Raven Builds Nest in Winter.
The American raven is practically extinct in the eastern part of our country and the variety found in America from New Brunswick to Alaska differs from that sable bird native to Europe. It is beautifully black and shining and it measures twenty-six inches in length and over a yard from tip to tip of spreading wings. The raven believes in doing its work early and having it over with, consequently it builds its nest in the winter and lays from five to seven eggs which it sees to it are hatched before the end of February.

The Amateur's Score.
W. S. Gilbert once received a letter from an amateur composer suggesting that they should collaborate. "My score," wrote the amateur, "will be satisfactory, for, though educated as a chemist, I am a born composer." Gilbert wrote back regretting that he could not comply with the request. "I should have preferred," said he, "a born chemist who had been educated as a musician."

Value of Education.
The most important thing one can acquire in school is not the information gained but the habit of study established. With a mind trained to study one has the ability to work at the solution of the problems which come up in life. Education gives one comprehension while lack of training causes bewilderment.

NEWS LETTER FROM KENT

No trains up to the time of this being mailed on Wednesday, November 23d. Later a train came down from Shaniko, but up to Friday noon has not returned.

The snow had begun in the gloaming, and busily fell all the night. Has been heaping field and highway, with a silence deep and white.

Chris Polstrom's mother and brother arrived on the eve of the storm. Welcome to our city. We will call when the storm is over.

Kent sports as results of the storm, a snow covering that measured about twenty inches.

The snow storm wrecked havoc in several places in this neighborhood. Grover Young's and Bert Hatley's barns being blown down. The combine shed on the Vanney Walton place collapsed with the weight of the snow.

About a dozen men were employed by Dick Abell removing snow from the warehouse, a small portion of the building has caved in because of the weight of the snow.

Sidewalks have been kept free from snow by industrious workers.

Mrs. E. Weldon of Huson, Washington, arrived last week to be with her invalid mother, Mrs. Walters of Kent.

Instead of saying "Nothing doing" or "Nothing percolating" the new word in Kent is "Nothing brewing."

The Misses Minnie and Jennie Hogue had a narrow escape from being crushed to death when the porch over the entrance to the post office gave way under the weight of snow. The girls were sweeping the walk in front of the building.

Viggo Haufelt was seen doing "warming up exercises" on top of the warehouse. We think he is cutting capers now because a cousin of his is "beating his time."

Arthur Justineap made a trail from their ranch to town with a tractor.

The high school enrollment was increased this week by two new members, Donald Haynes and Clarence Snyder. Great oaks from little acorns grow.
