Oregon State News

The only hostelry in the town of Rufus, a pioneer structure of that community, burned to the ground after a fire had started, presumably in the kitchen. The hotel was built more than 30 years ago and was moved a few years ago when the Old Oregon Trail highway changed the routing of traffic through Rufus.

The ferry Oregon, purchased by the state highway commission for traffic between North Bend and Glasgow, on the Roosevelt highway, was put into service recently after being overhauled and put into condition at the Kruse & Banks shipyard. The ferry accommodates 36 automobiles, twice the number the Roosevelt could carry.

Stock worth $325,422 was shipped by the Wallowa County Marketing association in the first year of its operation, as shown by a report just made by County Agent Donaldson. More than half the shipments consisted of hogs. Donaldson also reported the Union Pacific had agreed partly to cover five pens at the Enterprise stock yards.

Twenty-three persons were killed and 448 persons were injured in a total of 2606 traffic accidents in Oregon during September. A report of the state traffic department showed that 1224 accidents were due to carelessness on the part of drivers. In 401 accidents drivers failed to give right of way, while in 187 cases proper signals were not given.

Seventy-three families settled in Oregon during October, according to the monthly report of the Oregon state chamber of commerce. The newcomers purchased 4410 acres of land and invested $246,000. Reports for the first ten months of 1929 show 640 new families in Oregon as against 553 families for the first ten months of 1928. Investments of settlers this year aggregated $2,519,076, as compared with $1,719,512 last year. Land purchases totaled 41,721 this year, as against 30,029 in 1928.

Sheriff Chrisman and wife were in town Saturday. He was serving papers in the suit against the county court and others, to recover the extra salary and expense paid to County Superintendent Rakes. This has caused a lot of discussion here, but the general opinion appears to favor the action of the court.

A. A. Dunlap drove to Grass Valley early Sunday morning and went with George Wilcox to Portland, and took in the football game in the afternoon and the stock show afterward. While there he saw A. J. Decker and L. V. Walton and reports that both are getting along nicely now. Walton is expected home in a few days.

Methodist Church Notes

Church School at 10:00. Preaching at 7:30.

Next Sunday is Armistice Day Sunday. Sermons befitting the occasion will be preached all over the United States as well as in many other countries. These sermons will serve to further inspire people with the idea of world peace.

Eleven years ago our nation was wild with joy that the war was over. More has been accomplished in the past eleven years for world peace than in any hundred years before, if not in all the preceding years. But the goal is not yet reached. Armistice Day should be a reminder of the duty we owe to the brave men who fought and to those who gave their lives in the interest of peace.

Christian nations should make it impossible for international questions to be settled by the absolutely foolish and wicked method of warfare.

Prayer meeting every Wednesday evening at 7:30.

All are invited to fellowship with us in our worship.
The church with a cordial welcome.
F. A. Ginn, pastor.
