

Wedding Bells Ring in California for Sherman County Girl

A very pretty wedding was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Todd at Fresno, California, Wednesday, October 28th, when their daughter Marian A. Todd was united in marriage to Mr. John C. Weston in the presence of the immediate relatives and intimate friends of the families.

Rev. A. O. Raber, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony in front of the fireplace which was transformed into a bower of beautiful flowers and greenery. Beautiful baskets of roses, bouquets of dahlias and chrysanthemums were the floral decorations used.

The bridal party entered the room to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Thelma LaRiviere. The bride wore a beautiful beaded gown of white crepe de chine and carried a bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses and Maiden Hair fern. Her chignon veil—an heirloom in the Weston family—was held in place by a pearl band. Her white kid slippers were the ones her mother wore at her own wedding almost 22 years ago.

Mrs. C. A. Pugaley, sister of the groom, was matron of honor. She was dressed in a sea green silk and carried a bouquet of carnations. Ralph Pugaley, uncle of the groom, was best man.

At the close of the reception, following the ceremony, a buffet luncheon was served. After returning from their trip to Carmel-by-the-Sea, Mr. and Mrs. Weston will make their home in Hanford, California.

Automatic Gearless Transmission on Exhibit at Moro Hotel

P. C. Aller, representing the Automatic Transmission company of Portland who is at the Hotel Moro until Monday evening demonstrating an automatic gearless transmission for cars and trucks, states that the object of this transmission is to provide a transmission of simple construction having definite high and low speeds governed by the speed of the engine with intermediate speeds of practically an indefinite number. The speeds actuated automatically a required by the weight of the car load, incline of road and other factors. The transmission being self controlled and in balance with the work being performed requires no manual change of speed ratios.

Mr. Aller states there is no loss of power through friction of gears as in the present transmissions. Also the grinding and wearing of gears is eliminated. The tendency of this transmission at all times is to work into high speeds. On level roads and under usual conditions the car will ride in high at engine speed as controlled by the throttle. As soon as an upward incline is reached—ordinarily requiring under present practice a shift into intermediate gear—the transmission will automatically adjust itself to the exact amount of change required to transport the load, so that no power is lost nor is the power to drive the wheels cut off at any time in the changes made as in the case with geared transmission.

The transmission acts as its own clutch, thereby eliminating that unit in the manufacture of cars. The elimination of the clutch not only makes the cost of operating a car less, but does away with clutch adjustments and relining, which is an expensive part of the maintenance of an automobile. The only adjustment which is possible on this transmission is one nut, which can be drawn up by any one in five minutes time. The necessity of this adjustment is very rare, if ever necessary.

Rebekah Convention Well Attended and Much Work Done

Leona Smith, Hazel Woods, Edna Bolton, Press Committee.

The Rebekah convention for district No. 21 held its annual session at Antelope on October 31st. Members from Marion lodge No. 124 of Wasco, Lupine No. 116 of Moro, Grass Valley No. 118 of Grass Valley, Wheatland No. 183 of Kent and White Rose 136 of Antelope were in attendance.

White Rose lodge was called to order and opened in due form at 2:00 p. m. after which the officers surrendered their chairs to the convention officers. Roll was called finding most of the officers present. The minutes of last convention were read and approved.

The president of the Rebekah assembly of Oregon, Sister Myrtle R. James and the district deputy presidents of the several lodges were introduced and given the honors of the Rebekah degree.

An address of welcome was given by Sister Nettie Wheeler, noble grand of White Rose lodge and responded to by Sister Kate Schamel of Grass Valley lodge.

Reports of the lodges were read and commented on by the president. Balloting was exemplified by White Rose lodge. Marion lodge very impressively exemplified the memorial service and also the examination and introduction of visitors. Working into a lodge was demonstrated and explained by Wheatland lodge. President James then gave a very interesting and instructive talk and she also sang for our approval "Miriam's triumphal song" and "Ruth and Naomi" which we might adopt in our initiatory degree.

Sister Ada Guyton and Bertha Adams of Wheatland lodge and Sister Ella Haynes of Rhododendron No. 137 of Newport were awarded certificates of perfection in exemplifying the unwritten work.

Grass Valley lodge issued a cordial invitation to meet with them next year which was gladly accepted. Convention officers for next year were nominated as follows: Sister Schamel of Grass Valley as chairman; Sister von Borstel of Wheatland as vice chairman and Sister Westerfield of Grass Valley as secretary-treasurer. After a few more remarks by our president and others the convention adjourned for dinner.

At the bountiful dinner served by the ladies of White Rose lodge Sister Ada Guyton of Wheatland gave a short talk on friendship, Sister Henriks of Lupine on love and Sister Adams of Wheatland on truth, which were very good. After this an interesting program was rendered for the pleasure of the visitors and all Odd-Fellows and their friends.

At 8:30 White Rose lodge was again called to order and opened in form, roll called and all officers were present. They then surrendered their chairs to the degree team of Lupine lodge. Oscar Thomsen and Arthur York were found in waiting and were introduced and initiated into the Rebekah degree. The work was very beautiful and impressive. Reports of the committees on thanks, memorial and press were read and accepted. Certificates of perfection were awarded to Sister Medler of Marion lodge and Sister von Borstel of Wheatland lodge. Officers for next year's convention were seated and after a few interesting remarks by President James and the new officers and new members the convention adjourned.

