BRIEF NEWS OF OREGON

The Hotel Lerana at Independence was sold to W. P. Stein, a Portland man. The consideration is said to be $30,000.

A pressure gasoline tank used in connection with the lighting plant of a North Plains hotel exploded, doing considerable damage.

Fifteen tons of delayed mail, which accumulated at Portland during the tieup of the Pacific Railway & Navigation line, have arrived at Tillamook.

In a party of 20 strong, members of the legislature and state officials visited Pendleton for the purpose of inspecting the Eastern Oregon state hospital for the insane.

To determine whether or not salmon which have spawned will return to the sea and live, is the subject of a series of tests being made by the Coos Bay hatchery at Marshfield.

Grants Pass has been bonded for a road to the coast and if this is built Medford, instead of projecting a line to Crescent City, can connect with the Grants Pass road about 30 miles from there.

Equipped with part of the machinery of a hydroplane, Gorst & King, of Marshfield, are making experiments with an automobile, which is expected to aid motor vehicles on muddy roads.

Lumbermen of Bend have received announcement from the railroad companies of the lowering of rates on mill products to the east. The town is given a rate which is only one cent above what Spokane has.

Petitions to the Ashland city council asking that a date be set for a special election in connection with the interurban and street railway project, have been perfected, and were presented to the council Tuesday.

The month of January was exceptionally wet in Astoria. According to reports in Weather Observer Gilmore's office the precipitation during the month was 15.16 inches, or 5.03 inches in excess of the January average.

Breaking out of jail in Coquille, where he had been placed for drunkenness, going to town and getting a bottle of whisky, and then returning to jail and demolishing another cell, was the way a logger there acted when arrested.

"Model city" is the title which North Bend is seeking, and to that end it has engaged a firm of engineers to straighten out the engineering problems involved in making a "city beautiful" and to lay it out along metropolitan lines.

A petition containing the names of 230 residents of the Siuslaw forest reserve and vicinity, asking senators and members of congress from Oregon to take steps to have the Siuslaw reserve returned to settlement and make it subject to homestead entry, was forwarded from Eugene.

The new city park site recently purchased by Klamath Falls is to be laid out and arranged by a professional landscape artist, according to plans of the Park Commission and the Women's Civic League, which is co-operating with the board in the development of the city's park system.

Automobile owners of McMinville held a meeting for the purpose of discussing a bill now pending in the state legislature pertaining to taxes on automobiles. They were unanimously opposed to the intended tax rate of 50 cents per horsepower, as long as automobiles were also taxed as personal property.

Baker has followed La Grande in purchasing an automobile fire truck. A movement has been started to establish a cement plant in Medford, there being large deposits available for cement manufacture there and negotiations have been started to purchase the plant at Gold Hill and move it to that city.

Experiments are being made at West Stayton by J. Costakis and E. Papadogiannis with the culture of tobacco. They assert that conditions in Marion county are favorable for the successful raising of Turkish tobacco. Being natives of Greece, they are familiar with tobacco culture and are setting part of their irrigated land to this crop.

The taxpayers of Baker on February 21 will vote on the separate questions of issuing city bonds in the sum of $94,703 to repair the present city water works system by constructing a new line from the settling tank to the distributing reservoirs, and the issuance of bonds in the sum of $165,000 to complete the work noted above and extend the line to impound the waters of several other streams to which the city has title.

With the transfer of the property of the North Bend Lumber company to the Swaine & Hoyt Lumber company, of San Francisco, there enters into the lumber industry of Coos county one of the largest firms on the Pacific coast. Arrangements are under way to equip the mill with new machinery so that its capacity will be brought up to $6,000 feet a day, and the plans of the new owners are said to contemplate doubling the capacity of the mill later.

The Ruling Passel.

A young contractor in a Missouri town, found himself after the war in dire financial straits. He owned a few pieces of property, all of which were mortgaged, the mortgage in each instance being held by an old man who lived with his one son, Brocky, in a tumble-down hut that could not be rented to any one else. In the course of time the miser foreclosed, taking over all the contractor's property, which was valued in excess of the amounts loaned. The contractor began to pay rent on the house in which he lived. Three months after the foreclosure the miser lay dying. An urgent message reached the contractor, and he, supposing that the other, knowing his end to be near, wanted to make what restitution he could for the good of his soul, hurried down to the cabin. He found the old man in a rickety bed, covered with a tattered quilt and an old overcoat. The contractor bent his ear hopefully to the other's lips. The miser drew a long breath, clutched the quilt in a skinny hand and whispered: "Pay your next month's rent to Brocky."—Kansas City Star.

Bull Chasing in London.

