The Portland live stock market has held steady around $9 per hundred for beef cattle for the week ending May 23d; some sales reported below that amount. Receipts for the week were: of cattle 1463, calves 173, hogs 3054, sheep 7561, horses 24.

Eighty old soldiers from Oregon, survivors of the battle, will participate in the semi-centennial celebration of the battle of Gettysburg. Among them will be our fellow townsman Judge J. M. Parry. An appropriation was made by the last state legislature for their expenses.

June 16th to 27th has been set apart at the O.A.C. for a summer camp course for boys, the number being limited to 100 for this year as it is some thing new for the college to undertake. All boys are welcome who answer the requirements which can be ascertained by writing the college.

A special train of twenty six cars loaded with 154 auto trucks valued at $80,000 was received on the coast this week. They will be distributed in the states of Oregon, Washington and California and comprise the largest shipment of purely commercial power driven machines ever made.

From the interest shown in the O. W. R. & N. Co's corn contest, it appears that Oregon will become a big corn producing state. More than five tons of selected seed corn, enough to plant 1,000 acres, has been distributed free of charge by the company, while the Southern Pacific has distributed more than two tons additional.

The first through cut of the Panama Canal from east to west was completed May 24th, when two steam shovels working from opposite directions met at Culebra. With the meeting of these great steam shovels the canal was opened at grade from ocean to ocean. There is still to be excavated in broadening the canal about 8,000,000 cubic yards of earth which is being removed at the rate of 2,500,000 yards a month. Canal cost to date is $290,110,000.

Three Farmers' Bulletins, recently issued, should be in the hands of every farmer. They are No. 528, "Hints to Poultry Raisers," and No. 533, "Good Seed Potatoes and How to Produce them." Any one interested in building a septic tank should get a copy of Farmers Bulletin No. 527, which contains a very good article on "Sewage Disposal for Rural Homes." These bulletins are free upon application to the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C.

The commission men of Portland are threatening the state railroad commission, who have the regulating of abuses of their business in hand, with their going out of business if not let alone. The law compels them to take out a license of $5; be under bonds for the proper conduct of their business; and furnish consignors within the week received a true statement of amount sold and price received. Heavy fines and prison terms are provided for violations of the law and for dishonesty. Nothing is wrong about that,

Death of a Bright Young Man.

This community was profoundly stirred last Friday night when it became known that, for reasons unknown, James G. Huls had died by his own hand at the family home east of Moro.

The young man had been alone all day plowing until, at five p.m. a neighbor happened to see him take the team in for the day. His wife, Mrs. Grace Thompson Huls, was at her parents home, but a short distance away; his mother was at the bedside of sick daughter Mrs. Ola Huls Ruggles; his father and married sister, Mrs. Allie Huls Ruggles, were attending the field meet at Grass Valley.

The tragedy had evidently taken place somewhere in the neighborhood of seven o'clock as he had written a letter to his wife dated 6:30 p. m., and one also to his parents written about the same time. In these letters no reference was made as to the direct cause of the rash act, only saying that no one knew any thing about his troubles and that no one was to be blamed for his deed. After writing the letters Mr. Huls must have gone up stairs; laid down upon the bed; crossed his feet; pulled his shirt back with his left hand and shot himself through the heart with his right hand; death being instantaneous; he not moving after the shot was discharged.

His father, coming home about 9:15, and not finding him in the house became uneasy and going upstairs looking for him saw him by light of a match he had struck, on the bed. The match went out as he reached over to wake his boy and instead he felt the revolver. He does not know how he got down stairs and with his auto as far as the fair grounds where he wrecked it and ran the rest of the way to town for the help which could not avail.

The funeral was the saddest and the largest of any ever held in Moro; Dr. W. S. Nichol of Hood River preaching the sermon from the Methodist Episcopal church to a congregation gathered to pay their last respects to one who had grown up in their midst from a boy. The building was crowded and a number who attended could not gain admittance; the Woodmen and Circle attended the services in a body. Floral offerings in profusion were sent by friends, the casket being covered with the emblems of spring time.

James G. Huls was born October, 1889, in Missouri and died near Moro May 23d, 1913; he came to Sherman county with his parents 1891 and was a graduate of Moro schools; married Miss Grace Thompson February 5th, 1913. He was one of the best young men that we have ever known; he had no bad habits of any kind, and was very popular with all who knew him. A number of his young friends say of him that they have never heard him speak ill of any one, even when he might have angry provocation; that is something that cannot be said of many of us and speaks volumes as to his character. He was but a young man and to young people life is serious and trouble, when it comes, is very hard.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank all our friends and neighbors for the help extended to us in our recent sorrow and loss. C. G. Huls and family.

I wish to thank the many friends who have been so kind to me in my recent breavement in the loss of my dear husband.

Moro started off with Rutledge in the box but he did not last long, then Benson went in for a few innings, his arm got sore near the end of the game and VanNuyse finished the game, but could not stop the fast Goldendale team.

Look to Your Plumbing.

You know what happens in a house in which the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid or some other fever. The digestive organs perform the same functions in the human body as the plumbing does for the house, and they should be kept in first class condition all the time. If you have any trouble with your digestion take Chamberlain's Tablets and you are certain to get quick relief. For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement

A Miserable Grafter.

"That looks like some crib to crack," said the first burglar to his pal as they passed a suburban mansion.

"None o' that for me," said the pal. "One of the biggest grafters in the United States lives there."

"How do you know that?" asked the first burglar.

"I broke in there once and he caught me wit' the goods on," said the pal. "I had to pay him $15 to let me go."—Harper's Weekly.

Misinterpreted.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the doorman at the Stagborn club. "Haven't you made a mistake?"

"I reckon not," replied Si Cornstassel. "The sign on the door says 'No Admission,' and if they's no admission it's free, ain't it?"—Judge.

Poetry and the Child.

Read poetry to the child. Read easy, simple verse, read nonsense verse, read real poems, read sometimes such poems as "Thanatopsis" and bits of "Paradise Lost." Of course the child will not understand the thought, but he will enjoy the sound, and he will unconsciously learn the words. Poetry was never meant to be read to oneself, but always to be read aloud or recited. It is harder than prose. The order of the words is often like our everyday speech, and the words themselves are frequently different. Here especially children need help. If they find it they learn to love poetry, and there are few things that so sweeten life as a genuine love for poetry for its beauties and for the helpful lines that come to one's mind in hard places.—Home Progress Magazine.

A Historian's Joke.

Macaulay is not usually regarded as a humorous writer, but in his "History of England" he perpetrates the following in relating the death of Charles II.: "Several of the prescriptions have been preserved. One of them is signed by fourteen doctors. He recovered his senses, but he was evidently in a situation of extreme danger."

Studebaker

"Nearly all those Wagons and Buggies are Studebakers"

Every year over one hundred thousand Studebaker vehicles are sold.

This tells you what the farmers of the country think of the Studebaker wagons.

This appreciation has been constantly growing for sixty years.

This appreciation has been earned by the determination of Studebaker to produce an honestly built wagon that will do a full day's work and keep on doing it, and not to build a cheap one.

The man who buys the Studebaker gets all the improvements gained by the experience of two generations of wagon builders.
