

OREGON NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST

Important Occurrences of Past Week Briefly Compiled for Our Readers.

Roseburg high school this year is graduating the largest class in the history of the school...

A total of $10,547.19 was spent by and in behalf of George L. Baker of Portland in his candidacy for the republican nomination for United States senator...

A fine of $100 and a scathing lecture was the penalty imposed upon Beryl Wagner, 18-year-old Washington county girl, who pleaded guilty before United States District Judge Bean in Portland to a charge of sending a vulgar letter through the mail.

Clara Trenholm, 17-year-old Philomath girl, was killed instantly and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Trenholm, and two younger sisters were badly injured in a train-aub crash at the Lafayette avenue crossing just outside the McMinnville city limits.

Frank R. Gouldstone and C. G. Ferry, Portland motorcycle officers, were suspended upon order of Commissioner Stanhope S. Pier, in charge of the police bureau, for a period of 30 days while charges that they have engaged in the practice of "highjacking" bootleggers is further investigated.

In event Salem canneries refuse to pay more than 4 cents a pound for cherries produced this year, it is likely that the growers will ship their fresh fruit to California for disposition. This was indicated following an announcement that several of the canneries had quoted the opening price for cherries at 4 cents.

Four hundred old men and women of the Multnomah county poor farm last week sought new hope to escape their lot of poverty in a frenzied hunt for buried gold—told by spirits through an aged seer and medium. With sticks, shovels and hoes, they scratched every foot of land, dislodged rocks and dug deep for the treasure.

Oregon ranks sixth among the various states of the union, according to its citizens' reading and interest in 13 of the so-called higher type magazines published in the United States. This information was contained in a report prepared by J. A. Churchill, state superintendent of schools, based on statistics furnished by Ward G. Reeder of the Ohio State university.

Mrs. Lucile Smith McArthur, widow of C. N. McArthur, who represented the third Oregon district in congress from 1919 to 1923, has been appointed executive clerk to the majority leader of the national house of representatives. The position is one of the best in the gift of the house, as it will pay an annual salary of $9600 a year under legislation now about to be enacted.

A few hours before James Briere, state prisoner injured in the Kelly Butte premature dynamite explosion last week died in Portland, a letter was received by the sheriff's office, addressed to Briere, containing an appeal from his sister, Mrs. Anne Archambault of Montreal, Canada, for him to come home this summer. Briere's death brings the total to four who lost their lives as a result of the explosion.

If a majority of the legal voters of a school district decide to discontinue a high school, it would be unnecessary to levy a high-school tax in the district, and the tax included in the budget may be omitted, when the annual school meeting is held next month. This information was contained in a legal opinion prepared by I. H. Van Winkle, attorney-general. Robert D. Lytle, district attorney for Malheur county, requested the opinion.

There were two fatalities in Oregon due to industrial accidents during the week ending May 29, according to a report prepared by the state industrial accident commission. The victims were Gentry O. Sims, Coquille, faller, and Edward L. Dudy, Baker, farmer. Of the 598 accidents reported during the week, 616 were subject to benefits under the workmen's compensation act, 77 were from firms and corporations that have rejected the law and five were from public utility corporations not entitled to state protection.

Postponement of the purchase of any additional land for the boys' training school until after the next legislative session was urged upon the state board of control at a session adopted by a mass meeting of Marion county farmers in the board of control rooms at the state house. The resolutions also urged that any new building for the school at this time be confined to absolute necessities. Governor Pierce, Secretary of State Kozar and State Treasurer Myers attended the meeting, which had been arranged to permit the voicing of protests against the expenditure of state funds at this time.

HOW TO CONTROL MOTHS IN HOMES

Pests Will Destroy Anything From Clothes to Brushes.

Washington, D. C.—Complete elimination of clothes moths from the home is difficult. They breed not only in wearing apparel, but in carpets, rugs, and upholstered furniture, a single piece of which may often furnish a steady supply of moths to restock an entire house.

Persons owning clothing subject to attack can afford to buy chests or cabinets that are very tight in which to store them. Trunks are usually not moth-proof. Red cedar chests when in good condition are among the tightest containers on the market.

They Prefer Darkness. "The common clothes moths are usually seen flying in darkened corners and just beyond range of the brightest rays of the lamp. They prefer darkness."

"The moths, or millers as they are often called, have imperfectly developed mouth parts and could not feed upon fabrics if they desired. Their purpose in life is merely to lay eggs that develop into the worms or larvae, which alone, can cause destruction."

There are two very common species of clothes moth. They are the case-making clothes moth and the webbing clothes moth. The tapestry moth is less often found, though it may become destructive.

During the last few years, practically all instances of severe clothes-moth damage reported by manufacturing plants throughout the North, including Chicago, Boston and New York, have been associated with this species. For years it has been the prevailing species in certain houses in western Massachusetts and southeastern Connecticut.

"INTRODUCING MR. KEN BLAIR"

By GRACE CANFIELD

The young man on the doorstep removed his hat and beamed at the girl in the doorway. "I've come from Tom Rice," he remarked, informally. "I'm in town for a month, and he gave me a letter of introduction to you."

"Dear Peg," the letter read. "This is to introduce Mr. Ken Blair, an awfully good scout, but a bit shy with girls. Show him it isn't worth while. Tom."

Ken was introduced, in proper season, to her mother, as Tom's friend, and thus considered a duly accredited escort in the days following.

"By the way," Ken walked to the piano, aimlessly touching the keys—"have you written to Tom?"

"I hope Tom can come down here before you go," said Peg. "So do I!" agreed Ken, so warmly that Peg was slightly chilled.

"Yes, yes," Tom exclaimed him. "Of course you didn't know all this. Well, I wrote Peg, and when Ken didn't show up, she was furious, 'cause she had made all her plans to ensure the young Apollo."

but he insisted on my coming in." He edged nearer the door, one eye on glowering Ken. "Anyway, I'm mighty glad to know that he isn't—immune." The door shut behind him just as Ken reached it.
