

Don't Gamble In Clothes!

THE average man knows little about clothes. He likes the color of the fabric, the cut of the garments, but has doubts of the wearing qualities.

He looks on clothes-buying as more or less of a gamble. The man who chooses KENWOOD CLOTHES does not gamble. He takes no chances. Six months, even a year, after he has bought a suit he is still satisfied. The wearing qualities are there.

The railway station at Moro looks quite respectable inside since the painters have finished their decorative work and allowed Mr Rose to arrange his possessions in order again; the premises needed this work very much indeed; the interior now looks almost like a new building. The outside should be given a cleaning to match, in the new colors adopted by the O. W. R. & N. CO. for its railway stations. There is another thing the company should do even before it gets busy and paints the outside of the station to conform with the interior, and that is to accept the offer made by the city for electric lighting of depot and grounds. The offer was to furnish street and station lights in reasonable amount without charge, provided the company would install lights in the station. The nearest light to the depot is a block away and patrons having business there after dark must travel over an elevated walk and along an embankment averaging three feet high. Residents of Moro may not be liable to injuries by a mis-step in the dark, but the railway company stands to defend a suit some day of more financial interest to it than when a wool buyer fell off the depot platform at Biggs while waiting for a train one dark night.
