Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Martin were visiting at the W. J. Martin home this last week-end, coming over from Heppner to be present at the welcoming home of Wm. J. jr., who had just been discharged from the army after two years of overseas service.

Miss Pearl Hennagin entertained a number of her girl friends Thursday evening at the farm home east of Moro by means of a slumber party. Each of the guests wore costumes depicting little boys of about six years old, and needless to say all had a fine time.

Postmaster J. M. Parry has sold his residence on Main street to Francis W. Boyer, who with his mother will move here from Kent shortly after September 1. Mr. Boyer is in the employ of A. S. Johnson, the man who gets the water with the well-drill outfit.

Parcel post shipments of ham, bacon, lard, dried fruits, tea, sugar, coffee and other food stuffs to individuals in Germany from relatives in the United States have been large since mail service to the enemy countries has resumed. Last week three carloads of this sort of mail left San Francisco on one train.

An expensive auto broke down near Wasco Saturday last and was left with the Atwood-Lee garage for repairs. While being repaired L. B. Robinson became suspicious of its ownership and telegraphed to the secretary of state for Washington and found that it was an Oregon car with a Washington license stolen about 9 a.m. Saturday in Portland. Upon proper credentials shown by the owner it was returned Tuesday, but in the meantime the thief had disappeared.

Love is universal, and for that reason "The Heart of Humanity" has an undeniable appeal to everyone. There is the love of the mother for her five soldier sons. There is the love of the mother for her babe. We see the love of the wife for her husband who has answered the call; the love of the man for the wife left behind. But greater than all is the love that prompts men to leave home and loved ones, that prompts women to leave their own children in order to help the suffering—the great love that beats in the Heart of Humanity. At Moro Theater Thursday, August 28th.

Miss Veda Hunsaker, who is in charge of the domestic science department of the Brigham, Utah, high school, is visiting with Mrs. D. E. Stephens.
