Send for advertising rates.

If you do not read The Observer, why not?

We would like to have you take it, and we know it would be profitable to you to become a subscriber. We send it two years for $2.50; one year $1.50; 12 cents a month isn't much. Try it. Order by postal card, and pay for it when you can.

We will not be responsible for the neglect of subscribers to notify as of changes in their address. Nor will the subscription of a Postmaster that the subscriber has "Removed" settle the bill of a delinquent.

Church and Society notices FREE, except when for money making purposes. Such notices at regular rates at the option of the publishers.

At any time when requested to do so, the paper will be discontinued. But we expect that all arrears will be paid before such request is made. It is easy to ask us for a statement, which will be cheerfully rendered at any time.

The price of The Observer is $1.50 per year, 75 cents for six months, 50 cents for four months—but if paid in advance we accept $2.50 in full for 2 years. Shorter terms than one year 12 cents per month.

A Blue Mark here will answer an inquiry, when entered upon our calendar, giving the date of the paper as the date at which your current subscription expires.

The society women of Pendleton have blossomed out in "pasha pants" and the poor cops don't know what to do.

A petrified foot has been found in Pendleton and the find is to be classed as of prehistoric origin. It is a mistake, its the remnant of a visitor at the Round Up.

A man caught stealing wheat from a neighboring farm near Oregon City was convicted of the crime of burglary last Tuesday. The man's wife was called as a witness to prove he was home that night.

Nine hundred million bushels of wheat, almost half of the average of the world's wheat production is the estimated total yield of the farms of the country made by the department of agriculture. This is a new record for the United States, for this year enormous crop will be 137 million bushels more than was ever grown before in this country in any one year. There also will be large yields of oats and barley, probably second in size in the history of this nation.

Farmers Picnic at Grass Valley.

The basket picnic at Grass Valley last Saturday, under auspices of the farmers union, happened to be set for a typical farmers day rainy weather and a cold wind coming with the break of day.

Patronage of the special train provided from Wasco fell far below expectations; only five using the accommodation from Wasco, one from Klondike, one from McDonald, and about twenty from Moro. Nearly all who attended the picnic did so by auto; livery machines made so many trips between this place and Grass Valley that by two o'clock it would have been difficult to find a dozen people on the streets.

First and second money at the colt show was won by Truman Strong of Moro.

The match game of ball between Moro and Grass Valley was won by the latter in a 5 to 1 score. It was a warm contested game, Moro getting three safe hits off the first four balls over; but that streak did not hold.

The program feature of the day was of special interest, the speakers being forceful and entertaining and had their topics well in hand.

The Girl With the Lariat

BY DENISE NORWOOD

When Lloyd Brayton was graduated from college, having means, he thought he would like to go west and become a rancher. So he bought a sheep ranch with a good house on it and well stocked. Then he settled himself to wait for his sheep to grow and their wool to stand out on their sides.

For awhile riding over his broad acres and doing a little horseback riding kept him contented. But it wasn't long before he began to pine for something more exciting. An opportunity was afforded him by seeing one day a girl chasing a steer. There was something picturesque in her galloping over the ground, her apron and handkerchiefs hanging to her neck by their ribbons and her hair streaming behind her. Brayton, who was on horseback, put spurs to his animal to help her. But she didn't need him, for before he reached her she drew a lariat, caught the steer by the horns and held on to him till some punchers came up and relieved her.

The girl was the daughter of a neighboring rancher, Ivan MacDougal, a Scotchman, who had recently come to America for the purpose of cattle raising.

Brayton complimented the girl on her exploit, and then they began an acquaintance that gave the young customer something to occupy his mind. He spent many of his mornings riding with her and most of his evenings at her father's ranch. Pimping was in fashion at the time and the MacDougal's having a good table for the purpose, Jennie and Lloyd spent a lot of time together and Lloyd fell in love with her. But the celluloid sphere was only typical of the love taps that were passing between them. When Jennie sent it it was to say, "I don't love you," and when it went back it seemed to carry the message, "Yes, you do; you know you do." And so the ball kept flying.

The affair went on till Brayton took it into his head that he would go east. His affair with the much girl he regarded as a justice, and the idea of unmaking with her didn't trouble him at all. If his going affected her she was too proud to show it. He tried hard to make her show her colors on the separation, but she resolutely kept them furled. It is singular how a man will consider a woman not for him and at the same time try to make her show that she wishes to be his.

The day before he was to take his departure he was out on his horse some distance from his ranch. It happened that Jennie MacDougal had had a pet antelope, and she, too, had ridden a good looking for it. She knew every foot of the country, and Brayton knew very little about it. Reining up on a rise in the ground, Jennie saw Lloyd half a mile away riding toward a dangerous quicksand.

"Great heavens!" she exclaimed. "Suppose he doesn't know it's there!" The young man rode on as lightly, as carelessly, as if his horse were trampling on flowers. Jennie's cheek blanched. He was within 100 feet of the quicksand, while she was half a

Cured of Indigestion. Mrs. Sadie P. Clawson, Indiana, Pa., was bothered with indigestion. "My stomach pained me night and day," she writes. "I would feel bloated and have headache and belching after eating. I also suffered from constipation. My daughter had used Chamberlain's Tablets and they did her so much good that she gave me a few doses of them and insisted on my trying them. They helped me as nothing else has done." mile away from him, with no other person in sight. Then suddenly his horse began to founder. His rider gave him the spur, but to no purpose. Down came Jennie's quilt on her horse's flank, and like a flash he darted to the rescue. But his rider had no hope. She knew the sucking properties of the dreaded quicksand and that before she could reach the man it was dragging down to death he would be half buried in it. What would she do to save him? If she rode near enough to extend a hand she, too, would be drawn in. Though she drove her horse on a gallop, Brayton's horse had disappeared before she reached the quicksand. Brayton himself was engulfed to his waist. He believed himself lost.

