the trade are all foreign craft owned by people who make it a business to buy and sell freight space and transportation, on exactly the same lines as any other merchantable commodity is sold. One or two shipowners may be suffering by these low rates to the Far east, and to Europe, but hundreds of shippers are profiting by them, and are willing that the whole world should compete for the business of carrying our freight to market.

The Worlds Best Climate Is not entirely free from disease, on the high elevations fever prevails, while on the lower levels malaria is encountered to a greater or less extent, according to altitude. To overcome climate affections laetide malaris, jaundice, biliousness, fever and ague, and general debility, the most effective remedy is Electric Bitters, the great alterative and blood purifier; the antidote for every form of bodily weakness, nervousness, and insomnia. AN AMERICAN BANKER ABROAD

The crowned heads of Europe have at all times shown themselves kindly disposed toward American millionaires. They have on numerous occasions granted audiences to visiting steel kings. But it has been left to J Pierpont Morgan to receive marks of royal favor of a kind not usually accorded to a commoner. He, more than all the rest, is persona grata in palaces.

In London the Queen and the Dowager Empress of Russia inspected the art galleries of the banker under his guidance. The Italian Queen received him. The Duke of Orleans attended his reception. The Papal Secretary of State gave him an extended audience and the Supreme Pontiff blessed him, borrowing his fountain pen to write a prayer for his prosperity. In all respects the banker has been treated as a real "cousin."

It is true that during his absence Mr Harriman has been engaged in "saving the Erie" and turning a few dollars for himself in the process. Incidentally he appears to have relieved Mr. Morgan of the burden of controlling that property. But has not the fun been worth the cost? What is the whole outstanding issue of Erie common, by comparison with the privileges of hobnobbing with royalty and making a grand tour under auspices not previously enjoyed by any private citizen?

Blind Men's Dreams. One of the most intelligent inmates of a blind asylum, who came into the world blind, says that he never dreams of the things he has read about and never dreams of anything or person that he has not in some way come in personal contact with. He dreams of music, of the voices of persons he knows, of such incidents as might happen at the home or in some place in which he has actually been, but never of incidents in other places or in other lands. Even although he has read descriptions of localities, of natural beauties, of the appearance of a street or a city, no idea of what they look like comes to him in the fancies of his sleep. There is a class of blind people who become blind when quite young. Such blind people never dream of any scene or object except those which have remained in the memory from what they actually saw before they became blind.—Pittsburgh Weekly.

The Successful Man. We all may learn to hold a pen when we are very young. When he learns to hold his tongue.—Philadelphia Press.

What Hubby Thought. She—Why, no. The stolen Gainsborough was not a hat. It was a picture. Her husband—Oh, I thought from the value it was a hat.—Town and Country.

Odd, indeed. A funny fact is when a man on functions spends his time. The more he has a big blowout. The more he.—Baltimore American.

A Difference. Old Moneybags—What chance has a man of fifty to marry? Pretty Pert—Fifty what—years or millions?—New York Evening Journal.

The Extremist. The gteger's better than the man. Who never laughs a bit. To laugh at nothing's better than to worry over it.—Philadelphia Press.

No Footsteps Dodged For Him. "Dd you believe in chasing shad ows?" "You bet I do if you can catch 'em at it."—Baltimore American.

The Maid and the Count. "My face is my fortune, sir," said she. "But the count said he didn't care." "My name is my fortune," he replied. "For it will win me an empress."—Chicago News.

Dangerous. Little Willie—I dream about my girl. Little Willie—Do you? Little Willie—Yes I killed two fellows about her last night.

What His Music Bill Meant. An architect who had planned and superintended the building of a west side residence had turned over the completed house to its owner. The architect had been in no wise hampered in the expenditure of money, yet his customer, being a good business man, gave his personal attention to the details of the house. "What does this mean?" he asked on a final inspection of the bills. "Three hundred dollars to a quartet of trained musicians. How can anybody have given a concert already in my house when no one is living there?" "They were testing the acoustics of the rooms," the architect explained. "Every room in your house has been submitted to that test. There will be plenty of music there later on, and I certainly wouldn't want to finish the house without being sure that the acoustical properties were satisfactory. In these days every private house or hotel that amounts to anything is put through the acoustic test before it leaves the architect's hands."

A Californians Luck. "The luckiest day of my life was when I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve," writes Charles F. Budahn, of Tracy, California. "Two 25c boxes cured me of an annoying case of itching piles, which had troubled me for years and that yielded to no other treatment. Sold under guarantee, Moro Pharmacy."

Odd Fellows' Celebration.

