This issue of the Observer is far from satisfactory, because of our engine breaking down. We had considered a larger number of pages for this week to care for the large amount of current news matter of interest to all our readers and the extra space demanded by our advertisers. As it is, after three days effort we are glad to be able to print at all.

The first baseball game of the season was won by Moro over Grass Valley by a score of 17 to 2. Since Grass Valley could not muster an all-high school team Moro agreed to play four grade boys and five high school boys. Grass town simply couldn't do anything so our boys walked off with all honors. Several of our players had never been in the game before but they all played fine.

Mrs. Clara Blackburne, 79 years old, a resident of Sherman county for more than 30 years, died Monday at her home near Grants. She is survived by two sons, Albert E., of Arlington, and Geo. W. of Rufus; one daughter, Mrs. Minnie C. Harley of Portland and seven grandchildren. Funeral services were held at Wasco, interment being in the Wasco cemetery.

Don't forget the Colonial Players who will be here next Wednesday evening, April 12 to give an entertainment in the High School Auditorium. They are coming under the Menely Lyceum people so get out your little torn season ticket and come. Their program will be divided into two parts. The first will be devoted to the well known songs of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. In the second half the players will present a one-act play of the Colonial times. A program like this is sure to be interesting. Come and see it.

You Can Write a Book

When someone asked Mark Twain which was his favorite of all the books he had written it took him just about half a second to answer, "My Bank Book."

Everyone can write a book—not like Huck Finn, perhaps—but on the style of Mark Twain's favorite, the true story of one who keeps his money matters in good order and does not forget Tomorrow in the excitement of Today.

Your bank book tells your story. Perhaps our officers can help you make it good reading.