"Goodly, dear heart!" he cried. "Jennie seldom went out without firearms and never without her lariat. She rode up so near and so fast to the quicksand that she was obliged to pull her horse back on his haunches to save herself from going into it. Then instinctively her fingers clasped her lariat, and she swung it in the air, her eye fixed on her object, then it left her and fell around Brayton. Turning her horse's head, she nudged him slowly breaking and entered the sinking body about the chest.

It was now a question whether the rope, the girl and the horse were strong enough to draw the man from the quicksand. Jennie fixed one end of the lariat firmly to the saddle and, restraining her horse so far as possible from jerking, let him out by degrees. A lariat is not a weakly article, and Jennie's stood the test. Slowly Brayton was pulled from the quicksand, and the back of the horse that went down to its death. Reaching the ground, he swung to the girl, who was reeling in her saddle, and she fell into his arms.

When she came to herself again a great figure had come over her relations with Brayton. He was holding out to her now his gratitude, now that she would awake and tell him the truth about her. It was all too incredible to top things, but it indicated that she had indeed become a grand person. He didn't protest. He remained as he was, and he courted Jennie.

A Cheese That Failed. Mother: You told me you didn't like Harry? Harry: I'm counting on you to tell me when I can count a hundred Mother: Yes, so I did. Harry: Well, I've counted 237 and I'm madder when I started.—Chicago News.

Headache and Nervousness Cured. "Chamberlain's Tablets are entitled to all the praise I can give them," writes Mrs. Richard Olp, Spencerport, N. Y. They have cured me of headache and nervousness and restored me to my normal health." For sale by all dealers.—Advertisement.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Price 50c per bottle. Sold by Druggists. Price 75c per bottle. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

An Appropriate Name. Aunt Liza's former mistress was talking to her one morning, when suddenly she discovered a little pickaninny standing shyly behind his mother's skirts. "Is this your little boy, Aunt Liza?" she asked. "Yes, miss, dat's Prescription."

Punished the Selfish One. The Jule-Genève express, says the London Standard Geneva correspondent, was overcrowded the other day and several travelers had to stand in the corridors of the second class coaches. One tourist saw a seat vacant, but covered with luggage, and asked a passenger sitting near whether the seat was "occupied." "Yes," replied the stranger, "the man is in the restaurant car, and will return soon."

The Charm She Wore. Many are the charms adopted by society women with a grain of superstition in their makeup, and one of the most unique is that worn by a young woman who spends much of her time at Atlantic City. Attention being called to her curious pendant—a polished substance set in pearls and suspended from a slender gold chain—she was asked what manner of stone it might be. "Stone?" she laughed. "It's just plain, ordinary wood. You see, I have a most unfortunate tendency to boast, and at such times caution tells me to knock wood. Oftentimes there is no wood at hand, so all I have to do to save myself from my rashness is to tap my little finger. Simple, ain't it?"—New York Tribune.

SEE the International fifth wheel (patented applied for) on Weber and Columbus wagons. This one feature makes these two wagons stand out above all the rest as the best and cheapest for a farmer to buy. The fifth wheel prevents the pitching and pulling up of the front bolster, and it does away with broken king pins and bent axles. It doubles the bearing surface of the bolster on the sandboard; it increases the life of the wagon; distributes strains more evenly, and therefore makes the work of hauling easier on the horses.

With all these points to recommend it, the International fifth wheel is worth a trip to town to see. Call on the IHC local dealer who handles Weber or Columbus wagons and ask him to show you the International fifth wheel. You cannot see it on any other wagon. If you do not know where to go, drop us a line and we will give you the name of the nearest dealer.

DIGESTER TANKAGE

MADE BY THE UNION MEAT CO. NORTH PORTLAND, ORE.

NOW ON SALE IN MORO

Whether you raise three hogs or three hundred, you cannot afford to overlook this famous hog food. Read what J. M. Fruits, of Joseph, Oregon says about DIGESTER TANKAGE.

Union Meat Company North Portland, Ore. Dear Sirs:— In reference to the results obtained from your Digester Tankage, I have found it to be a profitable and satisfactory feed. It has no superior as a feed for brood sows. Its high percentage of protein makes it a good developer for the unborn pigs. It makes strong boned pigs with nice glossy coats. In the show ring it has no equal to my judgment. During the past winter I have fed tankage to my young pigs and have never met with greater success.

Very truly yours, (signed) J. M. Fruits.

DIGESTER TANKAGE is made from fresh, wholesome pieces of meat. It develops bone and muscle and makes pigs GROW. Endorsed by all leading Agricultural Experiment Stations and by the best breeders and feeders in every state. It's a meal in form, fed wet or dry, mixed with other foods. DIGESTER TANKAGE can be purchased in Moro at our Warehouse. We have purchased this famous hog food in a carload lot and can give you the benefit of this saving in freight. If you want your pigs to grow into fat, healthy hogs, send in your order now to—
