School Fair Exhibits Varied and Plentiful
The school and club work exhibited at the annual county fair last week shows that the school children's exhibit is growing in importance each year. The five towns each had an exhibit of school room work. In this Wasco school was awarded first place and Rufus school second.
Some very excellent manual training work was displayed by the Kent school as well as by the Wasco school. Practically all of the rural schools sent exhibits. In the rural schools division Biglow school was awarded 1st place, DeMoss school 2nd and Monkland school 3rd.
The quality of the work shown by the rural schools proves that high standards are maintained by practically every school in the county.
Sewing, cooking and garden work was exhibited in the pavilion as club projects. A high percentage of sewing club members exhibited completed work. Division 2 members exhibited work of the best quality but there were also creditable exhibits in the other divisions that were given high scores. Emmajan Stephens of the Moro school received the only perfect score and Dorothy Foss who worked in the same division won a very close second. Lois Bryant and Viola Hansen won first places in the two classes of the first division. Patricia Powell of Erskine school and Georgia Harper of Wasco school were awarded second place. In the third division Doris Payne of Rufus school won first and Edna Addington, also of Rufus school second.
First and second place in the cookery project were won by Mildred Chase and Lois Fowle of Rufus school. Robert Hill, also of Rufus school, won first on his garden exhibit.
Pearl Bell and Cynthia Bell, Erskine school, received 1st and 2nd awards on Hereford cattle. Veri and Keith Fields, Locust Grove school, exhibited Holstein cattle, but not having their work completed were not eligible for awards.
A canning demonstration, a prune bread demonstration, a style show and a judging contest were the special features connected with the school children's fair. Viola Hansen and Sadie Williams of Moro gave the canning demonstration. They will appear in this contest at the state fair at Salem.
John Decker of Kent school received 1st on fat hog and 2nd on brood sow; Ray Brown of Rufus school received 1st on brood sow and Keith Fields of Locust Grove school 3rd on brood sow.
Robert Chase, John Thompson and Ray Brown, all three pupils of Rufus school received 1st, 2nd and 3rd awards on poultry, in the order named. Robert Hill, also of Rufus school, received 1st on ducks.

Dorothy Thompson and June Brackett of Rufus school demonstrated prune bread making and will be sent to the Pacific International stock show as the team representing Sherman county in the contest to be held at that time.
Friday, before the racing program started, a number of the club members, who made dresses and aprons, walked before the grand stand audience to show how these garments looked when worn. It is planned to make this style show an annual event hereafter.
The sewing judging contest will also be held each year hereafter. This year it was won by Cynthia Bell of Erskine school.
The booths arranged as exhibits by both the town and rural schools were judged on quality, quantity, variety and decoration. The school winning most points in these four classes among the rural schools were:
Quality: Monkland 1st; Biglow 2nd; Erskine 3rd.
Quantity: Biglow 1st; DeMoss 2nd; Erskine 3rd.
Variety: DeMoss 1st; Biglow 2nd; Monkland 3rd.
Decoration: Biglow 1st; Gorman 2nd; DeMoss 3rd.
Grand prize Biglow, 16 points; DeMoss, 9 points; Monkland, 6 points.
The school winning the most points in quality, quantity, variety and decoration among the town schools were:
Quality: Wasco 1st; Moro 2nd; Rufus 3rd. Kent 4th; Grass Valley 5th.
Quantity: Wasco 1st; Rufus 2nd; Moro 3rd.
Variety: Wasco 1st; Kent 2nd; Moro 3rd; Grass Valley 4th; Rufus 5th.
Decoration: Wasco 1st; Moro 2nd; Rufus 3rd.
Grand prize: Wasco 1st; Rufus 2nd; Moro 3rd; Kent 4th.
One of the most noteworthy exhibits in connection with the school children's fair was the work displayed by Ted and Harry Proudfoot, pupils attending the Gordon Ridge school. These two boys are only 8 and 9 years old, but their work would be a credit to older school children. The exhibit was made up of actual every day school work and, not what may be termed "show" work. Their cut-out work, writing, map drawing, etc., was all neatly done in a finely superior style. Among other exhibits in the display were certificate of county championship in the county spelling contest awarded to each boy, one in the 1st grade and one in the second grade. The two are now in the next advanced grade above that in which the work exhibited was accomplished at an age one year younger than their present age.
Next to this display was placed the exhibit from Gorman school which also calls for special mention. This exhibit while not large was well executed, particularly the sewing, map drawing and school work.

Big Boxing Tournament Closes County Fair Week
The smoker put on at Moro opera house last Saturday, the last night of county fair week, was not as well attended as has similar events in the past. The events went on as scheduled, but did not always terminate as the fight fans had hoped them out. Officials selected by the boxing commission to handle the smoker were A. A. Donlap of Kent and E. B. Dodd of Moro, judges; A. B. Riddell of Sunnyside, Washington, time keeper; Everett McQuillan of Wasco, referee.

The bout between O'Connell of Sunnyside, Washington, and young Rodgers from Dee was a four round go that resulted in a draw. The first two rounds Rodgers led in aggressive tactics, but the last two O'Connell led much of the fighting.
The go between Harry Thornton from Walls Walla and Nat Ray from The Dalles was scheduled as a four round event, but in the 3rd round Thornton landed k. o. on Ray for the count. Thornton had in the 2nd round gotten in a blow that had sent Ray to the mat for a count of eight.
The six round event scheduled between Weeks and Woods went the full course with honors divided about evenly between the two men. The first two rounds Woods had a shade over Weeks, but toward the last Weeks rallied and held Woods to his knitting until the last of the six rounds.
The last event on the card was a ten round bout scheduled between Harry Tracy and Ray Wise. These two men fought at the smoker held during county fair week in Moro last year. At that time the bout closed abruptly when Tracy put Wise to sleep for the count. The fight between the two men last week was their third encounter, the first having been a draw. The fight between the two men last Saturday terminated in opposite fashion from that a year ago. It ended about as quickly, but this time Wise put Tracy to sleep for the count in the beginning of the second round and nearly ended the bout in the first round by the same method he used in the second.
