A. M. Wright has rented the residence recently vacated by Earl Fields, who has moved to Wasco, where he has purchased an interest in the meat market.

Within two days of finishing their threshing run for the season, Wm. Mahrt had his hand caught in the friction clutch on the feeder. He will have a sore hand for a few weeks, but will not lose the fingers.

Archie McKenzie was over from Arlington Sunday as the guest of Rev. John Robertson. The two were schoolmates in the old country, near Glasgow, Scotland.

Emerson Barzee and wife were visitors during county fair week at the home of his brother Elmer, arriving the afternoon of the same day they left Salem by electric train for Portland.

The finder of an open, round cheek, rubber trimmed buggy, lost between Moro and Erskineville, will be rewarded if left at this office or returned to W. C. Todd, owner.

Your chickens will soon pay for themselves in increased egg production if you will use a quart can of carbolium around the chicken house and perches; you can get it at the Observer Store.

L. W. Ross, the jeweler, has opened up an ice cream parlor, also candy, cigars and tobacco, located in his jewelry store, and is prepared to serve the public with the very best that can be had in this line.

J. B. Holman left town Tuesday morning with a large gasoline tractor engine, which he intends to use for plowing and other work of similar kind on the farm and during harvest as motive power for his separator.

C. G. Silvers has a new six cylinder, six passenger Studebaker auto. This make of auto is very popular in Sherman county. J. P. McMillin, near Wasco, and E. A. Cushman, of Moro, have also purchased the same make and style car.

Mrs. Elizabeth White, wife of Nathan White, deceased, and mother of W. E. White, died at the family home at Newberg, Oregon, October 7th. The family were former residents of Sherman county, being engaged in farming between this city and Grass Valley.

The five-mile auto race Friday afternoon of the fair was won by Chas. Huck in his Kissel car; time, 9:35. Arthur Smith drove a Ford touring car in the same race and kept up to Huck remarkably well, considering the difference in weight and power of the two cars.

The Observer would like nothing better than to publish a complete list of all who were awarded ribbons and prizes at the county fair just closed. All we can do is to mention those that came more particularly to our attention. The capital letters in the type cases of this office prevent even a beginning; they would soon become exhausted.

L. L. Pertz lost two valuable horses during the week of the Sherman county fair. They managed to break into the field of Fred Hennagin adjoining, where Fred had grain ready for seeding after the fair and water handy in the trough for his work teams. Several horses had broken through the fence and all were thought to have been foundered, but only two were lost.

The motorcycle races put on Friday and Saturday during the fair by Davis and Olds of this county and Crawford of The Dalles were exciting events. In the first race Friday afternoon Davis won easily from Olds, and in the second race had his machine a half lap ahead when engine trouble developed, and was beaten by a third of a lap by the man from The Dalles.

The Observer managed to secure a complete record of all speed and track events with the intention of publishing the results, but have decided that the public is satisfied with the decisions as made by the judges, and that the time of each race is not of as much importance to our readers as is the winners. That being the case, the records have been filed for future comparison.

The automobile, so neatly bannered and trimmed, that headed the parade of Sherman county boosters the last day of the Wasco county fair was owned by Darnielle Bros. of the Hotel Albert. When the manager of the Observer saw the car he supposed it belonged to the captain of the visiting boosters instead of being the only auto to be present with greetings from The Dalles people to those participating in the parade.

GEORGE SELFISH, IS CHARGE

Old-Time Democrats Are Lukewarm Toward Chamberlain This Year.

It is an open secret in Democratic circles that in this campaign the party is lukewarm toward George E. Chamberlain's candidacy, whereas for the first time in years the Republican party is united on a candidate for United States Senator. Old-time Democrats who have for years worked enthusiastically for Chamberlain each time he has been a candidate now regard him with apathy.

The Democrats who have been devoting time and money for years to the cause are letting it be known that they regard Chamberlain as selfish. They recall how he failed to reciprocate. When he was a candidate, all other nominees on the Democratic ticket had to be ignored for fear Chamberlain's chances might be injured. So far as the public was aware, Chamberlain was the only man running on the Democratic ticket.

Finally when Chamberlain was in position to reward the old friends by giving them Federal appointments, which he was in position to do as the senior Senator, he turned a deaf ear to their applications and permitted his junior colleague, Senator Harry Lane, to fill the Federal pie counter with Lane's personal friends, who were not the Democrats who had devoted years to electing Chamberlain to office. In this manner Chamberlain lost supporters in every county in the state, and these supporters were mainly the men who have been responsible for his past victories.

Thus Chamberlain is entering the hardest campaign of his career with dissatisfaction in the Democratic ranks, brought on, declare the old timers, by his own selfishness, and confronted by a united Republican party behind Booth, Republican candidate for United States Senator. And as if these things were not sufficiently serious, there is a feeling of dissatisfaction with business conditions, the depression of the times, little work and low wages, and a feeling that the way to bring prosperity back is to vote the Republican ticket straight, starting with Booth and ending with the last name.

The list of casualties of those attending the booster Sherman county day at the Wasco fair should start with a disabled rear spindle on the Wallan car, a broken front spring on the Omar Sayers car, Al Wright trying to swipe railroad spikes along the way to the detriment of his tires, and the efforts of the Fortner brothers in learning how to handle punctures and blow outs after night "by the light of the moon." The Observer editor had carburetor trouble, which delayed the car until the carburetor was taken off and cleaned.

We would like to mention individually our impressions of the work of the young people who so successfully staged the home talent dramatic productions at the local opera house during fair week, but it would only be a repetition of the fact that all carried their several parts to a happy conclusion, which was appreciated by their patrons, as easily proven by the larger attendance the final night.

J. P. Strahl was a visitor in Moro during county fair week. He enjoyed himself visiting with old friends and incidentally talking horse trade, finally closing a trade with C. G. Huls for a team, which he took back with him to his home at Barton, in Clackamas county.

The Saturday evening Portland Journal, arriving at Sherman county post offices Sunday, will have a special article about the Sherman county fair, illustrated with pictures by W. A. Raymond.

Will Tell You This, Too, My Daughter

WILL undoubtedly is like your father and all other mortal men; he probably will want a mild stimulant occasionally.

Don't start your married life by being practical. Beer is healthful and refreshing, and he will drink it moderately, for he knows the meaning of true pleasure. Don't tell him he can't drink it—he broad-minded enough to let him half say. You'll know your own cream soda frequently and will have his health.

Your father and I soon will have our twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. In all those years I have never seen him sober when he was 40. Look at him today—strong, robust, alert, no four men on earth. Never once have I denied him the right of drinking moderately. I have the moderation with which he drinks does him a world of good. In fact, I enjoy seeing him so much better than when he was a thin, sickly, nervous man. You can't tell a man to go to bed and have a good night's sleep. You find that a little beer will increase his stock of cheerfulness. Choose the home of mirth and happiness, my dear, rather than the house of trouble and dissension.

The Grain Growers Conveniences

Are not alone confined to Rural Free Delivery of mail and the Telephone. There is another convenience which all farmers should have—and many do have—a checking account with a good bank. The possessor of such an account avoids the risk of having his money on his person or about his home where it is in danger of fire and thieves.

His bills paid by check are not only a valid receipt, but also a convenience in his home transactions where very often the necessary change for concluding settlement is not at hand. Don't stop to think this over, but start an account now with