The 59th anniversary of founding of Odd Fellowship in the U. S. was celebrated by Moro Lodge 113 on the 25th, by dedicating their magnificent new hall, and a basket dinner. The procession, in which was represented the whole fraternity of Sherman county, led to the M E Church, which was comfortably filled by an intelligent audience, attentively listening to the literary exercises of the day, the most notable of which was an oration by Rev A J Adams, in the course of which he reviewed the teachings and lessons of the order, and told what it stands for. It is based on the brotherhood of man, for no man can live independent of his fellows. We all belong to one common family, having the same common aim in life. The boys looked very nice in the handsome new regalia, and the daughters wore their brightest smiles as custodian of Grand Master Scott who conducted the dedication. In the course of his remarkably fine address, Bro Scott confined himself to the ritual and delivered a well timed educational sermon to the fraternity, teaching that Odd Fellowship is founded on the principles of friendship, love and truth. It teaches morality in all things; it enters the chambers of the sick; it watches at the bedside of the dying; it speaks words of tenderness and condolence to the widow and orphan; it is organized together for the betterment of its members, in friendship, love and truth; it visits the sick, it buries the dead, and takes care of the widow and orphan. Noble Grand Otto Peetz presided with honor and dignity, and exemplified the secret work by seeing to it that every one present should be made to feel quite happy and at home on this joyous occasion.

Not Man's Work. Moonlight and springtime moods all to the contrary, the fact remains that marriage is not a man's work, but one of his dearest obligations, from which he is never exempted. Moreover, it is not even necessary to him in the accomplishment of those things which are his work. It is generally no more than a dream of prolonging through years a humanly improbable condition. Happiness as a husband and father has always been his secretly whispered prayer, his dearest secret hope, toward which all his idealism yearns. That numerous other and very potent motives enter into men's hearts is not in the least overlooked. It is only claimed that to the average man his future marriage is little more than a very beautiful dream.—Anna A. Rogers in Atlantic.

A Strenuous Hike. It was growing very late, but the young man in the parlor scene showed no signs of making a home run. "You evidently have a very vivid imagination," Mr. Boromax said, "as if she made an unsuccessful attempt to strangle a yawn. "Why do you think so?" queried the unsuspecting Boromax.

Risky Speculation. In the days "befo' de war" a handy negro named Jack was saving money earned at odd times with which to buy his freedom. His master encouraged him and kept his money safe for him. In time Jack had saved $900 and needed only another hundred to make him free. His master told him that he wouldn't be long now but he could get another hundred. Jack went out with another slave to collect some local festival. Returning along the railroad track they were frightened by an approaching train. Both got off the track, but Jack's companion fell and, striking his head against a rock, was killed. Jack hurried as rapidly as he could to his master's house. It was a late hour, but the master must hear him. He said, "Gimme mah money right now." The astonished master remonstrated, saying, "But, Jack, you need only another hundred dollars to get free." "I knows it, Mars' Henry, I knows it, but niggers is not so ornatin'." Bill Jew killed himself by bustin' his head agin a rock, an' I ain' gwine 'nives' mah money in nothin' as ornatin' as niggers.—Washington Herald.

Grieg as a Schoolboy. Grieg, the noted composer, was not a pattern schoolboy. In a description of his days at school he wrote: "Knowing that by arriving late I would not be allowed to enter the class until the end of the first lesson, I used, on wet mornings, to stand under a dripping roof when I was soaked to the skin. The master then sent me home to change my clothes, but the distance being long this was equivalent to giving me a dispensation. You may guess that I played this prank pretty often, but when at last I carried it so far as to come one day wet through, though it had hardly rained at all, they became suspicious and kept a lookout. One fine day I was caught and made an intimate acquaintance with the birch.—St. James Gazette.

THE DOWNWARD COURSE. Fast Being Realized by Many Moro People. A little back ache at first. Daily increasing till the back is lame and weak. Urinary disorders quickly follow; Diabetes, and finally Brights disease; This is the downward course of kidney ills. Don't take this course. H C Stutte, of Hood River, says: "My wife has used Doans Kidney Pills, and she thinks there is nothing like them for kidney complaint and its attending symptoms. For a long time she suffered from back ache, kidney difficulty, headaches, and many other symptoms of kidney complaint. When Doans Kidney Pills were brought to her attention she was in very poor health. She procured a box, and she had tried so many remedies previously without satisfactory results, she was surprised at the benefit she derived from the use of Doans Kidney Pills. She continued taking them, and it was not long before the trouble had entirely disappeared. Mrs Stutte is now in unusually good health and gives the credit to Doans Kidney Pills."
