Members of The 4-H Clubs Visited by State Leader

(By Viola Hansen)

Miss Helen Cowgill, assistant state club leader, visited the 4-H clubs of Sherman county on April 10th and 11th. Miss Cowgill and Supt. Rakes spent Thursday, the 10th, in Kent where about sixteen sewing club members received valuable instruction from her. Grass Valley had a joint meeting of 25 members of the cooking and sewing clubs.

The rural schools of Harmony, Wilcox and Liberty were visited and members of the sewing, both bachelor and the girls' divisions, and cooking were interviewed.

Friday the Moro and Rufus schools were visited. In Moro all of the members of the clubs met in the domestic science room, a group of about 51 boys and girls, where Miss Cowgill was greeted with the song "How-do-you-do." At this time Miss Cowgill gave a very educational talk on the general steps of club work. The first step is "read," the second is "measure," and the third is "clean-up." Without reading, then following the instructions and finally cleaning up, the true value of club work will never be learned. The mothers (nine out of every ten) will appreciate the "clean-up" step if the members faithfully follow it.

The bachelor sewing boys were shown the champion bachelor sewing exhibits from the last state fair. The boys of Moro felt that the work was surely worthy of the prize and they hoped that some day they might be able to do work as well and as worthy of a prize as that was.

Miss Cowgill also had with her the champion sewing exhibits of the three divisions of sewing and some of the second prize winning exhibits. These exhibits are graciously loaned by the members and Miss Cowgill carries them over the entire state for several months, showing the work to several hundred club members.

Seeing how the prize winning work is done and, how high the standard of club work is, always helps some of the club members by making them desire to improve their work.

The advanced cooking club met at the club headquarters, located in the court house on Saturday, and it was decided that this club would hold its meetings every second Saturday, starting from the 11th of April and would meet at 2:30 to 3:00 o'clock.

The calf club of Moro will hold its meetings on the same Saturday as the advanced cooking club and will meet from 3:00 to 3:30 o'clock.

The bachelor sewing club will meet on Fridays after school at the Moro school building, after the week ending April 18th.

The gardening and poultry clubs will meet on the Saturdays that there are no advanced cooking or calf club meetings.

All club members are urged to be present at all of the meetings in order that the full value of the projects may be received. To attend only one meeting out of every three will never amount to very much when it comes to making exhibits or trying out for the demonstrations and judging teams.

State Club Leader Seymour will be in Sherman county again this month. He is to judge the local school fairs of this county, held on the 28, 29 and 30th of April.

"Good Old Days" in Rural Life Said to be Going

"LITTLE RED SCHOOL HOUSE" AND CROSS ROADS STORE CAN'T BE FOUND

The national census, now being completed all over the United States, is bringing to light many facts regarding Our Country that has in a sense been recognized by nearly every one, but at the same time these have been considered truly local instead of national importance.

First came news, not entirely surprising when coupled with the foregoing observation, that the small towns and hamlets of the country had decreased in population in the last ten years.

Next came reports from census workers that the small country stores and the so-called "cross-roads store" were disappearing from sight. This was followed by word of the dwindling in importance of the "little red school house."

These are all a phase of changing business conditions, whether agreeable or otherwise. While they could be classed in a sense as social, another change also being brought to attention of thinking persons is the one most vital to every community in a business sense. This is the changing of the contact attitude of banking the country over. To illustrate the change that has been and will be more apparent as time advances, we print an extract from the news of the day coming this week from a congressional committee in conference with business men seeking to improve the business of banking, which is best done to a large extent by the community as a whole keeping a reserve of individual money on call at their local bank.

Lyman E. Wakefield, vice-president of the First Bank Stock corporation of Minneapolis Wednesday described to the house banking committee the initiation of a group banking system to reorganize the rural banking structure of the middle west.

The Minnesotan appeared as the second witness in the group banking phase of the committee's financial investigation, and supported the opinion advanced Wednesday by E. W. Decker, head of the Northwest Bank corporation, another Minneapolis group organization, that the group system was more practical than branch or unit banking.

Each of the Minneapolis institutions controls a group of almost 100 individual banks, created through the exchange of stock between the unit banks and the holding companies.

Asserting that the "good old days" in rural banking that prevailed up to 1920 have definitely ended Mr. Wakefield said:

"By the creation of a group a wider diversification of risk and resources is accomplished than is possible in a single unit," Wakefield testified, adding that small branch systems with members of the group as the parent organizations might prove advantageous in supplying bank facilities in towns too small to sustain a unit bank.

The plan of his organization, he explained, "provides for the retention in the local community of the strongest possible control over the affairs of the unit."

"Management remains in the hands of the resident officers and local directors, the central office exercising its supervision through periodical reports of condition, regular examinations and the adoption of proven standards."

"Unquestionably the immediate result of the increased security that group banking affords," he added, "will be the return to the local communities of considerable capital that has been sent away in recent years to create a highly liquid reserve. We can expect that within a few years the farm mortgage will be restored as a liquid instrument."

Folks needing shoe repairing leave work with L. R. Conley, agent, to be sent to M. L. Fritts at Grass Valley.

Municipalities Are Abusing Tax-Exemption Privilege

So far municipal power plants have escaped regulation and taxation as applied to privately-owned companies. There is now agitation in the state of Washington for a tax on municipally-owned tax-free business enterprises. The attorney general in a lengthy decision expresses the opinion that an excise or privilege tax can probably be levied on city-owned utilities, although a property tax would be unconstitutional. The Washington Advisory Tax Commission asked for the opinion.

Municipal ownership in Washington has removed much property from the state rolls or eliminated prospective taxable property. Proponents of the taxation of municipal undertakings of a purely business character contend that their present exemption from taxation is unfair to private citizens and taxpayers engaged in business. They also argue that it deprives other taxation units of revenue when part of the utility is outside the operating unit. Cities invariably extend their operations into other taxation units when they develop water systems or light and power projects.

If municipalities are to be granted wholesale permission to go into business it is in the interest of taxpayers and property owners that the law provide that they should be subjected to the same supervision and regulatory measures that are applied to companies owned by private citizens who are taxed to maintain municipalities.

Rupture Shield Expert Coming to The Dalles

ON Friday and Saturday, May 2-3. At The Dalles Hotel from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. Evenings by telephone appointment only.

TWO DAYS ONLY

No Charge for Consultation

Mr. C. F. Redlich, the successful expert says:

The "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief, contract the opening in a remarkably short time and strengthen the weak tissues (the real cause of rupture) so that they frequently recover their previous natural resting power, needing no other outside support. Stomach trouble, backache and constipation often caused by Rupture promptly disappear.

Truly remarkable and prompt results have been obtained not only with recent and not fully developed ruptures but also with old, long neglected ones.

Ingenious, recently perfected devices are now holding ruptures firmly which heretofore never had been retained.

No elastic belts nor filthy legstraps are used. I guarantee the durability of my absolutely sweat and moisture proof, sanitary appliances.

75% of ruptured children recover completely through expert mechanical treatment according to statistics. Do not waste your money on widely advertised mail order contraptions. You cannot fit yourself.
