

OREGON STATE NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Principal Events of the Week Assembled for Information of Our Readers.

A new motor rail service on the Bend branch of the O. W. R. & N. has been started.

Hop picking has been completed in the Sheridan vicinity, and the crop was rather disappointing, both in returns per acre and price.

The city election at The Dalles in November will be a mere formality. There is only one candidate for each office to be filled January 1.

The voters of Coos county at the November election will be asked to authorize an annual advertising fund to be spent under the direction of the county court.

The death of Captain William Carver Ball at Portland recalls to pioneers of Klamath county the days of the steamboats that ran from Linkville to Keno and back.

Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the general merchandise store at Kent with loss of $16,000, partially covered by insurance. Volunteer firemen saved nearby buildings.

It is estimated that it will cost $852,000 to complete the Drain-Reedport highway. It is planned to turn the highway over to the state highway commission as a state highway.

Letter carrier service was inaugurated by the St. Helens postoffice October 1. The new service ended several months' activity by the local chamber of commerce and Postmaster Lake.

Austrian winter field peas, which have proved a valuable crop in western Oregon during the last few years, were tried out in Malheur county this year for the first time with excellent results.

When the safety cap came out of the 4000-gallon gasoline tank en route to Boise, it burned and the trailer exploded. No one was injured. The accident occurred seven miles west of Boardman.

Beans, especially Lima beans of the Baby variety, may soon become a field crop of consequence in Malheur county if interest continues to increase at the rate registered recently as a result of field tours.

A public camp ground and recreation park will be opened on Sutton lake six miles north of Florence when the highway is completed. The site is adjacent to the highway, with the lake on the other side.

Construction of the distribution plant and system of the Natural Gas corporation of Oregon was started at La Grande a few days ago, with 120 men employed. Plans are to have gas in the mains by January 1.

Laying of mains for the Natural Gas company of Oregon is being rushed with a crew of 200 men employed at Klamath Falls. More than $200,000 is to be spent in putting in the distributing system and plant.

An entire block of buildings, including the Methodist church and six residences, and the Masonic hall in another block, were destroyed by fire at Elgin. Preliminary estimates place the loss at well above $50,000.

Typhoid fever has almost reached the epidemic stage at Elkton, Douglas county, according to a report to the county health officials. It is thought that a contaminated water supply is the source of the contagion.

The apple harvest began in the Hood River district and several thousand apple pickers are at work gathering the 2,000,000 box apple crop of the valley, the greater part of which consists of yellow Newtowns. The canneries of the Apple Growers association will begin soon canning operations which are expected to last until the first of the year.

Joe Guyll, 45, prominent railroad employe of Pendleton, died from shot-gun wound. The gun apparently discharged as it fell against a bed.

The huge rock which is to mark the site of the old mission near Wheatland ferry, ten miles north of Salem, was put in place by a county crew. A bronze plate containing a brief story of the mission will be affixed to the rock.

Amendment to the game laws for the purpose of making it possible for the state game commission to secure accurate data relative to the number of deer killed annually and the localities where killed will be advocated by the Deschutes Sportsmen's association.

Miller-Umpqua Copper company, a $1,000,000 corporation recently organized under the Oregon laws with head office at Medford, will reopen the Rowley copper mine a few miles out from Trail in the Drew district on the proposed Pacific highway cut-off between Trail and Tiller.

Beetle control camps are being established in Fremont forest in furtherance of the government war on the destructive pine beetle. Headquarters have been established at Lakeview, and it is expected that about 100 men will be employed in cutting down and burning the infected trees.

The new 300-foot concrete bridge across the Grande Ronde river on the Old Oregon Trail highway at Five Points, near Hilgard, was opened to traffic October 1. The bridge is of reinforced concrete and the deck, flat instead of arching, is supported by six 50-foot arches underneath.

Bids are to be received October 15 at Portland by the United States engineers for the repair and extension of the jetty on the north side of the entrance to Tillamook bay at Barview.

In addition, if funds permit, a sea slope will be built at the end of the jetty extending 300 feet seaward.