From the time of King John till 1839 Nov. 13 was known as bull running day in Stamford. A seventeenth century historian gives an interesting account of the observance. "The butchers provide the bull and place him overnight in a stable belonging to the alderman. The next morning proclamation is made by the bellman that each one shut up his shop door and gate and none under pain of imprisonment do any violence to strangers; none to have any iron upon their bull clubs or other staves, which they pursue the bull with. Which proclamation being made and the gates all shut up, the bull is turned out of the alderman's house, and then hives skivy, tagrag, men, women and children of all sorts and sizes, with all the dogs in the town running after him." At the close of the chase the animal was killed and its flesh sold at a nominal rate to the burghers.—London Spectator.

When England Was Drunken.

In an article in the London Lancet on "Drunkenness and the Physiologist's Effect of Alcohol," Dr. Charles Mercier draws this picture of conditions in England before it became "a sober nation." "In those days the doctor was often half seas over when he attended his drunken patient; judge, counsel and attorneys pursued their avocations in court in a prevailing atmosphere of hot vapors. The prime minister went drunk to the house of commons, where he was attacked by the leader of the opposition, also drunk, while order was kept by a speaker who was half seas over. There was no excuse on spirits, and the coarser kinds of distilled liquors were ridiculously cheap. As you passed along the by streets of London, and perhaps of other great cities, you might read the legend hung out over the drink cellars. Here you may get drunk for a penny; dead drunk and clean straw for suppers."

Long Distance Laundry.

Some of the smart set Frenchmen of today send their linen to London to be washed. Their ancestors used to go even further afield in search of good laundry work. So far back as the sixteenth century Frenchmen had their washing done in Holland, where the soft water of the dikes was supposed to impart a special gloss to linen. This practice appears to have lasted until the close of the eighteenth century, for Sebastian Mercier, in his "Tableau de Paris," published shortly before the French Revolution, protests against the patronage by the rich of the Dutch, to the exclusion of native laundresses. Still more remarkable is the fact mentioned in the "Memoires du Comte de Vaulanc," that wealthy merchants in Bordeaux used to send their linen all the way to San Domingo to be washed.—London Tatler.

California Woman Seriously Alarmed "A short time ago I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs and caused me a great deal of annoyance. I would have had coughing spells and my lungs were so sore and inflamed I began to be seriously alarmed. A friend recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, saying she had used it for years. I bought a bottle and it relieved my cough the first night, and in a week I was rid of the cold and soreness of my lungs," writes Miss Maria Gerber, Sawtelle, Cal. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

He Could Dodge.

"There's nothing slow about Jones," he said reflectively. The other laughed scornfully. "I guess you never loaned him any money," he said. "Oh, yes, I have," replied the first speaker. "That's what made me speak that way. I loaned him $10 six months ago, and I haven't been able to catch him since."

Willie Explains.

"Willie," said the teacher, "is there any difference between the words 'sufficient' and 'enough'?" "Yes, ma'am," replied Willie. "Sufficient is when mamma thinks I've eaten on the pile, and 'enough' is when I think I have eaten sufficient."—Chicago News.

A Little Bit Late.

Briggs—Everybody should lay up something for a rainy day. Griggs—True. But too many wait until it begins to sprinkle before starting to do so.—Boston Transcript.

Gluck's Opera.

In opera, writing Gluck established the tradition of five acts to each work, with ballets in the second and fourth acts.

Arrogance dims the luster of the most brilliant intellect and dulls the edge of the sharpest wit.

How to Bankrupt the Doctors.

A prominent New York physician says: "If it were not for the thin stockings and thin soled shoes worn by women, and doctors would probably be bankrupt." When you contract a cold do not wait for it to develop into pneumonia but treat it at once. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is intended especially for coughs and colds, and has won a wide reputation by its cures of these diseases. It is most effective and is pleasant and safe to take. English Suffragettes Use Slingshot London.—The suffragettes have adopted the slingshot as a weapon in their campaign. With it they hurl heavy leaden discs stamped: "Votes for Women." Because of the weapon's noisiness, their aims is not good, and the damage thus far caused has not been great, but the disc is said by doctors to be capable of killing a man.

Cured of Liver Complaint. "I was suffering with liver complaint," says Mrs. Smith of Point Blank, Texas, and decided to try a 25c box of Chamberlain's Tablets, and am happy to say that I am completely cured and can recommend them to every one." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

Serum is Held at Million Berlin.—That Dr. Friedmann wants $1,000,000 for the American rights to his tuberculosis serum, is the statement made here. German physicians strongly condemn what they call his "non-ethical attitude." They go so far as to say that he is more concerned in the monetary aspect than the humanitarian of his discovery.

Floods in South.

Memphis, Tenn.—The entire delta section of four states was under water from 1 to 15 feet deep and families by the thousands were fleeing in terror from a wall of water that is pouring through a gap 1000 feet wide in the levee at Bush, Miss.

Ten thousand acres of winter wheat in western Kentucky, southern Missouri and part of Tennessee are submerged in water and the loss in crops will be enormous.
