This is a funny world in which we live. When two trains come together that is called a collision, but when two kids come together we call them twins.

The jokesmiths of the country apparently have overlooked the fact that Congressman Celler has introduced a bill to legalize beer and wine. And his first name is Emanuel, meaning, "the redeemer."

L. W. Amick and wife were in Moro last Saturday from Kent to conclude a deal whereby Mr. Amick has purchased a half section near Kent known as the Steidel place.

P. L. Kee was a business visitor in Moro last Saturday from his farm home near Grass Valley. He informed us that he had about finished seeding several hundred acres to federation wheat.

The annual class play to be given this term by the senior class of Moro high school is entitled "Come Out of the Kitchen." About 11 will be in the cast. The play will be presented about April 23rd.

Mrs. Anna Ellsworth and son Herbert were visiting at Hood River last Sunday with Mrs. Ellsworth's daughter, Mrs. Willis. Mr. Willis and wife have recently purchased a bakery property at Hood River.

The Dorcas society social for March will be postponed from the usual date to Wednesday, March 17th, on St. Patrick day. Mrs. George Hennagin, Mrs. Clarence Anderson and Mrs. Pearl Williams will entertain at the Presbyterian church.

Attorney I. M. Peterson returned late last week from a month's vacation spent in western Oregon cities while looking over the field for a new location. When visiting Springfield, Oregon, he was appointed city attorney and is now moving to that place.

The placing of the steel work for the highway bridge over Crooked river has been progressing nicely since the recent placing of the foundation shoes for the bridge. All the steel for the bridge is on the ground. Placing the shoes has been a difficult task, owing to the nature of their location.

W. A. Ruggles had recovered from his recent attack of flu to be able to attend to business at Moro Confectionery last Sunday. Since then both boys have had their turn. Philip is now able to attend school and Charles will most likely be able to be at school before the week ends.

P. L. Schamel and family left Moro this week for their new home near Lind, Washington, where Mr. Schamel will be in charge of an alfalfa farm owned by Dr. W. N. Morse. Their furniture and livestock left by train Tuesday morning in charge of George Schamel. Mr. and Mrs. Schamel left later the same day by auto.

Max Clark, 8-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Clark of this city, fell against a desk in the class room during school hours Tuesday afternoon, resulting in a clean cut through his lower left lip. Three stitches were needed to close the half inch opening caused by the accident. The boy slipped on a loose piece of floor wax when rearing to his desk.

R. B. White has been employed by the city council at day work to grade and improve the street in front of the school house, the street in front of the W. C. Bryant property and the street leading from First street to the depot. The depot street approach will be surveyed and staked by Engineer Wall, drainage tubes placed and a real improvement to grade made.

Postmaster Geo. B. Bourhill has been notified that Vernon Platt was the successful low bidder for carrying the United States mail on the two rural mail routes out of town. Route one, now served by W. L. Dillinger, leaves the post office each morning. Route two, served by Phil Starr, leaves the post office each Monday, Wednesday and Friday. The new contractor will take over the work July 1st.

An exciting episode occurred in Moro Tuesday afternoon when the Elmer Newton team started a runaway from the rear of the Douma Bros. meat market. The team was hitched to a light buggy which held to the team while traveling at a fast pace out of town towards the Barnes farm where they were caught while yet going strong by young Newton who had chased after the runaways in a car driven by Clifton Benson. No part of the outfit was injured. It was thought clothes hung out to dry on the L. V. Moore property caused the team to become frightened.

A fool there was and he saved his rocks, even as you and I; but he took them out of the old strong box when a salesman called with some wild-cat stocks and the fool was stripped down to his socks, even as you and I.

A meeting of the directors of the Bank of Moro was held at the bank in this city on Wednesday afternoon.

W. A. Carlisle was in town Monday from his home at Miller station. He was trying to locate some cattle to pasture.

J. O. Elliott last Saturday delivered a special Dodge sedan to W. A. Raymond of this city, taking in trade Mr. Raymond's auto truck.

The Dorcas society will entertain the members of the Ladies Aid at the St. Patrick day social at the Presbyterian church next Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Jane Payne of Grass Valley is reported to be recovering rapidly from a major operation to which she submitted on Wednesday, March 3rd, at Hamilton hospital.

