Moro Commercial Co.

The Open River Navigation Co has withdrawn from the Columbia river traffic above Celilo for a time, as the water is too thin and the ice too thick.

County Clerk McPherson and Commissioner Andy J Holt, took the oath of office and assumed their new positions this week at open county court, Judge Henrichs presiding. Court adjourned Wednesday.

D J Cooper of The Dalles, an old-time tillicum of The O Man of this shack, made us a very pleasant visit Monday. Dan is now interested in both this city and county, owning a good farm and Moro realty, besides becoming a regular reader of The Old Reliable Observer.

Arthur Phillips was in from Cottonwood camp Tuesday to report proceedings to the county court, purchase supplies, and get some medicine for Mrs Phillips who met with a serious accident while paring a squash, nearly cutting away about half of the ball of her left thumb by the keen edge of the knife.

Dr George F M Newhouse, of the Clarke-Newhouse Jewelry Company, The Dalles, has been granted a certificate in optometry by the Oregon state board making the 3d state: Nebraska, Washington and Oregon, where he has passed successful examinations and has had more than 20 years experience in fitting glasses to the eyes.

The statement made by "all the newspapers" that postal deposit privileges would be allowed in the United States on and after January 3d, 1911, is true in a very small degree. But one post office in each state has been assigned as a depository under the postal bank laws. The office for Oregon is located at the edge of Klamath marsh.

The O-W-R and N Co has just put a new map of Oregon folder in circulation, particularly valuable because of the data which it contains. The publication made its first appearance at the great land and irrigation exposition recently held in Chicago, and the demand for it was amazing, showing the almost insatiable hunger everywhere for trustworthy information about Oregon.

Holiday Visits from the Parents.

Mr and Mrs J Frank Belshee enjoyed holiday week driving every day in the county stopping at night, from Christmas to New Year, with a married daughter or son, or other relative, thus: Sunday, Christmas, at R W Belshees; Monday at W Roy Belshees; Tuesday at H B Belshees; Wednesday at F Burnett's (Edith's husband); Thursday at A M Wright's, (two of Mr and Mrs Wright's daughters married sons of Mr and Mrs J F Belshee); Friday at Roy Benson's, (Estella's husband); Saturday at R Charley Belshees; Burfew parents in the United States can make a trip of eight days like that. Mr and Mrs Belshee are well and hearty people, they have been blessed with 12 children, the fruits of their long and happy union, besides caring for two orphans, a grand daughter and a grand son. We are proud of their friendships, and wish them many more such Christmas holidays as the one just ended.

Your Patent Missing?

Do you know that the patent to your land is more important than the deed you claim under? Limitations run against individuals, but not against the United States or the state of Oregon. That's how it comes that cases are not infrequent of a man living on and cultivating a farm for a number of years and waking up some morning to find that he has no title. Many patents are missing from the records of Sherman county. Only last month I prepared an abstract for a farmer living near Moro and found that the patent to the land had not been recorded, and could not be found. After considerable correspondence with the General Land Office, I secured a certified copy of the patent, had it recorded, thereby perfecting the title on the records. You can never know the true condition of your land without investigation. An abstract tells it all. Of course I would like to make that abstract for you; but at any rate, don't neglect your title.

The Observer extends hearty congratulations, with wishes for a long and prosperous journey. They will be at home on the farm taken by Mr Ruggles, near Monkland.

According to the Star Shaniko harbors a being that deserves to be strangled. As the story is told he tried to get the cooperation of a man to burn the town that he might secure some trivial insurance upon a policy held by him on the furnishings of a restaurant and lodging house. The man's scheme was so clearly exposed that there appears not a doubt of the villainy of the wretch.
