KALGAN REPORTANT CHINA TRADE CENTER

Situated on Horseshoe Curve of Great Wall.

Washington.—Kalgan, important trading center of northern China, recently occupied by Nationalist forces, occupies one of the most ancient crossroads in the world, says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "There the caravan route from Peking to Urumqi, on the other side of the Gobi desert, crosses the great wall of China. The great wall has fallen into disuse and is no longer a military highway, but the caravan route to Mongolia has kept pace with the times and now automobiles mingle with the camel trains on its long and tedious path.

Where Railway Meets Desert Trail. "Kalgan is situated near the border of the province of Chihli and Mongolia, about 125 miles by rail northwest of Peking. At this point the great wall has formed a horseshoe curve. Kalgan is on the outer edge and Nankow on the inner. The traveler from Peking thus crosses the old fortification twice, once at Nankow and later at Kalgan. The railway journey from Peking occupies an entire day, due to the steady rise in the landscape toward the Mongolian plateau, which has Kalgan on its rim.

"Thence tea and tobacco for the northern trade must be hauled across the Gobi by cart, camel or an occasional motor truck. Such a journey occupies many days, wells being twenty, thirty and even fifty miles apart. Caravans are enormous, some numbering between three and four hundred camels. Many camels succumb to heat, cold, hunger or thirst and the trail is marked by bleached bones of dead animals. For the most part they get through, however, and on their way south pour the products of Mongolia into Kalgan. Hides, wool and furs reach this outpost of civilization in enormous quantities from the grazing lands of the north.

"Another Mongolian product marketed through Kalgan is the hardy little Mongol pony of the plains. These are in demand throughout the northern provinces, especially gray and white ponies, the latter being favorites with the Chinese. Foreigners find these tough little beasts first rate for saddle purposes, though they have a reputation for stumbling.

"Plains ponies and herds give Kalgan the air of the old American West, an illusion not dispelled by its reputation for lawlessness.

"The city has an estimated population of 70,000 who are largely employed in trading and allied industries, such as the manufacture of saddles, harness and rope. Low mud and block houses with tile roofs stretch in dirty monotony on either side of the Ta Ho, which stream cuts the city in two, and during the rainy season sometimes floods the neighborhood. There are many Russian inhabitants and they have their own bank and church. Modern architecture is represented by a few business buildings belonging to the fur and tobacco trade and native stores. The white population other than Russian has always been small, limited to a few traders and missionaries.

Famed for Color and Climate. "Kalgan is a name unfamiliar to the majority of China's inhabitants, the city being known by the Chinese as Chang Chia Kou. Mention this name to a home-loving Chinaman and he pictures for you a wild frontier settlement in whose streets galloping Mongol horsemen from the plains jostle tea caravans en route for Siberia and soldiers from the local garrison. Such a picture of Kalgan is equally true today. It is known among foreigners resident in China as a city of the 'wild and woolly' West, where the hospitality of the traders is only equaled by a bracing upland climate.

Says Fish Eating Causes Rise in Japan's Birth Rate. Moscow.—A close connection between fish-eating and the birth rate has been discovered in Japan, according to an American author and former private secretary of the Chinese war lord, Wu Pei-fu.

Japan, Hall said on a visit to Moscow, has become the greatest nation of fish eaters in the world and simultaneously the birth rate in Japan has increased. The ratio works out, he claimed, at about 400 pounds of fish for each gain in the birth rate.

Hall's pen name is Upton Close.

Succeeds in Extracting Rubber From Fig Trees. Pasadena, Calif.—Dr. Frederick Osius, rubber specialist, announced that his initial experiments in extraction of rubber from fig trees has proved successful.

Doctor Osius said that rubber in commercial quantities may be obtained from the Panache, or French fig, and that the common California varieties, the Kadota and the Adriatic, are being subjected to research processes now.

He said he had produced a fine piece of rubber from Panache milk.

Tit for Tat. New York.—They called Mayor Walker of New York Jimmy in Rome; in New York he calls Guglielmo Marconi Bill.

We Own OUR Wholesale Grocery House

In association with other Oregon and Washington Retail Grocers

There is no other such organization operating in Oregon

We are a member of UNITED GROCERS OF OREGON, INC., a buying organization that is recognized as a wholesale jobbing concern by manufacturers, canners, brokers, etc. United Grocers of Oregon, Inc., is owned and operated by its own members, who are independent retail grocers doing business throughout the states of Oregon and Washington.

United Grocers of Oregon, Inc., as a wholesale jobbing concern, is operated on a purely mutual, non-profit basis, for the exclusive benefit of its members, hence we say our buying power is unequalled. Our wholesale location is at 68-70 Front St., Portland, Oregon, and is, we think, the busiest place in Portland's wholesale district.

No person or corporation has any money invested in this (Our Wholesale House) except our own members, who are all retail grocers, consequently the distribution of foodstuffs to our members is made with the lowest possible minimum cost.

We are passing and shall continue to pass on to our customers, the benefits of this favorable buying connection. WE WANT YOUR TRADE and if good reliable goods, lowest possible prices, fair and square dealing and polite attention will get it, we can count on you for a customer.

The Greatest Thing

The greatest thing in life, of course, is to get along as easily as possible. The great question is, "What is the best course to pursue?" Your first duty is always to yourself, to make your body, mind and conduct as efficient as possible.

Progress in these respects can be accomplished only by behaving better. You cannot make your conduct perfect, but you can make it better than it has been.

Such duty as you owe your God, your family, your country, your neighbors and yourself, you can best pay by becoming an upright, clean, useful, worthy citizen.

Don't waste time preaching good things; make progress by practicing them.

And always remember that in the end the useful and successful man lives an easier and more agreeable life than the failure.

Note the prize fighter in training. How well he behaves! How carefully he eats and exercises! How soundly he sleeps! What a "punch" he can deliver! How well he feels! How he avoids intemperance in everything!

And the prize fighter has a better time when behaving himself than when pursuing good times phantoms. I say it not as a preacher but as a weak mortal who has lived a long time, and tried most of the experiments.

Every life may be compared with a prize fight. There are rewards to be won. Get in condition. Don't be knocked out when you might have won.

IT WORKED

A certain lady induced her husband, who was not a regular churchgoer, to accompany her to evening service. During the sermon he fell asleep snoring at first softly, and at length so noisily that the good lady was constrained to give him a sharp nudge, in the hope of rousing him. To her astonishment, however, as he slowly awakened, he exclaimed in a loud tone, "Let me alone! Get up! and light the fire yourself; it's your turn!"