The ladies of the Eastern Star will hold a food sale, Saturday, March 13th at 2:30 p. m., at the Moro Hardware and Implement Co. store for the benefit of the Eastern Star Home.

A deal was completed the latter part of last week whereby Chester A. Todd sold his farm in the Fairview district to W. H. Ragsdale. The farm is an 800 acre tract of which nearly all is tillable.

Karl Schade was elected city councilman at the last regular council meeting to succeed F. L. Burnett. The honor was later declined by Mr. Schade because of his time being needed for his private business.

W. H. Ragsdale has been appointed as the third member of the council committee in charge of the Moro hotel property. The committee as it now stands includes A. M. Wright, N. W. Thompson and W. H. Ragsdale.

B. E. Davis and family have moved to Sherman county from The Dalles and are now operating the Ritchey place in Hay Canyon. Mrs. Davis is a daughter of Mr. Overman, former editor and proprietor of a paper at Shaniko.

E. J. (Shorty) Marshall was taken to the Hamilton hospital at The Dalles late Sunday night for an emergency operation for ruptured appendix. Word received states that he is recovering nicely since the operation.

Bud Belshe received this week announcement of the marriage of Robert H. Clarke, known to his many friends here as Bob Clarke, to Edna Marie Woods at the home of the bride's parents at Lebanon, Oregon, on Saturday, February 27th. Mr. Clarke has worked on farms near Moro the past four seasons, part of the time with Jim Kenny, Clarence Morrison and O. G. Sayre. He writes he now has a permanent position in a paper mill at Lebanon.

Approximately 400 yards of earth and stone rolled down the mountain side and covered the Columbia highway five miles below Hood River last Friday night. Within half an hour workmen had constructed a temporary road over the obstruction. Saturday morning a one way traffic lane had been cleared through the obstruction and the same evening the pavement was again in use. Because of proximity of the railroad tracks, the dirt and rock had to be hauled by truck from the slide location. The pavement was not injured by the slide.

Attention is called to the reminder notice in our advertising columns this week of the formal opening on Saturday of the Ross' Confectionery. The interior decorations of the new store is a neutral pearl grey tone, harmonizing with the side walls and ceiling. Booths and built in tables have been placed near the fountain with cigar and candy display cases on the opposite side of the sales room. A 2-burner electric hot plate will supply quick lunches and enable hot coffee to be served at any time, this is placed at one end of the fountain. The opposite end of the fountain will be used for quick service specials and electric milk shake attachments.

INTELLIGENT CONTROL OF TUBERCULOSIS

There is no more difficult problem in the control of communicable diseases than that of the tuberculosis patient who will not exercise the care necessary to prevent his spreading the infection. Tuberculosis is a communicable disease, that is, it may be communicated from one person to another and is, therefore, a disease dangerous to public health.

The public accepts as right and proper, regulations concerning the isolation and quarantine of those sick with scarlet fever, diphtheria or smallpox. The public, however, does not look at tuberculosis in the same light. The result is that as far as the public is concerned, the most advanced consumptive may expose those about him to his disease with impunity. It is a simple procedure to remove from his home to proper isolation hospital a patient with diphtheria, for instance, even against the patient's own wishes or those of his family. It makes no difference whether the patient or his friends approve of such action provided that in the opinion of the health authorities he is endangering public health where he is. An appeal to the courts would meet with little sympathy, and indeed in all those cases in which such an appeal has been made, the action of the health authorities has been upheld in practically every instance.

With tuberculosis the situation is very different. Although this disease does infinitely more harm than all of the other infections of childhood, because of the fact that the patient may not appear to be acutely sick the public has grown to look upon tuberculosis as a comparatively insignificant source of danger as compared with a person sick with diphtheria or scarlet fever.

