H. O. Kunsman and family, accompanied by Ed. Tomlin, brother to Mrs. Kunsman, and Miss Irene McMillin, were an auto party on the Columbia highway the 28th bound for Portland where Miss McMillin and Mr. Tomlin were married at the First Presbyterian church in that city on Monday, the 29th. After the ceremony the party toured the Willamette valley, stopping for a visit with relatives at Shedd, Sheridan, and other places.

John Shearer came home Monday evening from a visit spent with his relatives in the Willamette valley since his discharge from the army. He has seen active army duty in both France and Germany since his enlistment and frankly says that the experience has been of great educational good to him. His observations of the two peoples of Europe with whom he was most in not all in favor of the French insofar as cleanliness and the culinary art is concerned.

Under a law passed by the last legislature each town must designate which streets are to be improved as market road streets. This information must be given to the County Court at the November meeting. Therefore a meeting of the Moro Chamber of Commerce is called for the evening of October 17th to designate such streets. All members are requested to attend.

L. V. Moore last week made a parcel post shipment of a number of sacks of certified Turkey Red wheat, aggregating 350 pounds, to Grant county. It pays to raise good seed wheat as it enables the farmer to secure a better price and at the same time also enables the farmer who wishes to improve his wheat seed to secure just exactly what he wants.

Make your farm poultry flock pay a profit. Practically all farmers keep poultry. No other class of livestock is so widely distributed. In too many cases the farmer 'takes care of his horses, cows, pigs, and sheep' but just 'keeps' chickens. Too many farmers look upon chickens merely as a necessary nuisance in order to have a few eggs and a fat broiler now and then.

There was a large attendance at the Sunday Schools and a full house at both the morning and evening Presbyterian church services, last Sunday, in honor of Church Rally Day. The illustrated lecture entitled 'Harnassing the Mississippi' was exceptionally good and enjoyed by all. Rev. McVicker promised, before the evening closed, that he would present other such lectures during the winter as occasion offered, altho he qualified this by intimating that he would not necessarily promise to announce these lectures in advance. Thus, in a way, rewarding those who attend church regularly.

An automobile, reported as belonging to Bert Conklin, a farmer living on 15-mile, Wasco county, ran off the pavement near the box factory close to The Dalles, sometime early Tuesday morning with fatal results to one of the occupants.