Possibilities of establishing chicken canneries in Corvallis are being discussed by business men and local canneries there. More than 200,000 chickens are available each season, it is reported, with increasing interest in the poultry industry in Benton county indicating greater demand for a cannery in coming years.

Tom Cook, Helix, who has been a stockman all his life, says he has a good one for Ripley. Cook says he has a ewe which last February presented him with the customary lamb, and this September repeated the performance. In all his experience he has never heard of a ewe lambing twice in one year, he says.

With only one pupil enrolled, the school board of the Colestein district, south of Ashland in the Siskiyou mountains, decided that it would be cheaper to pay the transportation charges to take this lone pupil, 13-year-old Beulah Garwood, to either Ashland or Hilt school. Arrangements are being made to close the school.

Although shipments of green peas from the acreage seeded near Marshfield this year by the San Diego Fruit & Produce company fell short of expectations, cropping will be continued next year, according to W. G. Shrode, local manager for the concern. Nine carloads was the estimated loss in the fields because of lack of pickers, it was said.

A total of $128,520.92 was turned over to the state treasury department during September by the state land board, according to a statement by George G. Brown, clerk of the board. Of this amount $35,071.80 represents collections of principal on loans from the common school fund while $93,449.12 represents interest payments on school fund loans.

Receipts from motor vehicle registrations and the motor transportation act, aggregating $5,564,361.85, were apportioned between the state highway department and counties by the secretary of state. The receipts covered the period, June 16, 1930, to September 15, 1930, and were said to be the largest for any three months in the history of the state motor vehicle department.

Attacked by a ram while crossing a field where sheep were feeding, Pauline Talley, 9, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Talley, climbed on the back of the animal to protect herself until the arrival of her father. Remembering advice she had often heard, the child stepped to one side as the ram charged and caught hold of his wool. With a firm grip on the wool she managed to climb on his back, holding on to the plunging animal until her father rescued her.

Purple vetch shipped from the Arago and Comas valley sections of Coos and Douglas counties last month amounted to 57,500 pounds, of which 51,000 pounds, or one carload, was sold to a Los Angeles firm at 7 cents delivered.

Receipts of the 1930 Oregon state fair aggregated $42,319, as against $53,547.50 last year, according to figures given out by J. E. McClintock, veteran auditor for the state fair board. The attendance for the seven days was 89,750.

It is getting to be so that a man cannot indulge in burglary, murder or high treason without being indicted for making an incorrect income tax return.

The prevailing idea is that in the next war the civilian population is going to have every bit as tough a time as the soldier, and may have to learn to like salmon.

Among recent important weddings was that of Mr. Zero, the New York king of the unemployed. Of course a Zero's "better half" would be nobody, arithmetically speaking.

"Come out of the kitchen!" says Mr. Gandhi to the women of India. If he really wants to accomplish that sort of thing, why doesn't he just introduce bridge into the country?

Criminals are no longer adroit. They proceed to regulate their own affairs and intimate that if let alone they will co-operate with justice to the extent of killing off one another.

How, asks an inquirer of a medical publicist, can bow legs be made less noticeable? One could work in a box office, of course. We don't recall ever having noticed a theater treasurer's legs.

Hanging Only Makes His Headache Worse
Vienna.—Because of a headache Adolph Schuler, a Viennese locksmith, tried to hang himself, but succeeded only in making the headache worse. The rope broke and on recovering consciousness Franz found himself in the hospital with bandages around an ear which in the future will make many a prize fighter's "cauliflower" ashamed of itself.

STEERER STEERS BANDIT TO COP

Brooklyn Taxi Driver Lives Up to His Name.

New York.—Steerer is the name—David Steerer, Brooklyn, taxi cab driver. He has a good one to tell the boys.

It seems he was cruising around up near One Hundred and Eighth street and Manhattan avenue one night recently when Edward Donahue hailed him and directed him to drive down town. Steerer got the name later when it was all over and Donahue was in jail.

So along about the middle of Central park Steerer heard the glass panel behind him slide back and he looked over his shoulder to see Donahue with something bulging in his coat pocket, where Donahue held his hand. It looked like a gun.

"Stick 'em up," said Donahue, as well as Steerer could remember. He stopped the cab.

