AW, WHAT'S THE USE

SIGHT OF MONEY WON HIM

Prospector Refused $100,000 for Mine, but Sold for $10,000 Actual Gold Money.

Money's an odd sort of commodity and some persons know very little of actual cash from intimate acquaintance.

Harry Veness tells of an old sound-dough of the Klondike, who had a valuable claim after several years of dangers and hardships in the North. He came to Seattle and operators who realized the value of his holdings had tried to buy him out for $100,000 but it was no use, the prospector held on. Then came the wise man who made the deal, and for one-tenth of that sum, the state-managed proposition was worked like this:

The operators cornered their man on the main street and induced him to accompany them to a dark little office off Marion street. There they talked Alaska and mining until they thought they had their man in the proper frame of mind. They opened up the subject of a deal and he admitted he had been offered $100,000.

"And you'll never sell for that?" one said, and when the miner said "No" the would-be purchaser went to a table near by that was covered with a cloth and snatched the covering away. There, stacked in neat but careless appearing piles, was $10,000 in bright, new shiny $20 gold pieces.

"There's what we'll give you," shouted one of the operators as he saw the miner's eyes gleam. "You just sign the deed, and take the money."

And the miner, unused to money, carried away by the sight of real gold, signed.—Portland Oregonian.

Roman Graves Found in Britain.

A stone coffin has been found by a Bath (England) resident. Whilst making his back garden he brought to light a full-grown skeleton at a depth of four feet. Further excavations resulted in the discovery of a stone coffin made from a hollowed-out block of Bath freestone, with a slab four inches thick forming the lid. It is a small coffin about four and one-half feet long, with a shaped head, and containing dust only. The site being near the main Roman road, it is probably of Roman origin.

SPEEDED UP POSTAL SERVICE

First Exclusive Transportation of the Mails, in 1875, Was Watched With Intense Interest.

The first exclusive mail train was placed in service Sept. 18, 1875. Leaving New York, it arrived on schedule time in Chicago the following day, after a journey of twenty-six hours. Great interest was taken at that time in this all-postal trip, which carried the western mail from New York to Chicago at a greater speed than any passenger train could command, and furthermore delivered that mail at Chicago distributed and arranged for immediate dispatch to other lines, or for delivery by carrier in Chicago.

With the beginning of the year 1890 the mail between New York and San Francisco was also carried on fast trains, consuming less time than the fastest passenger train. Fast trains between Chicago and Omaha ran more than 500 miles in less than 120 hours. An important feature of the new service was that by which mail bags were caught without stopping the trains, and which brought even small towns the benefit of speedy service, the Detroit News states.

More War Contractors Sued.

Washington, D. C.—Six additional suits seeking recovery of large sums alleged to have been misapplied in construction of the war-time army cantonnements were filed Monday in as many cities by representatives of the department of justice. The suits sought to recover $23,000,000 and brought the total claimed by the government from war contractors to more than $50,000,000.

A Troubled Conscience

Early Irish Monastery.

The site of one of the earliest Christian monasteries in Ireland has been found at Mahee Island, Strangford Lough, near Belfast. The ruins have been identified as those of Nendrum monastery, mentioned in Muircha's "Life of St. Patrick," written before 600 A. D.

Extensive excavations have been carried out and valuable material, including some stones with writing, the exact meaning of which has not yet been ascertained, have been unearthed. Some of the writings are believed to be of Danish origin.

Simplicity.

Mrs. Casey was calling upon Mrs. Callahan, and soon the talk turned to the daughter of the latter, who had but recently returned from school in another town.

"There's a plain girl for ye," said Mrs. Callahan, "absolutely no airs, in spite of the fact that she has been at a finishing school. Nothing stuck up about Mary. She's unanimous to everybody and never keeps a girl waiting. No, Mrs. Casey, she just runs down, non de plume as she is!"—Exchange.
