MORO WELCOMES REV. ADAMS.

Our City Enthusiastically Celebrates its First "Home Coming" Week.

Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church the edifice was crowded with one of the largest congregations ever contained within its walls in honor of the initial sermon of Rev. A. J. Adams to his returning to the charge of the Presbyterian field at Moro.

To accommodate the crowded condition of the building chairs had to be borrowed from the Methodist Episcopal church, which had dismissed its services for the day so to join in the universal welcome home which all felt towards Mr. Adams.

In the absence of Rev. C. W. Johnson of the M. E. church, because of the runaway accident at Spaulding chapel earlier in the day, services for Sunday evening were held by Rev. Adams from the Methodist Episcopal pulpit. A large congregation being present.

Tuesday evening the ladies of the Dorcas society tendered a public reception to Rev. A. J. Adams and family at the Rudolf opera house; standing room being at a premium when the program preceding the buffet lunch served by the society was being presented. County School Superintendent F. E. Fagan acted as chairman of the evening; State Senator W. H. Ragsdale in a short speech welcomed "back home" Rev. Adams and family on behalf of Moro citizens; Rev. Adams, in response, stated that he deeply appreciated all that had been done to show him the depth of appreciation felt towards him and only hoped to be able to continue to merit their approbation. A droll doll drill by sixteen little girls was a feature of the program as well as a "temperance town" group recitation by eight Sunday School boys.

The ladies of the Dorcas society have had the manse overhauled, the interior repainted and repaired and a convenient bath room newly furnished before the arrival "home" of the occupants.

SUMMARY OF THE OREGON NEWS

The Rapid Reader's Review of Recent Reports Rewritten

George Talley, a deputy fish warden of Portland, was arrested and arraigned in the justice court at Roseburg on a charge of fishing without a license. Loaded with a $1200 cargo of groceries for the town of Keno, the steamer Cahley, Captain Ball, was caught in a gale and sank on Lake Ewauna. Captain Ball and crew of five escaped.

Notwithstanding the exceptionally stormy weather the horse fair held at Woodburn was a pronounced success, nearly 100 high class horses being shown, regardless of the rain, before a large crowd of interested spectators.

Senator Lane filed a written appeal with the board of engineers of rivers and harbors, protesting against the decision of that body against dredging the Siuslaw from Florence to Acme, and requested an opportunity to make oral presentation in the Nodda case.

B. R. Green, editor of the Ashland Tidings, was acquitted of the charge of criminal libel by a jury in the circuit court at Jacksonville. The charge was brought by County Judge Trovillo, and grew out of the publication of articles during the campaign last fall.

President Fletcher Homan, of Willamette University, was the recipient of a check for $50,000 from James J. Hill. This completes $200,000 cash endowment for the university, meeting the conditions of Mr. Hill when he subscribed the $50,000 to the institution.

The treasury department assured Senator Chamberlain that the customs house at Astoria will be retained and a deputy placed in charge. Empire and Yaquina will be allowed $500 each annually for the payment of someone to keep records and make reports to Portland.

The jury in the case of Marcellus Thomas against the city of Eugene to recover over $3000 damages on account of alleged injury to the plaintiff's land because of seepage of water from the city's power ditch near Waterville, returned a verdict in favor of the city.

The owners of the Humboldt mine, lying six miles east of Malheur, after making hundreds of feet of development work, ran into a very rich strike at the 400-foot level. The mine now is a producer of $60,000 a month. Preparations are being made for the enlargement of the plant.

The large spray plant of the Hood River Spray company was burned to the ground and it is thought the loss will aggregate $10,000. The factory has been running at full capacity and the stock carried was very large. There were about 750 barrels of spray in stock at the time of the fire.

No legal obstacles stand in the way of the city of Salem holding an election to vote on the question of abolishing saloons if the city council is of a mind to call the election, according to an opinion given by Attorney General Crawford to Attorney W. H. Trindle, campaign manager for the "dry."

Representative Sinnott has designated Addison Y. Finkenberg of Baker principal, and Angus McDonald of Hood River, alternate, for appointment to citizenship at Annapolis. He had previously designated Eugene Hanford of The Dalles as principal. All three will take examinations at a place to be designated April 25.

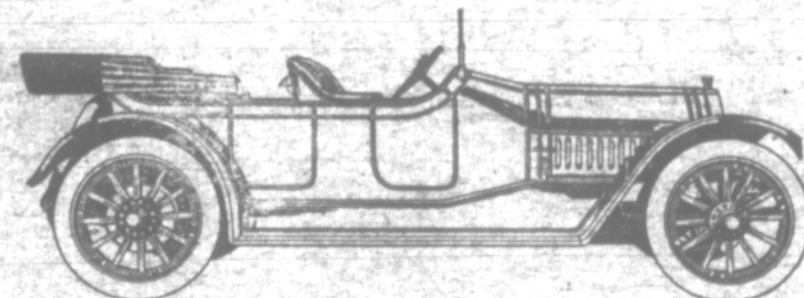

Owing to a lack of interest among the fruitgrowers near Albany, the association directors voted to disband the organization. It is stated that the discord came about through some of the members desiring to continue their former method of supplying the local trade and residents, instead of disposing of all their crop through the association.

The sheep men of Wallawa county report on account of the long period of snow and cold weather that they have fed all of the hay that was put up last harvest, and as the snow covered the winter pasture so that it was impossible for the flocks to feed on the bunch grass, the sheep are poor and there will be a heavy loss. It is feared the wool clip will be light and a very poor quality.

According to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Crawford, commercial or industrial institutions can not engage in the banking business under the state laws. The opinion was rendered at the request of State Superintendent of Banks Wright, who represented that the Wasco Ware house and Milling company was engaged in the banking business at Wasco and Moro. The attorney general says that if the company conducts a banking business it must be as a separate institution.

The total cost of keeping supervising wardens and other field men in the field during the forest fire season of 1912, was $13,501. An additional expense of $123.76 was incurred in fighting fires. Of the total amount the law requires that the counties shall pay one-third so the state treasurer is sending out a statement and notice to the various county clerks calling attention to the amounts due from the counties for 1912 is $4476, and $2285 is overdue on unpaid 1911 claims.
