Owen Thompson Visits Benton County Old Home

Tells of Tour of United States With Shetland Pony Team and Movie Camera

(Corvallis Gazette-Times)

Owen Thompson, a former Benton county lad, but now a resident of Camp Sherman, Oregon, is visiting relatives and friends of Corvallis.

Without a college training Mr. Thompson left Oregon for a tour of the United States in quest of knowledge from first sources.

"After purchasing a camera," he said, "I started with my ponies, 'Dixie' and 'Trickie,' into Canada.

Dised With Millionaire "After touring the lakes, I landed in New York city where I dined with a millionaire—a new experience for the Benton county youth in a great city where he knew no one.

"After enduring many hardships in Mexico, I returned to Pasadena, where my ponies won first prize in the annual Rose parade.

"The tour proved to be a wonderful training, but among the things that impressed me the most was mining for gold, silver, copper and salt from the earth and the taking of salt from the ocean.

"My brother Ezra lives on his Beaver creek farm, which I once owned, and which had been owned by Jerry Henkle the 'Grand Old Gentleman' of Philomath.

"When you visit the Metolius, come to see my ponies, 'Dixie' and 'Trickie,' which I have pensioned for life because of the service they rendered as globe trotters."

Local Woman Gets Degree; Large Class Of Graduates After a summer's hard work spent in school, instead of on vacation, Miss Ruth Elizabeth Youmans, daughter of O. R. The class is made up of representatives of twenty-four states.

The convocation ceremony was held on the campus, attended by a large number of relatives and friends of the graduates. The principle address was delivered by Dr. Frank C. Jean, head of the graduate school.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. Moore returned Thursday afternoon from The Dalles where they have spent the last week visiting with their daughter, Mrs. W. N. Morse. Miss Catherine Bourhill, niece of George B. Bourhill, is visiting in Moro this week from Portland. Thursday the two left early by auto for Pendleton to attend the Round-Up.

Byron Peetz has returned to Moro from his job of driving truck on a rock crusher contract near Cascade Locks. He may return to the plant after his moving to a new setup. Redmond will be the division point for the new truck line from Portland to Klamath Falls. Daily freight and passenger service will be the advantage of the new through line.

By a vote of almost 5 to 1, voters of Klamath Falls have defeated the proposed commission manager form of government. Only 238 voters out of 1848 were in favor of the charter change. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Troedson and foster daughter Frances, of Ione, Ore., were visitors last weekend at the W. J. Martin home. They were returning after a year of travel in the eastern states.

Mrs. Bessie Thompson and her father, Geo. B. Bourhill, drove to Lost Lake last Saturday where Wayne Thompson, member of the Boy Scout camping party, joined them on a trip to Cloud Cap Inn, and their return home to Moro the same night. Wheat had a down price tone in all markets during this week, a result of the announcement that the Canadian wheat pool had established a 60-cent initial payment on wheat. This is 10 cents below the initial interim mark set July 15 and 25 cents below the lowest previous initial payment.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Henrichs left Wednesday for Portland to attend the wedding of Miss Wilma Mearl Damon, whose marriage that evening to Mr. Wallace Yeager of Los Angeles, Calif., was recently announced. Miss Damon is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Henrichs' niece, formerly known to Moro friends as Hazel Bentley. Chas. Ruggles arrived home last Sunday from a one way motor trip through the harvest fields of central west Canada as far north as Calgary. The trip north was made with a friend having relatives near Calgary; the return was by train, 24 hours from Calgary to The Dalles. Ruggles said that there is unemployment on every side in the sections of Canada he visited. C. H. Larson this week sold his farm implement business building on Main street, next to Hotel Moro, to the Cascade Tractor Co. We understand he has also sold his small farm implement parts to the tractor company on a consignment selling basis and that he will continue his Rumeley tractor and harvester agency in a smaller business office. Since the return of E. E. Barzee from Newport last week, the Moro band boys have been diligently practicing each evening getting ready to play for the county fair. The opening day of the Klickitat county fair the Moro band will make the neighbor fair a courtesy visit under direction of Mr. Barzee their band leader. The local band has a membership of 24 players, with an average attendance of fourteen at practice.

Raise More Barley For Oregon Cattle Is Urged

Prof. Hyslop Says It Is Fine Feed and Cheaper Than Corn Shipped Here

Oregon stock feeders who pass up high grade Oregon barley to import corn from the east or light barley from California, are overlooking the high feeding value of barley, says G. R. Hyslop, chief in farm crops at Oregon State College. He also believes that more good barley should be raised in Oregon and recommends several varieties.

"Barley at $23 to $25 a ton is certainly cheap feed as compared with Number 2 corn shipped half way across the country and sold at more than $40 a ton," he said. "Oregon grown barley has a very high dry matter content while a great deal of the eastern corn shipped west contains from 2 to 8 per cent moisture."

"California ships a great deal of barley north, but the practice is to separate out the heavy, plump kernels and export these to England for brewing purposes, shipping the rest as feed barley. It usually has a test weight of from 38 to 42 pounds while good Oregon Hannechen, Trebi or O. A. C. No. 7 frequently goes from 50 to 55 pounds."

For general spring sowing on heavier soils, Hannechen is still favored after many years of trial, being popular for feeding because of low percentage of hulls and lack of beards after threshing. Trebi is used on the high irrigated sections of eastern Oregon, and Marjout is the best for strictly dry farming, experiments at the Moro station show.

The experiment station is undertaking to develop a strain of barley to meet the special needs of the Oregon barley manufacturers who have a market for that product. This demand may amount to several thousand acres in future. British malsters are importing an immense amount of barley and pay premium prices for select quality which for them means high in starch and low in nitrogen. Oregon conditions favor production of good malting barley if good fall varieties are developed, Hyslop believes.

At the closing court of honor, held around the campfire Friday evening, one hundred and twenty five merit badges were awarded, making a total of three hundred and eighty three merit badges earned by the scouts while in camp. Thirty seven scouts received the honor emblem of the diamond "H" the highest point emblem awarded at camp. Harold Thogerson, Tommy and Gordon Fraser, Donald Davis and Wayne Thompson of Troop 6 Moro, attended Camp Limberlost this season and came home reporting a splendid time at camp. Harold Thogerson attended the first session of camp and earned the coveted life saving merit badge as well as high camp honors. Tommy and Gordon Fraser and Donald Davis each received the highest camp emblem awarded for points the "H" while Wayne Thompson was awarded a "W" for worthy camper. Part of the boys returned to The Dalles by a truck and were picked up there by Mr. Fraser while Mrs. Harvey Thompson drove to Lost Lake to get Wayne and also to enable her father Geo. B. Bourhill, to view this beautiful spot of Oregon.
