Charles Buhman returned on Wednesday from a few days in the valley and at Long Beach. It was rumored. Well no difference what was rumored. It didn't happen.

Thirty-five bushels may not be "as large as many are realizing," when it comes to newspaper reports, but we have yet to see the farmer when that yield does not "look good to him."

Have you seen the metal handle, under the regular cover, on the 3-lb. or 5-lb. Cleveland Baking Powder cans? Ask your grocer for them. The can comes in handy when empty.

Eli Cochran was in Wasco the first of the week from his ranch near Monkland. He is busy at this time harvesting his eleven hundred acre crop of barley which he says will make a good average.

As the harvest advances reports continue to tell of pleasing yields of barley. But little wheat has so far been harvested. All indications are, however, that it will be as good, proportionately, as the barley.

The success of the dinner given last Saturday evening by the ladies of the Methodist church was a compliment to those who participated in the preparation. Everyone who attended enjoyed the best of good things to eat. Financially, the result was also good, the ladies having realized about fifty dollars.

V. H. Smith was a business caller at the News office Wednesday. Discussing the grain market he declared that the price of barley had raised three dollars per ton since the organization of the new warehouse company. Mr. Smith is very enthusiastic over the new company and under his management it will doubtless be a success.

Mr. Smith, a member of the firm manufacturing the Smith grain pilers, was in town the first of the week. While here he sold one of his machines to the Independent Warehouse and Milling Company. These machines are operated by two or four men and increases their ability to handle grain at the warehouse by more than two fold.

A trial of more than usual interest was held before a jury of six men in the Recorder's Court of Wasco last Saturday afternoon and evening. C. J. Bright was attorney for the city and Sam Stark, of The Dalles, who formerly had a law office at this place, appeared for the defense. The defendants, Messrs. Smith, McArthur and Henderson were acquitted of a charge of disturbing the peace.

Quiet reigns where the wheels are want to spin lively up in the neighborhood of the W. W. M. Co. mill, for it is the yearly house-cleaning time and the usual grind gives place to a general clean up, which will last 'till the first of September. Most of the force of sixty men will keep busy, however, for there is much to be done when cleaning time comes after a year of activity day and night.—Chronicle.