"You're wasting your time, fellow," said Steerer. "All I've got is about $18, and part of that is for the wife and kids. If you were wise, now, you'd go down to the Village Npt club in Barrow street. You can pick up a couple of grand there."

Well, they went on down to the night club and Donahue told Steerer to wait for him.

But as soon as Donahue was inside, Steerer called a cop. It was Patrolman Finn, who went in and found Donahue just inside the door, apparently undecided what he should do next. He had no gun.

Steerer took them both around to the police station, where he waited until Finn persuaded Donahue to pay the $1.40 which had clicked out on the cab meter. Donahue will have to explain away a charge of attempted robbery.

Cave Man Lover Out of Jail Curbed by Court

Detroit.—Charles Ochesky, the temperamental lover, is out of jail again, so Miss Joan Stamplen, the object of his tempestuous affections, has obtained an injunction.

Charles, Miss Stamplen told the court, was very tactfully "given the gate" once, but that didn't seem to make much of an impression. He came back the next night, broke up a lot of furniture and beat up Miss Stamplen's mother. Miss Stamplen was not impressed, and called the police.

After Charles got out of jail he made another call (uninvited) and beat up Miss Stamplen. Two days later he followed her to the home of friends and refused to leave. Again the police were called and again Charles was hauled away to jail.

"He's out again," Miss Stamplen told Judge Clyde Webster in Circuit court, "and something is liable to happen any minute." So Judge Webster granted an injunction restraining Charles from interfering with Miss Stamplen in any manner.

Limitations on speechmaking are not always important. As a rule, everybody knows what kind of a speech an eminent publicist is going to make before he starts.

A combination coat, vest and shirt has been devised for men's comfort in summer. But adoption of the style would simply mean the additional burden of coat and vest.

The gloomy dean says that what Americans spend on luxuries in two years would pay the British debt. But what do luxury-spending Americans care about paying the British debt?

Razor blades are on sale in a Fitchburg (Mass.) restaurant, and aspirin tablets are sold in B. & O. dining cars. So far, we have been unable to buy radio parts in a building and loan bank.

Communists can get into so much difficulty in various parts of the world that they must relinquish hope of a Communism sufficiently responsible in organization to bring them relief.

NEW RUPTURE Retention Shield

NOW SHOWING

C. F. Redlich, Rupture Expert, Minneapolis, Minn., will demonstrate without charge his unequalled method on Tuesday and Wednesday October 14 and 15, in The Dalles, at The Dalles Hotel.

Hours: Tuesday from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. and from 9 a. m. to 11 a. m. Wednesday. Evenings by telephone appointment.

Mr. C. F. Redlich announces that the new "Perfect Retention Shields" hold the rupture perfectly, no matter what position the body assumes or how heavy a weight you lift. They give instant relief and contract the opening in a remarkably short time.

The secret of their success is in their simplicity. An expertly adjusted device seals the opening without discomfort or detention from work. It is practically everlasting, sanitary, comfortable and actually holds ruptures which heretofore were considered uncontrollable.

Stomach troubles, backache and constipation, nearly always a consequence of rupture, promptly disappear.

NOTICE: All whom we have treated during the past ten years are invited to come in for a free inspection.

PACIFIC POWER & LIGHT COMPANY

...THE FARMERS' BUSINESS ALLY

Keep Taxes Down!

Business-minded farmers oppose proposals for putting politicians into the power business with taxpayers' money. They know that higher taxes invariably result from attempts at political management of industry, particularly industries requiring large capital investments and professional management, such as the power industry. They advise:

"Protect your own interests. Defeat these unsound, tax-increasing schemes!"

FAIRLY PRICED electric energy cuts production costs for nearly 8,000 farmers served by the lines of this company in Oregon and Washington. These progressive farmers have proved that our service is a powerful business ally—a capable assistant who is helping them to make more money.

With all of its many profitable uses, Pacific Power & Light Company service is still one of the smallest items of expense on the farm, for rural rates paid by our customers are among the lowest in the entire country.

Low cost and dependability of service—made possible by trained, professional management devoting its entire time to the job—make Pacific Power & Light Company service an important factor in the continued development of this territory.

Pacific Power & Light Company