E. Bradbury, president of the Klamath-irrigation district.

Picture Show News For The Current Week

"Wine" is the screen version of one of the most sensational works of recent fiction. It is a Cosmopolitan magazine story of the same name written by William MacHarg, who devoted his talents to a scathing expose of the manner in which the prohibition laws of the nation are flagrantly violated by men and women of breeding, education and high social position.

Universal trusted the portrayal of the story to a cast of drawing proven talent: Clara Bow, Forrest Stanley, Huntly Gordon, Myrtle Stedman, Robert Agnew, Walter Long, Leo White and Grace Carlisle, Louis Gasnier directing.

Principal among the spectacular features of the screen story are a number of cafe scenes, where throngs of fashionably gowned women applaud the efforts of professional entertainers. Just as fine an entertainment as they could have found in a real cafe, for the beautiful girls who danced in beautiful if scanty costumes in the screen version of "Wine" were recruited from those who make their living doing the same thing in the cafes of Los Angeles and Hollywood.

"Love and Glory" presents a distinct novelty in the way of screen entertainment in that its characters live through a fifty year lapse of time.

The three featured characters, portrayed by Charles De Roche, Wallace MacDonald and Madge Bellamy, are introduced in the story as young peasant folk in a French village. In the closing scenes of the film they appear in the make-up of persons seventy years of age. So real is the transfiguration that it is said to be difficult to believe that the characters are portrayed by the same players. It is a triumph for the actors, as well as for the director.

Pictorially the production is most beautiful. Fundamentally it is a war time romance, woven around incidents of the Franco-Prussian war, but there is little of actual war revealed on the screen. One sequence of the picture, however, reflects a desert engagement between Zouaves and Arabs and it is colorful and dramatic, carrying one of the biggest thrills of the story.

Norma Talmadge, in her latest picture, "Secrets," plays four different roles in four different periods and in gowns of four different fashion cycles.

It is a picture of modern romance with glimpses into three other periods of American home life. Starting out in 1923, the picture shows Norma first as a young wife of the early days in Wyoming and the far west.

Then the action switches to the year 1870. Norma has become the mother of a growing family. The passing years of the photoplay's story next show her in the gowns of the late '80s of the last century. Her hair has greyed and the children have grown but it is the same Norma of the early sequences of the story. Last of all, Norma is shown, again in modern costumes in 1923 settings.

"Secrets" is an unusual picture. It has an unusual story which is developed in a novel fashion. And in it Norma has a splendid opportunity, of which she avails herself to the full, to display a remarkable range of characterization.

Education for the Other Half of the Pupils Enrolled

The United States bureau of education estimates that there were in 1924 approximately 12,000,000 children enrolled in strictly rural schools; that is, schools in which the majority of the children come from farm homes or live in villages or towns of fewer than 1,000 in population. For the education of these children the one-teacher school is still the prevailing type. It enrolls more children than any other kind of school in rural communities, probably about four and three-fourths million, or approximately 40 per cent of the total 12,000,000. The next largest group of children are those in the consolidated schools, in which there are approximately two and three-fourths million, or 23 per cent of the total number. The small villages come next in importance as to number enrolled, with two and one-fourth million, or 19 per cent of the total; and the two, three, and four teacher schools in the open country follow with one and one-half million, or 12 per cent. The three-fourths of a million which remain unaccounted for in the above estimate are enrolled in certain types of schools, union, county, etc., not reported as consolidated, and in larger towns where they board or to which they commute or travel in other ways.

The number of children enrolled in one-teacher schools is rapidly decreasing in nearly all progressive states. Small schools are being abandoned and replaced by larger schools in which children can be more efficiently taught and for which larger units of taxation make possible more liberal support and hence better buildings, better teachers, and longer terms than the uneconomical one-teacher school can afford.

The closer a man is the more distant his friends are.

Good Habits Lead to Long Span of Happy Years

"Any set often repeated soon forms a habit and habits allowed steadily gain in strength. At first it may be as the spider's web easily broken through, but if not resisted it soon binds with chains of steel."—Edwards.

Good health habits are dependent on the power to show control over the common-place and ordinary situations of life. Habits may become assets or liabilities. Good health habits are assets that contribute to the well being of the individual. Good habits in regard to the care of the body—eating, sleeping, eliminating, bathing, are easily acquired and build up a wealth of health. Good habits usually spell good health. Habits that are detrimental to health are also easily acquired and constitute a growing liability which sooner or later reduces the efficiency of the individual. Many failures are due to bad habits. Good training makes difficult tasks easy while bad training makes a simple task difficult.

Health habits affect the whole life of the individual. Habits determine the active control of the whole human mechanism.

Good health habits begin with the habit of right thinking. It is fundamental that right habits be formed in early life. Every one should be trained to meet the small problems of living and in this way power will be developed to meet the more weighty problems of life. Good health is dependent on regular habits of muscular exercise. The refreshing and stimulating habit of regular bathing assists in maintaining a healthy body. Deep breathing, out door living, moderate eating, moderate exercise and regular hours of sleep are fundamental habits necessary to insure good health.

The only difficulty lies in overcoming the inertia of acquired bad habits. After one has changed his habits it is just as easy to live rightly as to live wrongly. Good health habits are not restrictive but liberating. Good health habits are simply a means of emancipating ourselves from our real limitations.
