

FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

WHEN a merchant is called upon to supply some commodity which he does not happen to have in stock he can usually satisfy his customer by telling him that he will have it in just a few hours or in a few days at the most.

It must always have a large reserve of kilowatts for immediate delivery to the new customer or to fill the increased order of the old customer. It cannot say: "We are just out of kilowatts, but we will have a new supply tomorrow, or next week, or next month."

It makes no difference whether the customer be a new manufacturing establishment, ordering kilowatts in quantity, or a householder, installing additional lights—the company must make immediate delivery.

This means a large capital investment in reserve equipment.

BOY SCOUT SHOW

Truly, "The Patriot" is one of the leaders of cinematic achievement. This "wonder film" by Paramount comes to Moro Theater Tuesday, March 26, as the feature part of the Benefit Show and Athletic Tournament to be presented by the Moro Boy Scouts as the means whereby they will secure funds to attend Summer Camp this year.

Headed by the incomparable Emil Jannings, "The Patriot" swings along in a smooth manner resolving from one sequence into another with as fine a climax ever portrayed by any group of players. Jannings is superb, and gives us a characterization that will be long remembered. He has achieved the absolute pinnacle of dramatic perfection in this picture.

The great actor portrays Mad Czar Paul, Autocrat of all the Russians. He was a most fascinating figure, so historians tell us, and Jannings has succeeded in capturing the spirit of his character. Mad Paul had the heart of a child, and the brain of a tiger. Jannings portrays both.

There are others in the cast too, who add to the film triumph. Florence Vidor is delightful as the countess Ostermann; Lewis Stone as Pahlen, leading figure in the conspiracy, has done his best work to date; Neil Hamilton as the Crown Prince Alexander gives a very human character. Others who contribute are Vera Voronina and Harry Cording.

Ernst Lubitsch directed this epic, and it must be said the European director has succeeded in bringing to the screen the famous stage play by Alfred Neumann in a most successful manner, perhaps eclipsing any picture he has made since coming to these shores. It is easy to discern that Lubitsch and Jannings have thrown their every resource into this one film.

"THE TRAIL OF '98"

A cast of fifty well-known screen players, fifteen thousand extra people, one thousand dogs and a large amount of livestock were used in the filming of "The Trail of '98," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's great northern film taken from the famous Robert W. Service tale and directed by Clarence Brown, which comes to Moro Theater Saturday, March 23.

More than twenty-five thousand miles were traveled by production units, on various locations, and location scouts searched a hundred thousand square miles of territory before finding suitable spots on which to film the lavish exterior scenes. These locations extended all the way from the Klondike, where some of the most thrilling scenes ever photographed were taken in the actual location of the story, to Colorado and the highest parts of the Rocky mountains and down to Southern California. Some scenes were taken out at sea at a distance of more than a hundred miles.

The leading roles of "The Trail of '98" are taken by Ralph Forbes, Dolores Del Rio, Harry Carey, Karl Dane, Tully Marshall and more than three dozen other players.

Trees For The Asking

Young nursery trees of black locust, green ash, box elder, Russian mulberry and western yellow pine are now available to eastern Oregon farmers for spring plantings. One wishing such trees should address their orders to Oregon State Board of Forestry, Oregon Forest Nursery, Corvallis, Oregon. A charge of 25c per hundred trees is made for digging and packing and the receiver of the trees pays transportation charges.

The young trees are from 15 to 30 inches in height and are well rooted. It is well to plant them in good ground spaced about like corn and to cultivate them well for one or two years before putting them out about farmsteads. The pines come packed in damp moss and the roots must not be exposed to the air. Farmers in many other counties are going forward with tree planting programs. Sherman county residents should fall in line also, as thereby our fine farms may easily be beautified and enhanced in value greatly. Orders for any trees desired for planting this spring should be ordered at once.

