

Power Lines Asked Cost Be Cut on Farm Extension

The state public service commission has issued an order for a call to all electrical utility heads of the state to be present at a meeting to be held at Portland on April 2nd to testify on readjustment of farm lines service and extensions.

The present policy under which extensions of electric light and power lines are being made into suburban territory, was promulgated several years ago and is said to be in need of revision to meet changed conditions.

The purpose of the meeting, it was pointed out, is to give to farmers the same opportunity to have electrical conveniences as persons living in the cities.

The commission will propose that the power companies assume the capital investment and not request farmers to build the lines. Heretofore the farmer has had to pay for construction of the lines.

Commission engineers have worked out a cheaper construction which will be from 50 to 33-1/3 less than the cost of the present construction required for farm extension lines.

Electric companies probably will ask for a return on the investment plus the cost of service, giving the farmer an opportunity to pay over a period of five years for the return, it was said.

Blind Production

Production of farm crops without regard to the demand therefor was the theme of agriculture, recently declared Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, who warned that governmental farm relief measures will be useless "unless each individual farmer intelligently plans his production." Secretary Hyde said he wanted to emphasize that in order to obtain a higher level of prices than prevails now it appeared necessary to reduce rather than to increase 1930 production and that the problem must be met on the farm.

"Agriculture's leadership has formulated and secured the enactment of the agricultural marketing act which established the federal farm board backed by half a billion dollars of public money and clothed with far-reaching powers in applying collective thinking to that great problem of the new decade—the problem of modern co-operative merchandising of crops and livestock.

"But all this will break down unless each farmer intelligently plans his production," the secretary continued. "The individual farmer owes a duty to himself to make his efforts profitable and a duty to his fellow farmer to help make agriculture profitable. We cannot do this if farmers work against each other. We can do it if we work with each other."

State Club Leader Visits Sherman County 4-H Clubs

(Special Correspondence)

Assistant Club Leader Kuehner of Corvallis visited the 4-H clubs of Sherman county on March 13 and 14. Thursday Mr. Kuehner and Mr. Rakes spent the forenoon visiting individual club members in the county and in giving them many helpful suggestions as to the care of their cattle, their gardens, or perhaps their poultry. On Thursday afternoon the 4-H club members of Moro were visited. Almost fifty club members met at the school house and listened to a very interesting talk given by Mr. Kuehner. He told of the value of club work, why we should not be "quitters" when the work seemed to be getting the best of us and also that we should do just a little more than required. All the members of the Moro Sewing Club, led by Miss Jessie Belshae; the members of the first and second division Cooking Club, led by Laura Ruggles; the members of the Moro Homemaking, Room Improvement, Bachelor Sewing, Advanced Cooking, and those members of the newly organized Poultry Club who live in town, led by Viola Hansen; members of the Moro Camp Cookery Club, led by Mr. Rakes and Mr. Hammersley, and several members of the Moro Dairy Club, led by Donald Davis, were present. This is a good representation for a single meeting and we should like to have such a meeting more often.

Thursday evening, Mr. Kuehner showed some very interesting club pictures at the Grass Valley school building. In spite of the fact that there were three different forms of entertainment going on, there was a good attendance. The movie pictures were of former prize winners and also of the recent Pacific Livestock Exposition at Portland and the exhibits made by the delegates to the exposition. Between the reels the high school radio was turned on and we listened to "Amos and Andy."

Friday morning at ten o'clock, the Grass Valley club members and the Kent club members met at Grass Valley for a joint club meeting. Mr. Corliss Andrews and Mr. Fred Cox, the former of Kent and the latter of Grass Valley, and a few other most helpful citizens had planned a most enjoyable program and over fifty club members were present. Superintendent Rakes and Viola Hansen of Moro were also present.

The morning was spent in playing games and in having a Harmonica contest. There were seven entries in the contest and each played at least two pieces. We found out that the men as well as the boys and girls could play the harmonica. Those who entered the contest were Orville Ruggles, Cora Buyer, Arthur Holt, Harley McKay, Maudie McKay, Fred Cox, and Corliss Andrews. The prize harmonicas were presented to: Maudie McKay, in the girls' division, Orville Ruggles, first in the boys' division and Harley McKay second. Mr. Cox and Mr. Andrews received honorable mention.

At noon the club members had lunch and at one-thirty the boys and their leaders went to the T. M. Rolfe ranch to judge cattle and to receive some lessons in judging cattle from Mr. Kuehner.

This is the telephone's mission

In this country, a new type of civilization is being created—a civilization of better opportunity for the average man, comfort and convenience, business enterprise and higher standards that enrich the daily life of all the people.

To build for this new age, the Bell System in 1929 expended more than $50 million dollars. These millions were used to add new plant and further improve service. Hundreds of new buildings, millions of miles of wire, chiefly in cable, eight hundred thousand new telephones—these were some of the items in the year's program of construction. At the same time, better records were made for speed and accuracy in service.

This American development of instantaneous communication, of fast, far-reaching speech, belongs not to the few, but to the many. It is the aim of the Bell System to permit each personality to express itself without regard to distance.

This is part of the telephone ideal that anyone, anywhere, shall be able to talk quickly and at reasonable cost with anyone, anywhere else. There is no standing still in the Bell System.
