Prof. H. B. Blough and wife, from Portland, are visitors at the Howard Conlee home east of Moro. Prof. Blough has charge of one of the large city schools of Portland and is a son of Prof. Blough formally principal of the Moro schools.

Two combine harvesters figured in runaway accidents in the Grass Valley district last week. One was the L. D. May machine at the Billard farm and the Clyde Smith machine on the owners farm. Little damage was done either machine.

Rev. J. M. Morrison, from Portland, and son J. M., jr., from Wasco, attended services at Monkland Presbyterian church last Sunday. Rev. Morrison was pastor at Monkland when the Presbyterian church at Moro was first started, being for a long time pastor of both churches.

The Grass Valley Journal says there is a rumor that a new banking institution will be doing business at Kent this fall. A movement was put under way last spring by Madras parties to start a new bank at that place, but the State bank examiner would not issue a permit. Probably this has been granted this time.

T. W. Alley and family returned from Bend Thursday, where Mrs. Alley and children were visiting while T. W. made the circuit to Klamath, where he attended the Elks' convention, going from there to Crater Lake, Ashland, Salem and Portland, where the party he was with disbanded. Mr. Alley went from there to Bend, where he had left his family and his car.

The L. L. Peetz tractor-pulled combine and the Roy Powell self-propelled combine were both working in the C. G. Silver wheat field this week, while across the road the tractor-pulled combine of J. N. Landry was busy harvesting the Burnett wheat. When these two fields are harvested it will about finish the work in this vicinity.

Saturday afternoon fire destroyed one of the residence buildings on the Archie Russell place two miles north of Grass Valley, along with a chicken house, fencing and wood. The building was occupied by Mr. Russell's brother, the fire starting in a wood shed located between the two buildings. Altho close to the fire the building occupied by Mr. Russell escaped the flames.

Alf Dillinger, from The Dalles, was visiting at the P. J. Dillinger farm in the Fairview section last week, bringing with him a pony and buggy for his neices to use in going to school next winter. Both girls think that pony and buggy the best of gifts and it goes without saying that the pony will from now on have the choicest hay on the farm each meal time.