Dr. Landrith, citizenship superintendent of the International Society of Christian Endeavor, one of the best known public speakers of America, will speak in the new United Brethren church at The Dalles, March 16, 7:30 p. m., under the auspices of Mt. Hood Christian Endeavor Union. Dr. Landrith was formerly president of Ward-Belmont college and in 1916 was a candidate for the vice-presidency of the United States. For the past few years much of his time has been devoted to writings and addresses in promotion of the Christian Endeavor movement. Dr. Landrith was trained for the law, but in early manhood entered the ministry. He has since been a writer, an educator, an editor, and a distinguished and capable statesman, known best in his campaigns for civic righteousness.

Club Work Rewarded

MY CLUB STORY

A few days ago I received the shock of my life when I received a letter from Supt. L. W. Rakes and from Assistant State Club Leader L. J. Allen stating that I had been selected as the winner of the Southern Pacific $100.00 Scholarship to O. S. C.

This year will only be my third year of club work. During the two years I have carried and completed five projects in stock work.

In 1926 we moved onto the ranch where we are at the present time living, and here I found a hive of bees which were wild, having been uncared for for several years. With the aid of Mr. A. M. Zevely, at that time school superintendent of Sherman county, and he being well educated in the "ways" of bees, I was able to re-queen this hive and with much care it has become a fine colony, producing some of my exhibit honey. I cared for this hive the first summer we lived on the farm and the next spring Mr. Zevely brought his several colonies of bees to our ranch and I had charge of these colonies and my own that summer and at the county fair I placed first and I placed fourth in the state. That same spring I received a $25.00 Jersey calf for herding sheep the summer before. I carried the calf project and placed first at the county fair.

Last summer I received a pair of Chinchilla rabbits that we had on our ranch. I carried the rabbit project and won first prize at the county fair.

I have recently bought a registered ewe sheep from Mr. Fox of Silverton and I intend to carry the sheep project.

At the county fair I have won three firsts and two seconds and at the state fair I placed third and fourth on my honey exhibit. My prizes bring a total of $40.00 and I own a Jersey cow, a calf, a sheep and three colonies of bees, all valued at $205.00.

Club work has meant more to me than making out final reports and keeping records of all the expenses; it has meant a trip to the State fair and much knowledge in regard to the above projects. I have also made many club friends during these two years.

I certainly think that the interest shown in the 4H boys and girls of Oregon is wonderful. Club work, from the educational standpoint alone is more than worth while.

MELVIN HANSEN.

MY EXPERIENCE IN CLUB WORK

I first became interested in hogs when I got a grade gilt and raised some pigs and made some money.

I couldn't use her in club work, so I sold her and bought a pure-bred gilt from a Chester White breeder in Menlo, Washington. She was four weeks old and cost me $15.00 and express. I didn't like her, she was the wrong type; however, I showed her at the county fair and got first place. The next November I attended the Portland Stock Show and bought the blue ribbon gilt, "Rivals Violet," at a cost of $60.00. The first days of March she farrowed ten fine pigs, three sows and seven males.

I showed them at the county fair. Rivals Violet showed in two of the open classes and got first in both. I got first in club work on a pen of four and first on junior gilt. I didn't show in the fat class, but I showed one of the males in open class and got first. I took my junior gilt to the State fair and got fourth place. After I got home I sold them, all but one gilt for breeding purposes. On my first sow I made $40.00, prizes $46.50 and for breeding purpose $135.00, a total of $225.50.

I like club work and like to show against the other fellow. It makes one want better stock. I like good hogs and would like to see all the boys take up the work.

DON COX.

This boy won second place in the contest for the $100 prize given by the railroad company and won by Melvin Hansen.

A London author patronizes letters with the remark that "writing books is a good hobby for a busy man or a pleasant occupation for a woman; but for a man with any ambition it is far too small a thing." There can be no doubt that an author's product is at least as "small a thing" as he thinks it is. On the other hand, literature claims some immortals who found it quite important enough to put into it everything they had; but it is as probable that they had more to put in as it is improbable that literature will suffer irreparable loss from the withdrawal of one who regards the muse as only a mistress to philander with.

THEN HUBBY SMILED

Hubby: Why did the new maid attempt to serve soup before each course tonight?

Wife: I haven't an idea. I particularly told her that soup must be served before everything, of course.