Provided that the patient has sufficient intelligence and is willing and able to take proper means to protect others from infection, the chances are that he does little harm in the way of giving his disease to normal and healthy adults. But the person who will not take the proper care to protect others should be restricted until he can demonstrate that he is willing to take every precaution to protect others. Up to the present time the enactment of measures for forcibly segregating the careless and incorrigible tuberculosis patient has not been successful. A person in the advanced stages of tuberculosis who deliberately disregards every law of hygiene and decency in regard to promiscuous spitting and apparently endeavors to infect those about him demands immediate isolation. Supervision of the patient and facilities for his care are necessary. The public as yet is not educated to the necessity of this supervision. Tuberculosis is not catching in the ordinary sense, but persons who are untaught as to the care of the sputum may expose others to the disease. To eradicate tuberculosis completely it will be necessary for each individual or head of the family to be sufficiently well informed as to the need of early diagnosis, the importance of early treatment and the necessity of complete supervision.

TWO FORD CARS MEET IN WRECK AT DINTY'S

Sheriff Hugh Chrisman was called to Biggs Wednesday evening by news of an auto wreck about 100 feet east of Dinty's. A stripped Ford driven by Louis and W. C. Mathieson, traveling west, suddenly shot across the Columbia highway when passing a Ford touring car driven by Orel Theusson and occupied by the man's wife and 2-year old child.

The Mathiesons live at Mansfield, Washington. The Theusson family were moving from Idaho to McDoel, California. Mrs. Theusson received a bad cut on the face and the child minor injuries. Settlement amounting to $125 was made by the Mathiesons after which peace reigned between the two auto parties.

Picture Show News For The Current Week

The liveliest, most laughable and most exciting Talmadge picture to give joy to the host of Richard Talmadge fans throughout the country, a "Jimmie's Millions," featuring the popular stunt actor. The story, which deals with the trials of a young war hero who is always late in keeping appointments and who is left a large fortune with the proviso that he be on time for three months, is a riot of rollicking fun and spectacular Talmadge stunt stuff.

Faced with the task of being prompt at appointments or losing the millions of his rich uncle who has determined to educate him in his one weakness of being continually late, Talmadge gets into more scrapes in "Jimmie's Millions" than a scrappy cat at a dog show. Getting thrown into jail, jail breaks, being accused of murder, chases and a hundred other difficulties beset his path in the endeavor to be on time, and the riotous situations evolved make this picture one of the most amusing and thrilling that has been released in many months. Betty Francisco, petite and pretty, plays opposite the famous stunt star, with a fine supporting cast.

Mary Philbin's role in "The Rose of Paris" is one with a Cinderella twist. Mitsi, the name part of Miss Philbin's, was left an orphan in her infancy. Her mother had been disowned because of the marriage, and the child's relatives were unaware of her existence. The child's grandfather, on his deathbed, pledged his business partner to find the disowned daughter and place her in possession of her fortune, which, if there were no heirs was to go to the business partner.

The search for the daughter ends when the woman proprietor of an Apache cafe in Paris, tells the partner that the woman he is seeking is dead. However, his satisfaction because of this news is dissipated when the cafe owner tells him that there is a daughter, and agrees to produce the child for a compensation.

Since the death of her mother, eighteen years ago, the daughter has been the inmate of a convent, and from this institution she is taken by the cafe owner and imprisoned in a room over the cafe. The girl escapes and from then on undergoes divers experiences, some of them of a terrifying nature, while the cafe owner and the partner of the girl's grandfather play at cross purposes with each other.

The story includes an intimate picture of home life in a great estate in France, with a dual purpose love interest that has a vital bearing on the future of Mitsi.

The cast, directed by Irving Cummings, includes John Sainpolis, Rose Dione, Dorothy Revier and Robert Cain.

Man is the only animal that can be skinned more than once.

Every now wasted in growing whiskers would cover all the bald spots.

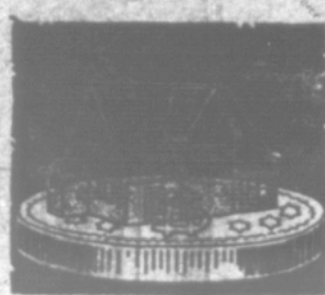

"The chief fault of the world is misdirected energy," says an efficiency expert. Absolutely. The energy now wasted in growing whiskers would cover all the bald spots.

No mother ever nurses a baby with more care than a man nurses the last dozen hairs on his dome when he finds he is almost bald.

Good opportunities are always knocking, and some people are willing to accept them if somebody else will open the door.
